BAPTIST CHURCH, NEWTON CENTRE.

Browne's. Time, Mondays at 2.30, commencing on Nov. 5.

—As the contemplated new ward at the Cottage Hospital will call for additional supplies, it has been suggested that sewing circles connected with the various churches throughout the city, devote the month of November to sewing for the Hospital. Will the ladies please take notice?

—Mr. F. G. Barker has bought the Watertown Enterprise from Mr. Dixon, who has conducted it for the past nine years with so much success. Mr. Barker has heretofore printed the paper and has made it one of the neatest papers on our exchange list. From his reputation for enterprise and ability, Mr. Barker will be sure to make the Enterprise still more popular with the people of Watertown.

—The annual Harvest concert was held at the Baptist church last Sabbath evening, and as usual the house was full. The decorations of autumn leaves, corn, wheat, etc., were very tastefully arranged, and the exercises were varied and interesting. The address was given by Prof. English of the Theological Seminary and was upon the necessity of careful seed sowing since the harvest depended on the kind of seed, and was far in excess of the amount sown.

—The railroad engineers inspected the various grade crossings along the line of the Boston & Albany railroad in Newton, Tuesday morning, and were met at the Newton station by the mayor and members of the city government. The city council is opposed to any separation of the grades, provided any portion of the expense devolves upon the city. A hearing will be held in the City Hall at a date agreeable to the city authorities and officials of the railroad company. Thursday evening next will probably be the time set for the hearing.

—The culvert under the Washington street crossing of the Boston & Albany railroad, just this side of the Newton station, recently gave way and was fortunately discovered by an employee of the highway department last week. Last Friday evening the railroad company put on a gang of 50 men, tore up the tracks the entire length of the crossing and placed a heavy wooden timber under the south track after the necessary repairs had been made. At midnight the entire work was completed and the crossing rendered perfectly safe.

—Now and then some one makes a gift to the Newton Public Library, but the general impression is, that as the city supports it, no one's aid will be welcomed. This is a mistake, for any proper addition to the shelves will no doubt be gratefully received by the authorities. The wonder is that more people do not establish funds for the purchase of books in their favorite departments, as for example "The Jewett Art Fund," "The Spear Fund" and others. We have in our city perhaps a larger proportion of students than in places of equal size, and more readers, but actual students of whom are adding to the fields of knowledge by books of their own. It is among the possible things to have our library become so excellent as a working library for students that it will add to the already good reputation of the city.

—The residence of Mr. Samuel G. Pond, Walnut Park, was entered by thieves, last Friday afternoon between 5 and 6 o'clock, and jewelry and watches stolen valued at about $500. Among the articles taken was an elegant gold watch and chain valued at $175, silver breastpins, earrings, bracelets and numerous small articles. The entrance was effected through the front chamber window over the piazza. After entering the room, the thieves locked the door entering into the hall and proceeded to ransack the apartment in search of valuables. The inmates were unconscious of their presence, and the clever rascals escaped with their booty without alarming the family.

—City Marshal Richardson and Officers C. O. Davis, N. F. and W. G. Hosworth, Fletcher, Bartlett and Ryan raided the places of William Burns, West street; M. Driscoll, Adams street, and John Kelly, Crescent street, Sunday morning. At Burns' two gallons of whiskey were seized; at Driscoll's, 140 bottles of lager and two gallons of whiskey; at Kelly's, a small quantity of gin. Driscoll was arrested and locked up at police headquarters. On Saturday evening Joseph E. Tobin's house, Lexington street, was visited, and 48 bottles of lager and one gallon of whiskey seized. The raids were all successful and the police are entitled to great credit for vigilance in carrying out the laws of the city in regard to the liquor evil. The present city marshal is determined to clean out all the places possible, where liquor is illegally sold.

—The Baptist Y. P. S. C. E. and their friends passed a very pleasant evening Tuesday. At 7.30 a few of the initiated ones began to arrive, and by eight o'clock the parlors and class rooms of the church were filled by eager young people, each bringing a sheet of common white sheet, only that and nothing more." So the unique invitation had requested, and only the social committee of the Y. P. S. C. E. knew what was to be done with them. But a glance around the crowded rooms, where nimble fingers were "draping" their friends, showed conclusively what was to be done with them, and from different parts of the room could be heard, "Will you drape me next?" "Who'll fix me?" etc. When the costumeing was completed about 125 young men and ladies joined forces in the chapel, and great was the merriment over the transformation of well-known friends. It hardly seemed possible that a plain sheet could be arranged in so many different ways. Presently chords were heard from the piano, and two by two the young people joined forces and marched about through the different rooms. No one however, was allowed to enter the kitchen, whence came delicious whiffs occasionally. Later on the mystery was solved, as platter after platter of excellent candy appeared, just ready for pulling. And how they pulled! There was plenty of candy for everyone, and later on, alas! plenty of blisters. But about eleven they separated, having had "A fine time," and having passed a truly "social" evening. The members of the society wore badges with the letters Y. P. S. C. E., and the members of the social committee were decorated with special ones, and faithfully they fulfilled their parts as the hosts and hostesses of the evening. This is the first meeting of a social nature held since the organization of the society, and may certainly be considered a success.

An Unbearable Nuisance.

To the Editor of the Graphic.

Through your columns I would like to call the attention of those who read your paper, and also the board of health, to a nuisance that is committed and permitted every fall throughout the whole town, especially in the more thickly settled portions.

I mean the so called top-dressing of the small stretches of grass about our houses with the contents of barn cellars and manure heaps.

Every form of filth and corruption is thus exposed to offend the eye, to disgust the nose and, what is of more importance, to injure the health.

It is hard to understand how such a system ever came into use, and having come into use on farms and pasture lands, it should be continued now, in these days of cheap manures, right under our windows, close to the cold air boxes of furnaces.

We have rules of our health board against keeping pigs in certain parts of the town against keeping cows without a license, and the sessions of our city council are at times given up to the discussion of the question of having stables built in certain quarters of the town, but not a word of protest have I ever heard against the spreading of the contents of pig pens, cow barns or horse stalls, broadcast every where.

By this top dressing we secure an infinite amount of stink, an infinitesimal amount of fertilizing. I say stunk advisedly and intentionally.

How dangerous a stink may be to public health I cannot say. I know well, however, that in such a mass of putrid corruption there is danger, especially when it is brought into our houses, warmed by passing through our furnace pipes, certainly they should be extended to cover the manure from their pens.

But I have said enough. A word to the wise is sufficient.

Y. M. C. A.

The Gospel meeting of the association was held at Eliot Lower Hall Sunday afternoon, services conducted by President R. F. Cummings. Psalm, 119, 11, "Thy Word have I hid in my heart," was the subject chosen for consideration. From the heart proceeds the issues of life, both good and evil. It is the inside, not the outside that regulates our lives. How important then, that we have planted in our heart's God's Word as a lamp to our feet and a light to our path. Several pointed illustrations were used to enforce this truth and every moment was occupied. Next Sunday the newly elected officers will be present and conduct the services; an informal address will be given by the retiring President. A pleasant and profitable time is anticipated. Praise service at 3.45 p. m.

Burglars in Newton.

Three burglaries in Newton the past week has caused quite a sensation among residents, and also a great deal of inquiry in regard to a safe place for the keeping of valuables. Had any of the houses entered had one of the Alpine Safe Co.'s unrivaled fire proof safes, they would not have been robbed. These safes are sold at from $80 to $75. Mr. Chas. A. Kellogg is the agent and will be glad to exhibit them to Newton people who call at his office, 103 Milk street, Boston. See advertisement.

LAMPS AND CROCKERY. Notwithstanding the great variety of goods in the lamp and crockery line, from hand-somely decorated French china to a cheap white set, shown by Morey, Church-st. & Morey, 155 Friend street, Boston, their prices will be found so reasonable that you must buy of them.

NEWTON CENTRE BAPTIST CHURCH

THE BUILDING DEDICATED WITH IMPRESSIVE CEREMONIES, THURSDAY.

The beautiful new stone meetinghouse of the First Baptist Society, Newton Centre, was dedicated with impressive ceremonies, Thursday. The church was completely filled, many ladies and gentlemen being present from all the Newtons. The services commenced promptly at 2.30 o'clock, and after an organ voluntary the prayer was offered by Rev. William Newton Clarke, D. D. The chorus of the church, under the leadership of Mr. George W. Walton, then rendered the anthem, "Blessed are they that dwell in thy house," (Tours,) after which the chairman of the building committee, Mr. James Sullivan Newell, read the

REPORT OF THE BUILDING COMMITTEE.

A high tribute was paid to the late Gardner Colby, who was one of the most earnest supporters of the plan of a new church, and whose contribution of $25,000 made the new building a possibility. A memorial window has been placed in the Southern transept by his children. Mr. Newell stated that every bill had been paid except one, and there was money enough on hand to pay that. The committee to report on a new building was appointed in April, 1883, and two years later reported, recommending that the whole matter be referred to the prudential committee of the church. This committee consisted of Messrs. James S. Newell, Dwight Clarke, Melan Bray, Charles S. Young, Arthur C. Walworth, J. C. Hartshorn and Andrew J. Letherbee. The problem before them was a difficult one, but Feb. 18, 1883, they reported preliminary plans, with estimate of the cost. On Feb. 25 and March 1, the plans were discussed by the society and on the last named date it was voted to adopt the plans substantially as presented. The prudential committee were appointed a building committee, and on April 12, Mr. D. B. Clafin was added to their number. Mr. J. Lyman Faxon of Boston was summoned to complete full working drawings, and these were presented to the society by President R. F. Cummings. The contract was signed Oct. 12, with Mead, Mason & Co., builders of Boston, and a few days later the work of removing the old buildings began. The building speaks their own report, said Mr. Newell. With the pews all in place there are 700 seats, and a gallery can be built in the east end, providing for 250 more. The furnishings were selected by Messrs. Gustavus Forbes, Frank P. McIntyre, Frank Edmonds and D. N. B. Clafin, Mrs. D. B. Clafin, Mrs. Alvah Hovey, Mrs. E. H. Mason and Mrs. S. M. Tourtellot. The total cost of building was $78,771.27, and of furniture, $5,250; total, $84,021.27. There have also been placed in the church three memorial windows, a new bell of about 2,500 pounds has been hung in the tower, the basement floor has been completed, two marble columns have been placed in the chapel loggia, and $500 expended in grading the grounds, the total expended being about $90,000, which is either paid or provided for. The ground floor of the church is a Greek cross. The architecture of the exterior is essentially Romanesque of the 13th century. The interior is Byzantine of the 9th and 11th centuries. The chancel, the arch, both interior and exterior; the loggia with its arched openings; the hanging lamps of quaint design; the stucco tiling on the walls with monogrammatic symbolisms; the decorations upon the capitals and arches; the mosaic upon the chancel walls and other decorative work, are all types of this style of architecture, and suggested by work seen in St. Marco, Venice, and other existing specimens of architecture found in various churches of the old world.

The Colby memorial window, in the southern transept, symbolizes the resurrection. The Cutler window in the northern transept, the ascension. The Grafton window in the nave represents the gospel preached. The four windows in the front vestibule, representations of Matthew, Mark, Luke and John, are suggested by 12th century mosaics in St. Marco, Venice.

The windows were furnished by Donald McDonald of Boston; the heating and ventilating apparatus by A. C. Walworth. The heating is by steam, which is supplied by two boilers.

At the conclusion of the reading of the report, a responsive reading of the Scriptures was given, led by Rev. Philip Moxom. Miss Ruth C. Long of Portland, Me., sang a contralto solo, "Eye hath not seen." The offertory was then made, the Scriptural service being conducted by Rev. Edward Brailsford, D. D., a former pastor.

The original hymn, written by Dr. S. F. Smith, author of "America," preceded the sermon by the pastor, Rev. Lemuel Call Barnes. His text was taken from John xviii, 20, "I ever taught in the synagogue and in the temple." The

THE CITY GOVERNMENT.

THE BOARD OF ALDERMEN HOLD AN ADJOURNED MEETING.

The board of aldermen met Monday evening, Mayor Kimball in the chair. The reading of the minutes was dispensed with. All the members were present except Alderman Nickerson. On recommendation of Chief Bixby, P. E. Ellis was promoted from Hose 2, to be driver of No. 3 engine.

THE STABLE QUESTION.

A communication was received from the city solicitor, in regard to the power the board has over the erection of stables and other buildings. He stated that according to the public statutes, the board could only refuse a license on account of danger from fire, or danger to health, and that the board had a right to withdraw a license once granted, if no action had been taken upon it. The board of health has control over the erection of objectionable buildings.

GRADE CROSSINGS.

The board of engineers on grade crossings sent notice that they would arrive at the Newton station at 9.35 Tuesday morning, to examine Newton crossings, and the board voted to have the Mayor and such aldermen as could go, meet them, and oppose in every way the assessment of any part of the cost of separating the grades upon the city of Newton.

Alderman French said that he thought it was very important that some of the members should be present, as if there was no opposition, a bill like that of last year might be brought forward again.

Mayor Kimball said that the City Solicitor and himself had appeared before the railroad committee of the last legislature, to oppose the assessment of any portion of the cost upon the city of Newton. The Railroad Commissioners were evidently in perfect sympathy with the Railroad counsel in their plan to have the city pay part of the cost, but Newton ought not to contribute anything to the railroad corporation.

Alderman Pettie hoped the board would be present, so as to learn the plans of the engineers, and what they propose to do.

Mayor Kimball said that he understood that their object was both to propose a plan and to say how the expenses should be defrayed, and what part of the cost should be assessed upon the city.

Alderman Pettie said that when the Boston & Worcester road got its charter there were but few trains a day, and the danger was small. But now the road had been so extended, and so many western connections, that the danger had been increased. The local trains were not complained of, but the fast through trains were the most dangerous and these were of no benefit to Newton. If the road must run such trains, they ought to pay for them, and pay all the cost of making the crossings safe. When the road was first laid out and secured its charter, it had only one track, but now it had four, and the through tracks contributed the most to the danger, and the road ought never to have been allowed to lay the through tracks over the grade crossings.

Alderman Chadwick said the board should be present, that the city might know what was going on. He was opposed to the city's paying any portion of the expense, as it did not properly belong to the city to help the railroad out of the difficulty.

DR. DEAN'S WATER PIPE.

The order, granting Dr. Dean permission to use iron service pipe, came from the common council amended, that he must pay the expense of laying the pipe.

Alderman Childs moved that the board adhere to its action. He thought the rule of the water board, requiring the use of lead pipe, was an arbitrary one, and he knew of no reason why any man should not use iron pipe if he wanted to do so.

Alderman Pettie said he did not believe in imposing a penalty on a citizen, because of his belief that lead pipes were dangerous to health. The first cost of lead pipes were from 12 to 14 cents a foot more than iron. Dr. Dean was willing to pay 80 extra rather than run the risk of poisoning his family, but he did not believe in the principle. He thought it would be a good plan to refer the whole matter to the board of health. He knew of a town in Connecticut where lead pipes had produced an epidemic of sickness, which passed away after the lead pipes had been removed.

Alderman French asked if Dr. Dean was in any hurry to get water; if he was the matter ought to be settled at once in some form.

Mayor Kimball stated that Dr. Dean got water now through another lot, but a house was being built upon the lot and the pipes would soon have to be removed, and he wished to get water directly from the street.

Alderman Pettie said that the water board had granted to persons who desired iron pipes, the privilege of using them provided they paid for the first cost. Alderman Ward said that he saw no reason why the water board should set up an arbitrary rule.

Alderman Childs said that he knew of iron pipes that had been laid from 11 to 13 years, and had never become filled up. The trouble was that the dignity of the water board was offended because Dr. Dean did not appear before them in person, but he had told them what he wanted, and there was no special use in his appearing.

Alderman French said he thought the water board were looking after the interests of the city, and he saw no objection to their rule. Iron pipes were used at first, but they soon became choked up and had to be replaced, and this entailed much useless expense. He was one of the first to ask for lead pipes, as he did not wish to have his lawn constantly dug up for the sake of replacing the pipes. He thought Dr. Dean should pay the cost and the city not be put to the expense of digging up and replacing iron service pipes every few years.

Alderman Pettie said that the lead pipes cost from 12 to 14 cents per foot more, and put this additional sum at in terest and it would pay all the expense of replacing the pipes, if they had to be replaced. He did not think the board were looking after the interests of the city especially.

LEMON BROOK.

Alderman French presented the petition of the residents along Lemon brook on Nonantum street and Nonantum Place, Ward 7, calling attention to the filthy condition of the brook. The retaining walls had fallen down, the bed of the brook was choked up, and the brook was found to have cess pools and drains emptying into it and to be in a very foul condition. They asked to have the brook widened and deepened, and to be covered from Benjamin Merritt's land to the Charles River, with a brick arched wall, the same as had been done with the brook on Eldridge street. The brook now was dangerous to public health, and they asked for a hearing from the highway committee. The petition was referred to that committee.

MISCELLANEOUS FUND.

An order was passed appropriating $3,000, to be added to the appropriation for miscellaneous expenses, and repaid from unexpended balances in the city treasury, or from next year's assessment of taxes. Alderman French explained that no money was left in the miscellaneous appropriation, and the City Auditor had informed him that the unexpended balances would be sufficient to make up the sum needed.

THE STONE CRUSHER.

The order appropriating $5,000 for work at the stone crusher came from the lower branch with the endorsement, failed to pass.

Alderman Chadwick said that if the order had been fully understood it would have passed. The money would keep the city teams at work, and the material would be needed early next spring for use on the streets. He moved that a committee of conference be asked for.

Alderman Pettie seconded the motion and said that it was very important to have material for use early in the spring, when it would stick to the surface of the road and mix in with the old surface. If the work was delayed till June or July the old surface would be blown away and the new would be washed away by the rains. The roads now need this material, if it could be applied, as they have been badly washed by the unusual rains. Besides, the Auburndale crusher could not be used in the winter months, as the cobble stones used there would be covered with snow and ice. A committee of conference was asked for.

Charles F. Rand gave notice of intention to build a double house, 44 by 30, and ell 18 by 30, on Maple Park, Ward One.

John F. Warren asked for license to build a shed, on West street, Ward Two. D. C. Baker was granted license to run a Pulsion telephone wire from Auburn street to Lexington street, Ward Four.

Wm. Barry and others of Ward Five were granted a license to parade with a drum corps.

Mayor Kimball appointed Bernard Early Democratic deputy warden of Ward Four, Asa C. Jewett, deputy Democratic warden, and D. H. McWain, Democratic inspector of Ward Six.

The board then adjourned to Tuesday evening, Nov. 6th, at 7.30 p. m., to receive election returns.

THE REPUBLICAN RALLY.

ADDRESSES BY HON. CHARLES ROBINSON, MESSRS. CANDLER, CONLAN, POWERS AND BIEW.

The Republican rally Saturday night drew a large crowd to City Hall, where the American Watch Company band furnished music, and Hon. Chas. Robinson presided, introducing the different speakers with short but effective speeches.

Hon. John W. Candler made the first address, which was similar in character to the one made at Eliot Hall, and devoted to Southern outrages.

Mr. Patrick J. Conlan of South Boston was introduced as an Irish American who had been 20 years a Democrat, and urged his compatriots to vote against English influences and free trade, and he described at some length the effect which he thought the Mills bill would have upon our industries.

Mr. Samuel L. Powers spoke upon Independence in Politics. He said that when the Independents stood with the Republican party, that party was invincible, and if they would stand by it now, it would be invincible once more. He proceeded to give reasons for the return of the Independents to the fold, which he found in the cause of protection and good government. He called attention to the way in which President Cleveland had violated the principles of good government, by removing Republican officials by the wholesale and putting Democrats in their places, and gave the figures of removals. It was in that way he gained his re-nomination at St. Louis and made himself solid with his party. He professed great devotion to the veteran soldiers, but he had shown it by allowing his substitute in the war to go to the poor-house, and by vetoing pension bills by the score. Mr. Powers then discussed the tariff question, and showed how the present tariff had doubled the population and more than doubled the wealth of the country, besides making wages one-third higher. He thought we ought to let well enough alone. In the Ninth District, our candidate for Congress has just spoken to you on the Solid South and the frauds there, and that speech ought to satisfy everyone that John W. Candler is the proper man to represent this district. In 1880 and 1882, Mr. Candler had stood in the halls of Congress the Peer of any man in the Massachusetts delegation, and if you send him again he will not only be the Peer of any representative from New England but from the whole country. He asked his hearers to compare Mr. Candler with Mr. Burnett and he hoped the Independents would come back to the party, put their shoulders to the wheel, and help redeem the Ninth District.

Judge J. B. C. Drew made the closing speech which was an eloquent and effective one.

Don't Give Up.

TEMPERANCE AND GOOD GOVERNMENT.

PROHIBITIONISTS DISCUSS THE ISSUES AT AUBURNDALE.

An enthusiastic Prohibition rally was held in Auburn Hall, Auburndale, Monday evening, and was well attended, many of the fair sex being present. The meeting was called to order at about 7.45 o'clock, and the Amphion male quartette initiated the exercises with a pleasing rendition. Rev. George S. Butters offered prayer and the quartet again favored the audience at the close of his exhortation. Prof. C. C. Bragdon, principal of Lasell Seminary presided, and in his introductory remarks alluded to the fact that he was a beginner and a learner in the Prohibition movement. He had become disappointed with the equivocal position of the old parties, and believed in temperance legislation. When requested to preside at this meeting, I suggested, said the speaker, the propriety of securing some gentlemen more identified with the Prohibition movement.

Rev. Frederic Woods of Chelsea was introduced as the first speaker of the evening. He said that the liquor question was more of a moral than a political issue. Such a moral question, affecting the home and the character of individuals, tending towards the destruction of one and the ruin of the other, was an issue of sufficient importance for the establishment of the third party. The speaker then gave statistics, pointing out the number of drunken men made through the saloon, the record of crime traceable to the same cause, and the power and political influence of the money invested in the liquor business.

At the conclusion of Rev. Mr. Woods' speech, the quartet rendered the selection, "We have girded on our armor." The closing address was given by Rev. O. P. Gifford, pastor of the Warren Avenue Baptist church, Boston.

The Police Signal System.

In all cities there are unfortunately more or less of those, who need the repressive influences of the law to keep them in order, and consequently to those who are interested in municipal affairs, the necessity of improved methods in handling the Police of our cities has long been apparent. In no other department of municipal government has there been so little progress as that of the Police; the patrolman is sent to his beat and once there he is free to act as he pleases, being cut off from all communication with his superior. Every man who has held a position on any police force knows that this is very unsatisfactory, and in order that the police force may become effective and always under the control of its superior officers, the municipal signal system has been invented and is in active use in many cities, and in no city in this Commonwealth can it be used to so great an advantage as in the widely scattered City of Newton.

In this system signal boxes containing telephones and automatic signalling instruments are placed at proper distances from each other on every patrolman's beat, and are electrically connected with police headquarters, and from there the patrolman can automatically transmit different messages and register them at police headquarters, or they can converse with each other by telephone, and citizens can also readily summon police assistance from any signal box in the vicinity where they reside, as a number of respectable citizens are entrusted with a key to the outside box. This is considered essential that a policeman should regularly patrol his beat, and that the officer in command should know that he does so, the latter may require that the policeman make a time record by signalling for orders from stated points with any desired frequency. This signal system is not an added expense to a municipality, but is in fact, a real economy, for by its use the police force is practically largely increased in numbers and efficiency as with it, it is unnecessary for a police officer to leave his beat. Without this system, a police officer is a station his beat is uncovered for an hour or more, and it is apparent that a given number of patrolmen will by the aid of the signal system, more effectively protect a much larger area of territory than they could with a much smaller area without. Furthermore, every key held by a citizen is really an additional police officer serving without remuneration. Without the signal system a police force patrolling the streets is really a series of detached and unsupported outposts practically without any base, with which the policemen support each other, and the entire force can act together as a unit. Finally its numerous advantages, and the varied uses to which it may be put, in the preservation of life and property, commend it to every one, the costs of its introduction and maintenance being very small in proportion to the advantages gained.

"Damnation and the Dead."

Rev. F. B. Hornbrooke has the following letter in the Transcript: "It may be true, as the Independent asserts, that the hymn 'My thoughts on awful subjects roll,' cited in Mrs. Deland's 'John Ward, Preacher,' has not been 'sung in any Orthodox church within the memory of any living septuagenarian.' Nevertheless, my first sight of it was in no 'Unitarian anthology of exploded horrors' which Orthodoxy is now ashamed of, but in the 'Plymouth Collection of Hymns' compiled by the late Henry Ward Beecher, of whom perhaps the Independent knows something. It is to be found there just as any other hymn is, untagged by any sign. When a man like Henry Ward Beecher placed that hymn in his collection he must have done so because he thought a great many people would not like its omission. He could hardly have selected it because he loved it."

THE CONGRESSIONAL QUESTION.

HON. LEVI C. WADE ON THE IMPORTANCE OF ELECTING REPUBLICANS.

To the Editor of the GRAPHIC.

I have read with great interest the able political arguments which have appeared in your columns, and regret that I have neither time nor ability to honor in a fitting manner your request to write upon the congressional question.

I can only briefly suggest a few points in addition to those so ably urged by others.

It is neither right nor independent to misuse, or lightly use, the power of voting which the laws entrust; and the grave importance of the decision of this district demands our most earnest consideration and conscientious action.

We are about to elect a member of Congress. I believe it is our duty to elect John W. Candler, the Republican nominee.

The letter of Mr. Samuel Shaw, printed in your paper, gave as a reason for voting against the Republican party, that the reciprocity treaty with Mexico was defeated by a Republican senate.

He was in error but as he has suggested the importance of our trade with Mexico, I hope I shall be pardoned for alluding to a subject in which I am especially interested.

Our citizens have a large interest in trade between Mexico and the United States. We have invested heavily on both sides of the border. A Republican president negotiated a treaty of reciprocity with Mexico which would have largely increased our commerce, a Republican senate, with the aid of some Democratic votes, ratified it by the requisite two thirds majority; a Democratic house defeated it.

Recently a few southern Democrats, with the connivance of the Democratic speaker, blocked all the business of the house and forced an abandonment of the attempt to pay back to Massachusetts and some other States the direct taxes paid by them and not by all the States.

The Democratic representatives also prevented payment of the French spoliation claims,—the claims, owned almost wholly in New England.

For eleven years New England has held a back seat in the National House of Representatives. Is she contented with it? Are her civilization, enterprise, refinement, high sense of honor, both public and private, inferior to those of the South, or less faithful and safe for the nation? No, but the Democratic speaker gives, and must give, the most important places to southern Democrats, because they represent the power and majority of his party; without them it would hopelessly fail.

The power of the Democratic majority in the house has been mercilessly used. This district is aiding it; why should we continue to help defeat our own interests?

Our present representative, Mr. Burr, is an estimable man; but, if he has the will, he has neither the nerve nor the power to contend with his associates. He is on the wrong side. He must go with his party or be "sent to Coventry." If he should protest, he has not the personal power to make his protest effective.

The best interests of this city, of Massachusetts and of New England, demand a Republican majority and a Republican speaker in the House of Representatives. It is necessary for our pecuniary interests, both private and public; for a proper revision of the tariff; for the protection of home industries; for building up trade by reciprocity treaties with Mexico and Central and South America; for the protection of our extensive investments in the West, South and Southwest.

The great success of New England is due, mainly, to her conscience, her schools and the unalterable sense of the true dignity of labor.

She has a great deal at stake. She must make herself felt again in the house as well as the senate. And this is not wholly selfish. Her influence has never retarded the growth, injured the character, or detracted from the prosperity of any section.

She asks no more than her due and concedes to others more than her rights. She demands a proper share in the councils of the nation. The Republican party will give it to her. The party found its birth and inspiration in New England.

But it is not for New England alone, the best interests of the South lie in the same direction. Rich in labor, lands, forests and minerals, the South needs thrift, enterprise and capital. The broken credit and dishonored promises of most of her State governments, the insecurity of life, the intolerance of freedom of opinion, the social contempt of labor, the right away capital, hinder enterprise, foster ignorance and shiftlessness.

When a southern city is shaken by an earthquake, or visited by fire or pestilence, it stretches out its hand promptly to New England for help and its appeal has never been denied.

The South needs the help of New England capital, courage, and thrift today.

The continuance in power of the Democratic party only perpetuates the grip upon the South of the irreconcilables, the men who mislead her in the past and hold back against her progress today.

By electing a Democrat, we should do injustice both to the South and to ourselves; by electing a Republican, we shall advance the interests of our State and of the entire country. LEVI C. WADE.

FOR WHAT SHALL I VOTE.

DR. F. C. CREHORE ANSWERS SOME IM-PORTANT QUESTIONS.

To the Editor of the GRAPHIC.

I found in my mail this morning a circular signed with the name of a well known political worker, asking me to contribute to the campaign fund of the Republican party, which was represented to be in urgent need of pecuniary assistance. Being an Independent in political matters, I put the question which heads this article to myself. Four years ago the question was in the form, "for whom shall I vote?" Now—and it is something to be profoundly grateful for—it stands "for what shall I vote." So, despite the fact that a citizen of Newton is announced to show in an address how little the judgment of an Independent is to be depended upon, I have devoted a little time to considering the problem. For if I intend to vote for the measures advocated by the Republican party, I certainly ought, in their distress, to send them such small contribution as I can spare—the more especially as they are the only one of the three great parties which has thus far done me the honor to solicit my pecuniary aid.

To begin at the foundations of our civil status, the welfare of the great body of citizens who earn by daily labor their daily bread. The Republican party claim that the promotion of this welfare is their peculiar care and that if they are entrusted with the control of the government again they will insure this class unexampled prosperity. Is this so? They held the power asked for during twenty years, and in the last decade of that period, these well-cared for laborers were so banded to the facts that they formed, perhaps, the most powerful organization ever known upon this continent, to protect and improve their condition, which they asserted was getting intolerable. The protection accorded to the labor interests by the Republican party was certainly not sufficient to prevent the formation of the order of the Knights of Labor. As they only offer the same means now, propose no new measure, it is probable that they will be more successful in the future? Again, while at the beginning of the present Democratic term what are termed labor troubles were general and threatening—they have been steadily decreasing, and it is a fair inference that the improvement in the conduct of the government by that party has occurred to injure the condition of the laboring classes, but rather to improve it. I must not be understood as asserting that I deem the condition of the working classes to be very closely dependent upon political matters. I merely wish to point out that the assumption of the Republican leaders, that they are the ones to whom the workingman is to look for support and protection, is at least ill founded.

Another claim they make is asking me to support them, in that they are the champions of American industry, as they propose to protect it by increasing the duty upon imports. The present protective tariff is their work. Let me illustrate how it works to protect American manufactures. There is a monopoly, a trust, or whatever one may choose to call it, which controls the production of iron girders and fixes the price thereon at 3 cents per pound. This monopoly (it embraces only a few concerns) receives the protection of 1-4 cents per pound duty upon imported girders. Moreover, these same girders can be bought in Belgium at 1-8 cents per pound, so that the duty is more than 100 per cent. All of our bridge builders and other large consumers of course, when they can, buy Belgium girders. Recently the contractors upon public buildings, having ordered their girders in Belgium, conceived the bright idea of having some necessary bolt holes, etc., bored in them, and imported them as machinery, which only pays a duty of 45 per cent. Thus under the present tariff, any one building an elevator which required the use of iron girders, can reduce the duty upon these from over 100 per cent. to 45 per cent., by having them made into machines by foreign workmen, instead of bringing them in as girders and giving American firms the work of constructing machines with them.

The truth of the matter is, that all protection of our industry is at the expense of somebody else. Our present tariff, patched with provisions from time to time, as some powerful interest or interest upon congressional committees, is inconsistent with itself; it needs revision to make it tolerable, and that is what Republicans refused to do, but the Democrats attempted to do in the Mills bill. A great howl is made over the free introduction of foreign wheat, but the State of Texas, most largely interested in having that industry protected, is the birthplace of the measure, it seems hardly worth while to vote with the Republicans to oppose it—all the more as it would be to the advantage of a great New England industry to have it removed.

There has been some talk about Protection versus Free Trade (things which by the way can exist side by side) but as free trade has not been proposed by either of the parties in the field, I fail to see how the discussion is pertinent to the present election. Protection by direct subsidy, or by government aid (as England protects her carrying trade which distributes her products, by colonial and trading establishments, a powerful navy, etc.) can co-exist with free trade; but the means must be provided in some way, direct tax upon the people being the rule. The great advantage of this method is that the amount expended in protecting an industry can be closely estimated, while under our mode of a protective tariff it is impossible to tell what it costs. We only know that a protective tariff enhances the price of the protected article to every consumer. Hence small industries would be protected at an exorbitant cost. If a native industry produced only one-tenth of the quantity required for consumption in the country—the other nine-tenths having to be imported, a fifty per cent duty would take from the consumers an amount five times greater than the whole value of the home production, and it would be far cheaper for them to be taxed directly with a subsidy sufficient to enable the proprietor of the industry to run his mill or mine in open competition with the foreigner.

However, the question of "what shall I vote for?" does not include that of the best method of protection; both parties have a high protective tariff on their programme, and as the Democratic seems the preferable one, I shall vote for that.

Civil Service Reform.—I fail to see that the Republican party while in power showed any great disposition to promote this desirable reform. The Democrats, during the past four years, have done something towards it—their candidate for re-election to the Presidency is undoubtedly in favor of it.

The Republican party had a twenty years lease of power, uninterrupted since its birth. It has deteriorated as all political parties do from the constant exercise of power,—it is best to have a change.

The young men now coming to the front see and feel this. Look at the well-known names among the leaders of the Independent and Democratic movements, descendants of the founders of the Republican party. This means that fresh thought untrammelled by habits and precedents seems more clearly. Years ago a brother physician, eminent in his profession, said to me: "I tell you these 'young men' are not only far ahead of 'what we were at their age, but of us as we stand today. The young men of today have graduated in a school where 'they have been taught the concentrated results of the experience of our generation, which we occupied in our daily work, have only what we have gathered 'ourselves.' This is equally true in politics. But I fear that I have already exceeded the limits of space to which I am entitled, and with the statement that I shall vote for Cleveland and not contribute to the Republican party's campaign expenses this year, I must close.

C. F. CREHORE.

CIVIL SERVICE REFORM.

MR. HEMAN M. BURR DISCUSSES THE MIS-TAKES OF CLEVELAND.

To the Editor of the GRAPHIC:

I cheerfully accept your invitation to write a brief article for the GRAPHIC on the civil service reform issue in this campaign, merely remarking that the very able letter of Mr. James T. Allen, embracing this subject, leaves little to be said and scant laurels to be won by a second controversialist.

The only issue in the election of 1884, (aside from the question of personal fitness) was the civil service reform issue. This resulted from the very logic of the situation. After the nomination of Mr. Blaine, Governor Cleveland, who for some months past had been fast sinking into "innocuous desuetude" as a candidate for the presidency, suddenly forged to the front and was taken up by the Democracy, in response to the clamors of the bolting Republicans, who begged on their bended knees for this boon. The issue was framed and the candidate selected by these men, who forced the fighting all along the line and led the Democratic party—reluctant but too astounded to resist, to a successful issue of the conflict. In the meantime their candidate had done the country a good service. He had pointed, in language more forcible and picturesque than had ever before been used by any party leader in treating of the question, the enormous evils that result from the mere constitutional possibility of a president being a candidate for re-election. The issue went on and this vigorous letter-writer was duly inaugurated. At this time probably all of the sincere reformers believed the new president to be an unflinching friend of their cause. His letter of acceptance, the famous letter to George William Curtis which he had written, and the policy which that performance carried into the ranks of the hitherto "unterrified" Democracy, "very hungry and very thirsty" after their long exclusion from office, various other public utterances and even his course as governor of New York, all of which were widely inaugurated, had been in the main that of an honest friend of reform, singled him out among practical politicians as the one Moses who could lead the reformers out of their wilderness. Such was the promise of the situation. Let us look at the performance.

Mr. Cleveland's policy in the matter of removals and appointments was at first cautious—so cautious, in fact, that the Democracy from east and west cried out in their rage almost in the words of the famous letter to Curtis, "What are we here for if not for the offices?" The President's position as a party leader was soon seriously imperilled and his chance of renomination almost gone. The danger of re-electing a president, against which he had so solemnly warned his fellow-reformers, was apparently to be escaped, in his own case at least. But he changed his course in time. As offices became vacant they were filled with staunch Democrats and faithful Republicans were daily and hourly removed for political reasons only. "I have said, 'as offices became vacant,' though every intelligent civil service reformer repudiates as an abominable heresy, the idea that an office is properly vacant when the four years term of its incumbent has expired. In such cases, where the official is not one of those whose removal it is to assist in shaping and carrying out, the practical effect of the policy of the administration, every principle of the merit system demands his reappointment. The mill ground so merrily that in June, 1887, of 56,134 places in the gift of the president, 42,904 had been filled with new appointees. In the sixteen months that have elapsed since these tables were compiled, the exigencies of party political warfare have been so great and the importance to reform of securing the re-nomination of a reform president, has become so paramount, that the 112 officials who were then undisturbed in their places have shrunk and dwindled like Falstaff's eleven men in buckram. Mr. Lodge, in a paper which is perfectly fair and judicial in tone, puts the total number of offices which have been vacated by the new reform government in three years" at 100,000, and adds, "there are probably not 5000 officers outside the classified service who still hold over from the former administrations" (May, 1888).

It is idle to say in answer to these figures, that Mr. Cleveland has enforced the law covering the classified service, or that he has had "many obstacles to encounter," as his latest apologist, Congressman Burnett puts it. That part of Mr. Lambert's argument, which pleads for the president's re-election on the ground that having filled all the offices with spoilsmen on the spoils principle there will be no harm left for him to do in a second term, (Mr. Lambert's own words are, "The changes under President Cleveland have been so extensive that many more cannot be made should he be re-elected," may safely be left to take care of itself. No one ever expected a president of the United States to do anything but enforce a law which he found upon the statute book, President Arthur, who never pretended to be a reformer, not only rigidly enforced the law in its letter, but so far respected its spirit as to save the first board of commissioners from the blunder of appointing an old spoilsman to the responsible post of examiner and to prevent the assessment, direct or indirect, of office holders during the campaign of 1884. As to the obstacles which the president has encountered, I should like to ask if reformers ought not to be made of sterner stuff than to raise a wailing pitiful as this. Did any one think that the reform of the civil service could be brought to an issue of successful practical accomplishment before obstacles had been met and beaten down and conquered? The greatest and only invincible obstacle was Mr. Cleveland's ambition. Had he stood manfully by his guns he might have died a martyr to the cause, and what cause is worth fighting for that does not make its martyrs?—he might have failed of securing a renomination, but he would have left his name high on the roll of sturdy, manful, American presidents, close by the side of the Adamses, fathers and sons, who never shrink from doing their full duty, because of the effect it might have on their political fortunes. Moreover, he was wrong in his forecast of the effect which loyalty to the cause of reform would have upon his re-election, just as he was wrong when he wrote the letter recommending Col. Fellows to the people of New York as a fit person to serve them in the office of district attorney, and just as he was wrong when he decided that evil was more potent than good, and so left light to live in darkness. Like Browning's lost leader, he has left us "just for a handful of silver, just for a ribbon to stick in his coat." As to the reformers who are engaged in the holy work of re-electing him, who, like Schurz, after giving the best of reasons for voting against him, decide to vote for him, what shall be said to them? When the long struggle for reform shall be ended and the day won, as won it will be, no man under the stars and stripes, after false gods, or fall out of the ranks in the long, toilsome march—they, followers of the lost leader, will have no voice in our "Deum. Alas! that they may not say: 'We shall march prospering, not through his presence, but through his shadow.'"

Songs may inspire us, not from his love; Deeds will be done, while he boasts his quick wit. Still bidding crone, whom the red head aspire; Blot out his name, then, record one lost soul. One task more declined, one more foot-path untrod. One more triumph for devils, and sorrow for angels. One wrong more to man, one more insult to God!"

TARIFF, PROGRESS AND WEALTH.

OUR HISTORY UNDER REVENUE AND UN-DER PROTECTIVE TARIFFS.

To the Editor of the GRAPHIC:

There can be no doubt of the intent of the framers of the tariff bills of 1789 and 1816: it was, in the words of Clay, tariff for revenue, with discrimination for protection; and innocuous as the rates adopted may seem, gaged by the conditions of 1816, or of today, the fathers who made and enacted these tentative measures intended to give such protection to the artificers of those days as would enable them to establish industries in competition with European producers. The objects aimed at in the tariff act of 1789 are clearly indicated in the first section, "Whereas it is necessary for the support of the government . . . and the encouragement and protection of manufactures," etc. This is well supplemented by the remarks of Mr. Madison: "I think some of the propositions may be productive of revenue, and some may protect our domestic manufactures." That these objects were always kept in view by the statesmen of that time is further indicated in the last message to Congress of Washington: "Congress has repeatedly and not without success, directed their attention to the encouragement of manufactures. The object is of too much consequence not to insure a continuation of their efforts." Mr. Hamilton, Secretary of the Treasury, in his well-known report to Congress says: "The embarrassments which have obstructed the progress of our external trade have led to serious reflections on the necessity of enlarging the sphere of our domestic commerce." Thus do the notable utterances incident to the passage of the two first tariff acts all breathe the same spirit, the determination to build domestic industries upon the firm foundations of a protective tariff. As a direct result of this policy, embodied in the bill of 1789, the balance of trade, as measured by imports and exports, which in the seven years ending 1791, was over fifty million dollars against us, was, in seven years beginning 1795, changed to a balance in our favor of nearly ninety million dollars. Jefferson succinctly expresses the whole case when he asks, in his message of 1806, "Shall we suppress the impost and give that advantage to foreign, over our domestic manufactures?" In recommending the additional duties which the working of the tariff of 1789 showed to be necessary for the protection of home producers, the committee of the House to which President Jefferson's message relating to manufactures was referred, say "A nation erects a solid basis for the support and maintenance of its independence and prosperity whose policy is to draw from its native resources all articles of the first necessity." The tariff of 1816 was passed after long discussions, during which the need for still further protecting native manufactures was clearly stated by President Madison and others.

So great had been the country's prosperity under the fostering influences of protection that President Jackson was enabled in 1835, to inform Congress that the entire national debt was paid. Very soon, however, the effects of the lower tariff compromise act of 1833 were unmistakably shown; wages were generally reduced, and monetary distress prevailed in every branch of industry. By the end of President Van Buren's administration the revenues had become so greatly reduced, owing to the want of confidence among domestic producers, and the consequent diminution of the absorbing capacity of the home market, that the treasury, which had been burdened by a surplus under the protective tariffs prior to 1833, became greatly embarrassed; funds had to be raised by borrowing expedients; even that most desperate of all, borrowing money wherever to repay borrowed money. No magician's wand was ever more potential in transforming barrenness into profusion than was the protective policy in the tariff of 1842, in bringing about smiling plenty in place of the bankrupt condition induced by the tariff for revenue of 1833. This is matter of history and requires no further proof, and no argument for its substantiation. Those who deny it read history with jaundiced eyes; the same distorted vision as that which prompted the Southern slaveholders and their Northern doughface allies to demand, in presence of the palpable benefits accruing from the act of 1842, a further experiment in the direction of a tariff for revenue.

Gen. Jackson well forecasts existing conditions today when he says, "Draw from agriculture this superabundant labor, employ it in mechanism and manufactures, thereby creating a home market for your breadstuffs, and distributing labor to the most profitable account, and benefits to the country will result. Take from agriculture in the United States 900,000 men, women and children, and you will at once give a home market for more breadstuffs than all Europe now furnishes us with." The extraordinary provision here shown is made evident when we reflect that of the total production of cereals, amounting in 1886 to more than one thousand million dollars' worth, 95 per cent was consumed in this land of plenty, through the influence of that diversification of industries which Jackson so ardently recommended.

Advocates of protection need have no fear of the fullest rehearsal of the country's history under protection, and under a tariff for revenue. In the ten years of the horizontal revenue tariff of 1827 to 1837 our material interests made little progress; distrust and failure were the prevailing conditions. Per contra, amongst a thousand evidences of abundant wealth, the ten years 1877 to 1887 saw the construction of 71,354 miles of railroad, costing $2,500,000,000; the value of the tonnage carried advancing from $4,980,150,000 to $13,043,250,000. In order to fully realize the significance of this statement, it should be remembered that in 1887-8, the total value of all the merchandise imports and exports of the United Kingdom, with its revenue tariff, was but $3,430,000,000. Thus we see that with full possession of the object of the free trader's fondest dreams, the ne plus ultra of his hopes, the markets of the world, the United States, under the protection of Britain is about one third the value of the domestic products of the United States conveyed from one point to another, on our own railroads.

That no page of our history need be veiled by those who attribute to the influence of protection the unequalled progress which has marked our career since the close of the war, is amply attested by a comparison of the lamentable state into which the country was plunged by the tariff for revenue of 1846 and of 1857, with the condition before the enactment of those measures, and since the last revenue tariff was repealed.

Just as the framers of the Mills bill proposed, so did the men who passed the revenue tariff of 1846 intend to put a period upon the policy of protection. Their intention was no intention of accomplishing the end sought, at one stroke; so intimated were the doctrinaires of that day with their designs, and their theories, that facts were calmly pushed aside with the sublime unconcern of the fanatic. Notwithstanding that the $16,888,967 surplus in the treasury, the result of the four years of protection from 1842 to 1846 had been metamorphosed during the first four years under the tariff for revenue only of 1846, into a deficit of $52,108,144; although the national debt had been reduced in the period (1842-1846) from $32,742,922 to $15,550,202; and while in the next four years, under the revenue tariff, the debt had been increased to $63,452,773, these revenue reformers were so fascinated by their fine-spun doctrines that they insisted upon trying a further reduction of duties.

Debt is not usually regarded as evidence of great prosperity, and those who deny that our present exalted position among the nations, in material resources, is largely due to the policy of protection, should explain why, under the tariff for revenue of 1846 and 1857, the national debt, which, as we have seen, was reduced under protection, and which in 1846 amounted to $15,550,202, had become in 1861 $60,580,873. It should be remembered, that during this same period the wealth of the country had been materially added to by the gold discoveries in California.

The deplorable state of affairs in the years 1857-1861, under the lowest scale of duties in recent years, is still fresh in the recollection of many now in the prime of life; that was an era of cheapness; everything was cheap, except the credit of the nation; the condition of that was exhibited in 1860, when the Secretary of the Treasury offered for sale $3,000,000 in Treasury notes; only $200,000 was obtained, and that at a discount of twelve per cent. That was a "condition" which was the logical outcome of a "theory." Compare for a moment, that condition, the fruit of the theory which so dazzles the imagination of our tariff reformers, and which again supplies the pretext for further reform experiments, with the awful condition of owning a surplus!

We are told that we are still groaning under war taxes; let us see how this mutter stands, and compare the average rate of duty per centum on all imports, in four years immediately following the war, with the same during the past four years, as follows:

1868,	46.36	1885,	30.74
1869,	44.75	1886,	30.29
1870,	44.92	1887,	31.34

It should be borne in mind that sugar and rice, two necessities in every household, contributed some $20,000,000 toward swelling the average last year. As shown by Mr. Rudolph Blankenburg, "we raise less than ten per cent of the sugar consumed in this country; the import duty amounts to $200 for every acre planted, equal to one dollar for every man, woman and child of the population."

"The wage earner receiving $2 a day needs as much sugar to sweeten his tea or coffee as the President at $150 a day," yet the Mills bill retains 22 per cent more duty on sugar than the sugar growers stated in 1881 was enough protection for them. "The President uses $100 worth of clothing to the wage-earners $5, and the Mills bill places wool on the free list."

It seems necessary to point out that the object in stating the comparative reductions in the revenues by the Democrats and Republicans was purely illustrative. Inasmuch as tariff reformers assume that the Democratic party can be depended upon to reform the tariff and reduce the revenue, it seems fair to point out that in eleven years since the war the Democratic party has reduced the revenue $6,308,993, and the Republican party in eleven years $362,504,569.

It is pertinent also to state, which we do after a careful reading of both measures, that while the Senate bill is an honest, and a comprehensive effort to revise and reform the tariff, and to reduce the revenue, the Mills bill is one of the most clumsy, inconsequential legislative propositions ever introduced into Congress as a party measure; and that as a means of reducing the revenue, it is open to serious question whether it would not have precisely the opposite effect. President Madison's words are still true as when spoken in 1809, and the conditions indicated are those which would be favored by the enactment of the Senate bill. He says "the face of our country presents everywhere the evidence of laudable enterprise, of extensive capital and of durable improvement. In a cultivation of the materials, and the extension of useful manufactures . . . we behold a rapid diminution of our dependence on foreign supplies." This sentiment harmonizes with Poor's pregnant sentences, "We cannot set up manufacturing establishments unless we say to those who are to operate them, that the difference in labor in the United States and the Old World shall be made up to them by a system of protective duties." In agriculture, the adequate protection in the burdens resting upon the soil of England, our great purchaser. We cultivate an acre of wheat, harvest it and deliver the product at a railroad station for $6.50. The Englishman has to pay in rent and tithes $8.75 per acre before he can drop the seed into the ground. By a system of protective duties we must extend a similar advantage to all other departments of our industry."

To epitomize: under protection, the national debt had been all paid off before the compromise act of 1833 unsettled confidence; the tariff of 1842 effected a reduction of the debt, which had been again increased, of $17,190,720; the revenue tariff of 1846-1857 increased the debt from $15,550,202 to $60,580,873, nearly six-fold; under the protective policy since 1861, the gigantic debt caused by the war, exceeding $3,000,000,000, has been reduced to $1,000,000,000, leaving us to-day with the lowest ratio of debt to national wealth of any of the great nations of the earth. Well may we ask; shall we make a change? Shall we clutch at the fleeting shadow, when the substance is already within our grasp?

THE ISSUES DISCUSSED.

Hon. Levi C. Wade, Mr. J. R. Leeson, Dr. C. F. Crehore and Councilman Heman M. Burr discuss the campaign issues this week. Mr. Wade presents the importance of electing Republicans, and in the course of his letter takes a wider view of the interests of the country than has yet been presented, by referring to the importance of fostering our trade with Mexico and South America, which is the only wise American policy. Mr. Wade says that for eleven years New England has held a back seat in the House of Representatives, and attributes it to the overshadowing influence of the South. But is not the cause of this greater influence of the South in Congress due to the fact that the South sends her ablest and most progressive men to Congress? In the North, on the other hand, the men of first class ability are engaged in business, are carrying out great railroad enterprises, or at the head of our great manufacturing industries?

Dr. Crehore takes an opposite view from Mr. Wade, and answers the question "For What Shall I Vote?" from an Independent standpoint. The points he makes are forcibly presented, and will be interesting to the reader. What he says about the young men is especially suggestive.

Councilman Burr discusses "The Mistakes of Cleveland," and shows how far he has fallen short from the standard of absolute perfection demanded of the ideal civil service reformer. As a mere matter for speculation, it would be interesting to guess just how many followers President Cleveland, or, in fact, any president would have, if he should give an absolutely perfect reform administration. It would be a very select party, and there is but little doubt that it would be so ridiculously small as not to have a single representative in a nominating convention. Nevertheless, the cause is growing in popular favor, and practices that were tolerated in former years are now either concealed or apologized for, if they come to the light. No matter what candidate is elected, he will have to pay greater respect to reform principles than any president has yet shown.

Mr. J. R. Leeson, who is probably the most intelligent supporter of the tariff system in New England, and who seems to have all the facts and figures needed to support his arguments at his fingers' end, closes the list of contributions by a comparison of our history under revenue and under protective tariffs. Mr. Leeson, we infer from his remarks on rice and sugar, is in favor of reducing the tariff on necessities and retaining the duties on luxuries, which is a policy of which even the most thorough tariff reformers will approve.

As the GRAPHIC does not aspire to be considered an organ, it has been able to present all sides of the campaign issues to its readers, and the popularity of such a plan has been shown by the great demand for extra papers. Probably just as many Newton people will vote right, as though they had never read the arguments of the other side, and they will certainly be able to vote much more intelligently, which is the main thing in such an election as that of next Tuesday.

MAYOR KIMBALL and the city council will have the unanimous support of the citizens, in their effort to oppose any plan of charging a portion of the cost of removing the Boston & Albany grade crossings to the city. The grade crossings should be done away with as speedily as possible, but the corporation should be made pay all the expense. As Alderman Petee says, the greatest danger is caused by the through business of the road, which is of no benefit to Newton.

The petitions for the commutation of the death sentence of Mrs. Robinson were presented to the Governor's Executive Council on Wednesday. One of them was from Mayor Kimball and members of the city government of Newton. A number of witnesses were examined and Mr. J. B. Goodrich, one of the condemned woman's counsel, made an eloquent argument in her behalf. The case has been taken under advisement.

The Democrats will hold a Mass Caucus at City Hall, Saturday evening, at 8 o'clock, to nominate two candidates for representatives to the General Court.

The Prohibitionists have nominated candidates for representatives, the nominating committee having brought in the names of Mr. Nathan Pike of West Newton and Mr. James Cutler of Newton Centre.

THE INDEPENDENT RALLY.

SOME VIGOROUS SPEECHES BY ABLE SPEAKERS.

The Independent rally in Elliot Hall, Thursday evening, drew out a large audience, and as the speakers and some fifty members of the committee of 100 came upon the platform, they were enthusiastically cheered.

Mr. John S. Farlow presided, and on rising to speak received a hearty greeting. He said that the meeting carried him back to old town days, when the citizens met together to choose officers, and the questions asked of a candidate were, "Is he honest, is he straightforward, is he a man of integrity and ability?" The town had rarely made a mistake, and the same questions should be asked in a State and national election. Up to four years ago he had been a Republican, but when the party had sunk so low as to nominate such a man as Blaine, he, with many others, had left it. Some who detested the man, and his lack of principle, had not the courage of their convictions, and voted with the party; others took to the woods and voted for prohibition, while others voted for that great and able man, Grover Cleveland (applause) and elected him, and will do it again. (applause). Republicans had then predicted the ruin of the country if he was elected, and the utter failure of their predictions must have made them feel pretty small. He is a true man, straightforward, honest, of unimpeached integrity and ability. Cleveland has the courage of his convictions, and I hardly think the man on the other side has. The character of Blaine is spread over the country, while the nominal candidate has to take a back seat. If Cleveland is elected we will not have any Uncrowned King, any Plumed Knight, at his elbow, to dictate a policy to him. Cleveland has shown himself equal to any emergency, a true American in every way. But there is another point in the election—we want a congress to support the President, to assist him in carrying out his ideas. In the Ninth District we have got a young man, of straightforward character, of strict honesty, who deserves to be elected, as he will be. The free trade scare is about exploded, and no one will longer be frightened by it. The present protective policy takes money out of the pockets of 900 persons out of every 1000, to put in the pockets of the other ten. Is there any person who does not believe that if a manufacturer can save 25 cents a day on the pay of his workmen, by going to Canada, or Hungary, or Poland, or Italy after them, he will not do so? (Laughter and applause) We have abundant evidence that he will, and manufacturers do not pay more wages than they are obliged to, in spite of the talk about the tariff being framed for the sole benefit of the laboring man.

Mr. Farlow then introduced Mr. Robert M. Morse, Jr., as one of the most recent accessions to the Mugwump band, and he was received with deafening applause. Mr. Morse read a carefully prepared address, giving his reasons for being an Independent, and saying that the Republican party had left him, as he stood exactly where he did four and eight years ago. In the course of his address he paid his respects to Congressmen Long, by using the deadly parallel column on his speeches in Congress and elsewhere on the question of the taxes on whiskey and tobacco. The audience seemed to enjoy the dissection, and at the close of his speech he received three cheers and a tiger, twice repeated.

Mr. Morse was followed by Mr. Winslow Warren of Dedham and Mr. G. S. Howe of the senior class of Harvard, each of whom received a very hearty reception.

DEBATE AT NEWTON CENTRE.

IS THE WAGE EARNER BENEFITED BY THE PROTECTIVE POLICY?

A large and enthusiastic meeting of the combined forces of the Republicans and Independents of Newton Centre was held in Associates' Hall, Wednesday evening. In last week's GRAPHIC the secretary of the committee of one hundred challenged the chairman of the Republican ward committee of Ward 6 to meet him in open debate on either of the following questions: "Would the Mills bill, if it became a law, tend to increase the general prosperity of the United States?" "Is the wage earner benefited by the protective policy as embodied in the present tariff?" "Would the provisions of the Mills bill tend more to the general prosperity of the United States than those of the Senate bill?" The last question was selected for argument by the committee, and Mr. Robert H. Gardiner was introduced by Mr. Heman M. Burr, who presided as chairman, as the champion of the Republican side.

On the platform was seated prominent representatives of both political parties. Mr. Gardiner pointed out the inconsistencies in the Mills bill, and the sectional preferences of the Democratic party, as represented by the bill in question. He spoke of the different industries and how they would be affected by the Mills bill, mentioning cotton, sugar, lime, rice and glass, giving statistics in support of his statements. Mr. C. Howard Wilson, the secretary of the committee of one hundred, replied, and in opening his defence said it was not, as the preceding speaker had represented, a question of free trade or protection, but a question of the comparative benefits of the Mills bill and the Senate bill. Admitting that the Mills bill was not perfect, it would benefit the whole country, while the Senate bill would not be accepted by any section. The discussion was continued by Messrs. Gardiner and Wilson, each gentlemen replying to and endeavoring to refute the arguments of the other.

BOARD OF HEALTH.

LEAD SERVICE PIPES AND MR. MAQUE'S CONTRACT.

The board of health met at the City Hall, Tuesday afternoon, all the members present.

Mr. Wiswall reported that the cess-pool had been thoroughly rebuilt in the rear of A. J. Fiske's shop to the satisfaction of the persons in the vicinity.

Dr. Frisbie for the special committee appointed to investigate the safety to health from the use of iron and lead pipes in carrying city water, reported that there was no danger to health from iron pipe as generally used. If water is allowed to stagnate in iron pipes for a long time it will become colored reddish by oxidized iron, but not necessarily from that cause be deleterious to health. Lead pipe on the contrary is dangerous to health.

Instances of lead poisoning through the use of lead pipe are by no means rare, a notable case being that of Sheffield, England, where several hundred persons were poisoned through the use of lead pipe. Newton city water is deficient in the metallic chlorides, and by consequence there is greater chance of lead poisoning where the lead pipe is used. The committee would advise further investigation and analysis of the water before finally deciding on a matter of so much importance to the citizens of the city.

A letter from Samuel W. Abbott, secretary of the state board of health, in reply to a letter from Dr. Frisbie, gave his opinions in regard to the use of iron and lead pipes. A great many water supplies, he says, have no effect on lead, but one cannot tell beforehand what the effect of a given water would be, or when it may become injurious on account of some change in its quality. As a general rule, the iron pipe is the safer of the two.

Councilman Burr reported for the committee on the revision of the contract for the removal of house offal, making no recommendations, but stating that in the opinion of the committee the contractor was losing a sum equal to the amount asked for in the application for an increase. There have been numerous complaints, particularly in the southern portion of the city, and the terms of the contract have not been fully lived up to, although in some sections of the city the contractor has done more than his contract called for. The committee, therefore, makes no recommendation and leaves the matter in the hands of the board for final action.

In regard to the report of the committee, Mr. Burr said, giving his personal opinion, that he believed it poor economy for the city to pay a sum equal to a satisfactory performance of the work at the hands of the contractor. If he believed that the complaints would be reduced to a minimum, he should favor the increase as asked for.

Mr. Fuller said in regard to the collection of offal, the contractor should be well paid in order to have good service. There has been an increase in the collection. In my opinion, we should grant a liberal sum to the contractor and hold him to the exact conditions of the contract. Dr. Frisbie coincided with the views of the committee. If in their judgment an increase in the sum paid to the contractor is necessary, I should vote for it.

Alderman Nickerson suggested that if the increase was granted, and the conditions were lived up to, the contractor should not be paid the full amount called for under the contract. The board voted to grant $50 additional per month to the contractor, with the understanding that the time of contract would be carried out faithfully, the extra sum not to be paid until the board was satisfied that the work had been performed. The board adjourned at 5:55 o'clock.

The Ludwig Concert.

The name of Wm. Ludwig shall be spoken when Erin awakes and her fetters are broken. The bard of old reviewed and revived the glories of the past. To lead Wm. Ludwig has re-strung the harp, and struck again those chords which make the Irish heart pulsate afresh. The dark chain of silence has been thrown over the deep. Irish music has been revived, the secret ecstasy—the sweet, beguiling melody. A debt of gratitude is due the patriotic bard. On Monday evening, Nov. 19, 1888, the gems of Irish melody will be rendered by the Wm. Ludwig concert company, in Elliot Hall, Newton. Those who fail to avail themselves of such an opportunity, at the very door of Newton, will miss a treat, a privilege, the loss of which will be the deprivation of a life time. The Wm. Ludwig concert company possesses all the artistic talent requisite for the rendition, the true interpretation of this exquisite soul-inspiring music. Mr. Ludwig is a host in himself; he is to the lyric art what Irving, Bernhard, Salvini and Coquelin are to the dramatic. Wm. Ludwig stands out pre-eminently grand. It is with sincere pleasure I state that the leading citizens of Boston proposed inviting Mr. Ludwig to a banquet in recognition of his patriotism, the restoring "the lost chord," but though glory be gone, and though hope fade away, thy name, loved Erin, shall live in his song. Newton will guarantee "the bard" "one bumper at parting," by the overflowing of an overflowing house. We bespeak a cordial and worthy reception of so renowned an artist.

MASON & HAMLIN

The cabinet organ was introduced in its present form by Mason & Hamlin in 1841. Other makers followed in the manufacture of these instruments, but the Mason & Hamlin Organs have always maintained their supremacy as the best in the world. Mason & Hamlin offer, as demonstration of the unequalled excellence of their organs, the fact that at all of the great World's Exhibitions, since that of Paris, 1867, in competition with the greatest pianos, they have invariably taken the highest honors. Illustrated catalogue $22 to $900, free.

Mason & Hamlin do not hesitate to make the extraordinary claim for their pianos, that they are superior to all others. They recognize the excellence achieved by other leading makers in the art of piano building, but still claim superiority. This they attribute solely to the remarkable improvement introduced by them in the year 1859, and now known as the "MASON & HAMLIN PATENT STRIKE" system, by which the use of which is secured the greatest possible refinement of tone, together with the most perfect action and touch. A circular, containing testimonials from three hundred purchasers, musicians, and teachers, sent together with descriptive catalogue, to any applicant. Pianos and Organs sold for cash or easy payments; also rented.

There was nothing of a sectarian character in the public schools, and separate or parochial schools were unnecessary so far as any improper religious influence was concerned. The public school system was associated with the development and prosperity of the country. Separate schools should not be sustained or in part supported at the public expense.

In reply I will say that I take pleasure in recommending him to you as a thoroughly well qualified apothecary in every sense of the word, equally at home in dispensing or manufacturing, obliging to his associates and courteous to customers. He is thoroughly honest, and temperate. You can rely upon him at all times, with the assurance that he will work for his employer's best interests. He was in my employ for two years and I have known him intimately for over eight years. Did I want a clerk, he is the one, above all others, whom I should desire to employ. As I always desire others to give me their candid opinion of an applicant, I am candid with you and remain.

Yours respectfully,
ARTHUR HUDSON.

The recent suggestion emanating from the police department in regard to the creation of a fund for pensions for disabled and retired officers in the service, is worthy of consideration. It is the custom in many of the larger cities to provide in some way for the aged, and it is only a matter of a short time now, when some of the patrolmen will have continued on the force 15 years, the time necessary in most cities for retirement. On Tuesday evening last, a create a reserve fund, using the officers' witness fees as a means of swelling the amount, in a few years a respectable amount will be available for the payment of a pension in such case or cases as the circumstances should seem to require.

St. Bernard's Catholic Lyceum Association was organized Feb. 1, 1888, for the purpose of developing the literary tastes and ambitions of its members, and in order to promote the study of the classics among the individuals in an organization of this character, developing friendship and fraternal feeling. During the month of April succeeding the organization of the society, a lecture and concert was given under its auspices. It was a gratifying success and led to the preparation and earnest work incident to the preparation of a dramatic entertainment. The popular drama, "Pizarro," written by Richard Brinsley Sheridan, was presented in the City Hall, the characters being sustained by members of the association. The performance was very creditable to amateurs, and evidenced in many instances an excellent conception of the characters. The play was well staged, appropriately costumed, and well acted. The acting being quite smooth and free from glaring defects. Wm. M. Duane made an excellent "Pizarro," and the brutal Spaniard, "Pizarro," was well impersonated by John S. Lester. The chief of the "Pizarro" was well sustained by James R. Condrin, and Miss Minnie Barry gave a very intelligent rendering of her lines in the character of "Elvira." The other parts were, on the whole, very fair, and the participants in the drama are to be congratulated upon the success sustained. The following gives the cast of characters: Pizarro, Wm. M. Duane; Ataliba, John S. Lester; Don Alonzo, Mr. Cox; Orozmo, James Harley; Old Man, James R. Condrin; Topaz, a boy, Master John Foristall; High Priest, Thomas C. Donagan; Orano, officer, Joseph Condrin; Elvira, Miss Minnie Barry; Cora, wife of Alonzo, Miss Minnie Fahy; chorists, warriors, etc., Spaniards—Pizarro, John S. Lester; Valverde, Daniel J. Linahan; Don Alonzo, Wm. M. Duane; Don Alonzo, John Duane; Davilla, Michael McDonald; Gomez, Wm. H. Burnes; Sentinel, Thomas J. Klock; officers, soldiers, etc., etc.; scene, Peru. There was a very large audience present.

Charles Parkhurst, editor of Zion's Herald, officiated, assisted by the pastor, Rev. Mr. Knox. The Dalhousie quartet rendered music. On Sunday morning, Rev. H. N. Barnum, a session of the American board of missions, from Harpoot, Turkey, preached in the Congregational church. He gave a very interesting and encouraging account of the work in Turkey, showing how the gospel was being transformed into the heart and life of those who receive it. The men who have been ignorant and debased, dishonest and cruel, become honest and faithful; the women who were thoughtless, even as the men regarded them, little if any better than the beasts, learn that they also may be the children of God. Then the arched havelis are changed into homes; thus the gospel proves glad tidings wherever it is received. The annual collection was taken for the A. B. C. F. M. by the sermon, and amounted to $1,319.00.

At the Sunday evening prayer meeting, in the Congregational chapel, Rev. Mr. Walter of the West Central African Mission of the A. B. C. F. M., who was present, was asked to speak of his experience in that new field. He was one of the first three who reached Ballundu, on their way to start a mission work in Bilie. At Ballundu they were detained by the natives, who warned them that they would be put to death if they proceeded further, and would not aid them to go. For a time they were kindly received at Ballundu; but later, after they had house built, language learned, and reduced to writing, and a school started, the king, through the influence of white traders who feared lest their dominion from whiskey and slaves should be diminished, told the missionaries that they must leave. From that time they were helpless against any plundering natives, and before they could start, nearly all their possessions were taken from them. But in a short time the king begged them to return, and now gladly listened to their teachings, feeling that they are truer friends than the traders.

The regular meeting of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union was held on Saturday afternoon, in the Congregational chapel parlors. After the opening devotional exercises, short reports were given of the State Union's annual meeting at Fall River, and the National annual meeting, just held in New York. At both of which meetings the Union had been represented. A report was also given of a visit to Sherborn Prison by members of the Union. During the summer, the Flower Mission of this Union has sent flowers, and written Bible verses each week, to Sherborn, which the women in the Reformatory were said to prize highly. The last time these were sent for this season, a party of ladies of the Union went to distribute them by invitation of the Superintendent. These went over the buildings, seeing the inmates engaged in various kinds of work, in laundry, dairy, room for silk-worm culture, running sewing machines, or school-rooms. Here the women are taught many things, which if they go on reformed, will be helpful to them in future life. The ladies then went to the chapel where the inmates assemble night and morning for devotional exercises, consisting of responsive reading of the Scriptures, prayer and singing. All able are expected to attend, and most take part in these exercises. At this time were added the singing of "O rest in the Lord," and a short address, by the visitors, to which the women listened with evident interest, and not a few showed that their hearts were moved by the sweet music and the earnest words. As the prisoners passed the platform on their way out of the chapel, each passed, and as she took the new verse and the bouquet from those who had brought them, repeated some verse of those that they understood. A very dry, cold, failed to do this, but of the 220 women, not over a dozen. Some of the verses were brokenly repeated, and some incorrectly; but even then they gave the meaning, showing that they understood it. The ladies felt that it paid for their work. This Union has sent in its Flower Mission work, this season, 1763 bouquets and verses.

On Sunday afternoon Dr. A. P. Peabody gave a very delightful talk to the young women on the Bible. The chapel was well filled, not a few of the women being present. Dr. Peabody has a talent for interesting young people, and whenever he goes among them he always receives a hearty welcome, and in going leaves some lesson of encouragement.

Saturday was Mrs. C. C. Bragdon's birthday. She was pleasantly awakened that morning by a letter from a daughter, a serenade given by a double quartette of the young women. In the evening she entertained her serenaders at her home, in a most delightful manner. Mr. Sheppard presented her with a novel and unique birthday cake of gingerbread over three feet in diameter and ornamented with many candles.

On Wednesday evening Halloween was celebrated at Lasell with a sheet and pillow case masquerade. The gymnasium was prettily decorated, and novel programs were distributed to the phantom masqueraders. In one corner a gypsy fortune teller held forth, in another, curious maidens fished in the sands for the name of their future husbands, while bobbing for apples, and other tricks and games made the evening a merry one.

The Newtonville Literary and Social Club gave a reception and dance to their parents and friends at Cycle Hall, Wednesday evening. The reception was from 8 to 9 and the dance from 9 to 11. The floor manager was Mr. Charles H. Tainter, Esq. H. P. Cook, A. E. Billings, J. Martin, and H. W. Brigham; music was furnished by Buttrick's orchestra of Boston, and Mr. Barrow conducted. MEMORIAL TO R. M. PULSIFER.

A Feeling and Discriminating Analysis of his Life.

REV. JOHN WORCESTER SKETCHES EX-MAYOR PULSIFER'S CAREER.

The memorial service in the Swedenborgian church at Newtonville, Sunday afternoon, was a remarkable one, in the number of prominent citizens of Newton which it brought together, to pay tribute to the memory of ex-Mayor Pulsifer. A church of double the seating capacity would have been easily filled. Mayor Kimball and the ex-Mayors of the city, members of the first city government, and of the city government under Mayor Pulsifer, members of the school board, of the present city government and of former boards, were given seats in the front of the church, together with the members of the water board, of the Cottage Hospital board of trustees, members of the editorial staff, heads of departments and employees of the Boston Herald, and many business associates of the deceased.

The pulpit platform of the church was decorated with potted plants, cut flowers and ferns, and the floral tributes were arranged in front, at the side of the pulpit. A very beautiful design from the Swedenborgian Society was composed of callas, roses, crysanthemums and ferns. At each side of the arch in the rear of the pulpit two wreaths were suspended, one composed of violets and the other of pansies. The city government of Newton sent a beautiful anchor, designed by Mr. Thomas Galvin, and composed of ivy leaves, English violets and Cornelia Cook roses. It was surrounded with a white dove, and encircled by a chain of immortelles. It bore the inscription, "City of Newton." The Newton Club sent a very handsome column, of ivy leaves, violets and lilies of the valley, encircled by a wreath of roses.

The services opened with an organ voluntary by the organist of the church. The chant, "I Will Lift Up Mine Eyes to the Mountains," was then rendered by a mixed quartet comprising Mrs. Alice J. Osborne, soprano; Miss Hattie C. McLean, alto; Mr. W. T. Meek, tenor; and Mr. Clement B. Shaw, bass. Rev. John Worcester, pastor of the church, read the 103d Psalm, and the quartet sang the hymn "O Paradise, O Paradise. Who Doth Not Crave for Rest?" The memorial address was then delivered by Rev. John Worcester, who spoke as follows:

was born on what was called the Lee place, East Newton, the 24th of June, 1843. He lived on that and the adjoining farm until he was 4 years old, when his parents removed to Saxtonville. There he remained until he was 17, when the family again removed to Newton. He was slight in body, but active and generally well, with the exception of a disturbance in the head for about a year when he was 8 years of age, which occasionally caused partial paralysis. He was quick and intelligent, easily standing at the head of his classes in school, and was always affectionate, trustworthy and universally beloved. He was early interested in religious teachings, and at 14 joined the Congregational church at Saxtonville, retaining his membership until he was transferred to the Eliot church at Newton. In 1860 he was married to Clara Stacy Keyes of Newton, and the following year, together with his wife, he joined the New Church society in Newtonville, of which he continued a beloved member to the time of his death. His home from the time of his marriage was with his wife's parents, in Newton, and afterward in Newtonville, until the year 1874, when he purchased the beautiful estate in Abundant where, with brief interruptions, he has since resided. Within this simple framework of circumstances his social and religious life and character were formed.

Of this life and character no one who was acquainted with him can speak without the warmest affection. He was modest and unassuming, and seemed constantly on the watch for opportunities to do kind and helpful deeds for others. His sympathy with distress was keen, and the abundant reserve of his mind and purse were always at its service. When others were struggling under heavy burdens, it was a delight to him to offer some plan by which the burdens might be made easy, and even to shoulder them himself if he could contrive no better way. His interest in both public and private charities was wide, and his beneficence most generous. He was, for instance, one of the most active promoters of the plan of a cottage hospital for the city of Newton, and was a member of the board of trustees. This last summer his was one of severe business trial to him, as member of the executive committee of the hospital, he attended the monthly meetings regularly while others were away, on one occasion being the only member present. It has been to sit in the chair and hear plans discussed for raising the $300 or $4000 which were needed for the enlargement of the building, and feel that he was not able justly to assume the responsibility himself.

In the church he has been a constant and reverent worshipper, saying little, but testifying his love by thoughtful benefits of every kind. He was careful not to injure the church by taking too large a share of its expenses, which sometimes required much self-restraint; he bore a generous proportion of them, and no lad was more ready than he to offer any humble service that might be needed. I think it was one cause of the pleasure that he always felt in his church relations that here he was allowed to be simply his own modest self, neither flattered nor pursued, but affectionately appreciated. To the general church also he rendered important services. He was president of its board of publications for several years; he was also a member of the board of directors of the theological school, and of the standing committee of the Massachusetts New Church Union, in all of which positions his practical good sense and his intelligent interest in the work to be done were highly esteemed by his associates.

His home life was delightful. He was quietly affectionate, innocent and pure-hearted, loving everything that could make his home beautiful and happy for his family and their friends. He loved the quiet of his home, and when there threw off with entire forgetfulness his business cares, and entered with all the zeal of a child into the enjoyment of the natural beauties and adornments of the place, and the home recreations, and shared with affectionate sympathy all the interests of his wife and children.

Mr. Pulsifer's business career began early. When his parents came back to Newton from Saxtonville he entered Comer's Commercial College, but had attended for a short time only when he was offered profitable work as a copyist, which he accepted. Very soon after, in 1861, he was invited by Mr. E. C. Bailey, proprietor of the Boston Herald, to accept permanent employment with him, and he then entered the office with him, and he has been closely associated ever since. Under Mr. Bailey's direction he was rapidly promoted to the position of cashier, Mr. Bailey valuing highly his fidelity, promptness and great capacity for business details. In 1865, Mr. Pulsifer, with four other young men in purchased a third interest in the business from Mr. Bailey, and in 1869 the same five bought the remainder of Mr. Bailey's interest, and became sole proprietors. From that time until last May the business was conducted under the name of R. M. Pulsifer & Co. On October 1871, Mr. George G. Bailey disposed of his interest in the property to his partners, and in January, 1873, Mr. Justin Andrews did likewise, leaving Mr. Pulsifer, Mr. E. B. Haskell and Mr. Charles H. Andrews in sole possession in equal shares. In the division of the responsibilities of the partnership, Mr. Pulsifer's department was always the business management, for which he had been specially designated by Mr. Bailey, the other partners assuming, respectively, the chief editorship and the gathering of the news of the day. It was an able firm, and under its guidance the paper improved in every way, and through the rapid expansion of its circulation and advertisements it became very profitable. It aimed especially to gather quickly and distribute widely the news of the day and its remarkable enterprise in this direction made it conspicuous throughout the country as a paper of news, and contributed greatly to its pecuniary success. In all this Mr. Pulsifer's abilities were of essential service. He was quick to detect the possibilities of improvement in the conduct of the paper, and in the methods of printing, stereotyping and distributing.

Under his care the mechanical preparation and distribution of the paper were so perfectly organized that not a moment would be lost after the reception of any important news in placing it before the public. In regard to all important steps relating to the other departments of the management of the paper also, Mr. Pulsifer's cool, clear judgment was always sought, and was of the greatest value. In addition to his regular business, and to many outside business enterprises of which more will be said presently, Mr. Pulsifer held some important public offices. In the first city government of Newton he was a member of the board of aldermen, and held the position of chairman of the committee on the city charter and ordinances, in which position his talent for arranging easy-working details of organization, and providing good forms to carry out the wishes of the community, were of permanent value to the city. In 1875 he was elected, by the concurrent vote of the city council, chairman of the board of water commissioners, and took an important part in the responsible work of providing and distributing pure water for the city of Newton. He was the fourth mayor of the city, holding the office for two terms, during the years 1880 and 1881. In all these positions his executive ability was marked, and he exerted his talents with simple-minded

REGARD FOR THE PUBLIC GOOD.

His policy was enlightened and liberal, and based upon practical grounds; and, though he never cared to make speeches, he was able and willing to give the reasons for his course, frankly and clearly. His kindness and good temper were everywhere felt in the many offices in which he formed a part. Through the trials of his life, even to the end, there was seldom a trace of bitterness in his personal feelings; it seemed to hurt his kind heart to have such a feeling enter, and he quickly dispelled it. He has been associated with him, in whatever capacity, will testify to his unflinching gentleness and courtesy.

In the beginning of Mr. Pulsifer's business life he was trained in Mr. Bailey's counting room to an easy mastery of the details of the management of the Herald. He had a remarkable capacity for them, and as the business grew and the details were multiplied, he used to say that it was nothing but a pleasure to him to sit down at his desk, with the great pile of morning letters before him, and rapidly dispose of them. His great capacity for this kind of work, a confidence in his ability to deal with business complications, which was in some respects an injury to him. The injury was augmented by the rapid increase of income from the successful paper with which he was connected. I fear it is true that the very rapid acquisition of wealth is an injury to all to whom it comes—to some in one way and to some in another. To him I think it was an injury in a peculiar way, which was this: As has already been said, one of the strongest traits of Mr. Pulsifer's character was his sympathy with those in distress, which took the practical form of thinking for them of the possible means of relief, and extending substantial assistance, if that were needed. When money became plenty with him, he showed a delightful desire to use it in ways that would be good for others, and many were the beneficent acts which were thoughtfully and considerably planned in his bounteous home. The same kindly sympathy was extended to men who were in distress in their business. A friend or an acquaintance, or sometimes even a stranger, who introduced himself, had only to tell a tale of need and ask his advice, to obtain from him sympathy, advice, and often substantial aid. There are many men today who feel deeply indebted and grateful to him for such assistance, but so frequently was his confidence misplaced and his bounty misused that the final impression on his own mind was one of

DEEP DISCOURAGEMENT.

"I have spent very many thousands of dollars in this way," he said a few months ago, "and I don't know that in a single instance has it done any good."

But the assistance he extended went further than this. Not only was he interested in struggling men, but in struggling enterprises as well, and in new enterprises which promised to be of public benefit. And here his confidence in his business ability and in his large pecuniary resources led him into an almost wasteful use of his talents. He would carry the load of an individual and of a company also—which he could often do for a time with ease—largely out of pure kindness, without having the means of knowing whether it would really do good in the end. He seemed never to cherish the expectation of extravagant returns from the outside enterprises in which he was engaged. He seemed rather to take them up from a pleasure in the business management of them, from desire to give relief to the burdened, or employment to the needy, and from hopes of general benefit to the public. Explaining about some of these undertakings several years ago, he said: "I do not advise anyone else to engage in these things; I think they will do some good, I put into them only what I can afford to lose." Of the enterprises thus undertaken, some were fairly successful, though in others he suffered heavy losses. And all the while his income was large, and he was making judicious and profitable investments. But in meeting the many demands upon him, it is no wonder, however deeply it may be regretted, that he made use of his ample credit as well as of his money. From the beginning of his career this was so in a degree. And in the very confidence which his prosperity inspired, he allowed his indebtedness to accumulate. Moreover, it must be added, or the truth will not be understood, that in the simplicity of his heart he allowed himself to be deceived with extraordinary facility. Men whom all his friends distrusted he trusted, and believed, and his kindly credulity greatly increased his burdens and his difficulties.

It needs no prophet now to see that these influences were tending toward disaster. Yet it is only a short six months since their unsuspecting victim realized that his affairs were so seriously involved that he must address himself with all his powers to adjust them. This he began to do without delay. But he had gone so far that his credit was nearly exhausted, and his means that time could no longer be had to turn to good advantage his already large but unwieldy investments.

UNWIELDY INVESTMENTS.

Some he sacrificed, and some he pledged. His unfinished enterprises he pressed toward a conclusion with all possible speed. But, together with this awakening came another, and that was the realization of the men he had trusted and the folly which he himself had displayed in his relation to them. His mortification at his own blindness and its disastrous consequences was intense.

His awakening was, if not complete, partial. And this he was hopeful he might do. He was ashamed of his over confidence in his abilities and in his judgment of men. He hated the prominent position which he had occupied, which had been a snare to him, and exposed him to the plunder of men who were not his friends. He longed to be free from all his present circumstances, to save a fraction of the business which was depending upon him for his occupation, to be modestly useful in it and to be able to enjoy in peace his family and his tried and trusty friends. And this he was hopeful he might do. His property was large and valuable. As he estimated it, it would cover all his liabilities of every kind, and still leave a moderate amount for his family. At any rate his resolution was taken, and he pursued it unflinchingly. He longed to spend the rest of his life in the very last in bringing this to pass. But already in the summer his strength was failing under the intensity of his efforts. Day by day he bent himself to the task, hoping every day for the solution of one problem or another, and feeling that he would hold out a little longer he must pass the hardest point, and then could begin to spare himself. But he was breaking fast, although his courage and resolution concealed the fact from all but his nearest friends, and he was weary and sleepless. Until lately he would come home from even the most trying labors and sleep soundly all night till the morning. But this relief was failing him. He began to be too tired to sleep. He never took any drug or induce sleep, but in the later hours of the night it came, as was described to me a fortnight ago, he slept the deep sleep of utter exhaustion, and looked to his anxious wife as if he were dying.

On Monday, the 15th of October, he left his chamber, and feeling that he was saying that his head felt so strangely that he must lie down. His head was cold and he was almost pulseless. He remarked that if such a state should continue, he could do nothing, and must give a full power of attorney.

which he was not able to do that night, but expected to the next day. Through two laborious days he struggled on, and came home on Wednesday night too tired to even go to sleep; his head no longer exhausted for any effort. Yet, even so, after lying still awhile, in response to the entreaties of a little niece for some one to play with her, his kind heart, which I believe never failed to do any kind deed which he could do, impelled him to rise and make the attempt to share her game. A cup of tea and a cracker were dinner and supper to him that night, which was sleepless till a short time before morning. He rose early, and was scarcely dressed when the telephone summoned him to an important business. He went without eating, and began his last day of harassing labor and care. A cup of tea at three o'clock is all the lunch he is known to have taken. Late in the afternoon he was sitting with his lawyer, awaiting the coming of a third person. He had said last spring that as soon as his son became of age he should make a new will, appointing him one of the executors. He had spoken of it also to his legal friend. The son's birthday was only six days before, and this was the first opportunity he had had. He turned to the lawyer and inquired whether he could not draw that will while they waited, adding that it would take only half a page of note paper. The will was drawn and executed. Soon after six he called at the Herald office to see if any letters had come for him. Thence he went to Young's Hotel, and wrote a letter to his wife, which I will read, made two other business calls—which apparently delayed him longer than he expected—and then took the 9 o'clock train for Abundant. This letter to his wife, omitting address and signature, is as follows:

"I ought to go to Springfield to-night, but I feel too tired. If I come home I fear you will be worried and think I ought to send for a physician, while I feel that all I need is a solid night's sleep. To take this I shall take an opiate, and hope to sleep from 8 to 6 without waking. I have planned to go to Springfield at 11 on Friday, and come back Friday night, reaching home at 10. Shall see Roy in the morning before I leave."

I think that letter was absolutely sincere as regards what he intended to do. He knew that his wife was exceedingly anxious about

HIS BROKEN HEALTH.

He knew himself that his strength was almost gone, and that it might not hold out but a few days more. He knew that if he went home a physician would probably be called, and that any physician would positively forbid further attention to business. He turned to Lexington as the representative of him of all that was peaceful and restful. He had said a few days before that he did not sleep for a good night's sleep, and it had been suggested that Lexington was the place for sleep and rest. His son had been there some time before alone, for the pleasure of a night in the dear home. He had even heard it said that through much of the furniture had been removed to furnish their Boston rooms, the guest chamber was untouched, and any one who chose could have a comfortable night in it. Leaving the train at Abundant, he walked to the house, entered and went up to that room. He lighted the gas, and, seeing that proper coverings were waiting upon the bed, he drew on the light ulster in which he had often slept on his journeys, over his other coats; he turned the gas low and lay down upon the bed, wrapping the counterpane around him.

Did he do these things that he might die? I think not; but that he might keep as warm as he could and live. And if he took a quieting pill—as I think he probably did, although no sign of a drug or wrapper was found, both of which he said that he should, and because it is improbable that he could have slept without it—if he did take it, I think that it was not that he might die, but that he might sleep and rise and do the work of one more day. More than that he knew was his purpose. What need to hasten the end?

He slept, and slept long. He had taken no overpowering drug. He slept perhaps for several, perhaps for many hours. He slept the same deep sleep of exhaustion that he had been sleeping of late. He showed no more profound more prolonged. The room was cold, which doubtless diminished his nearly exhausted vitality. Slowly it ebbed away, and gradually his heavy and increasingly obstructed breathing ceased. This is the interpretation of the appearance of the body by the examining physicians, and, in my judgment, it would be the interpretation by any fair-minded, intelligent observer familiar with death.

He had prepared his papers for

THE NEXT DAY'S JOURNEY.

He had done much labor which would be useless unless he went on with the work of that day, which he considered of great consequence. He had left with his son important matters in regard to the business which he would call on him in the morning before taking the train at 11. Nothing can be more contrary to the idea that he would purposely end his own life. I think he intended to do as he said, and he would have done so, had he seen that this was what he had done.

But the end was a little nearer than he thought. The intensity of his resolution had, in a degree, deceived himself and even his most anxious friends, who, in the earnestness of his activity, almost forgot to warn him of the danger. He had borne his burden as long as would be required of him. He had learned his lesson and needed its discipline no longer. He slept. He awoke without his load in a new world. There is nothing but kindness about him. There is no hurry and no pressure. No evil that he hates can come near him. He can be his own gentle, affectionate, friendly self. If he asks now to be allowed to rest his tired, humbled heart in a quiet place, to be healed and strengthened by the love of his heavenly Father, to be associated with kind friends, and to be permitted to serve them in modest usefulness, I think that his prayer will be granted. For such is the life of heaven; and it is the Father's good pleasure to give it to all who, with sincere and humble hearts, will ask for it.

At the close of the address, Rev. Mr. Worcester offered prayer and the services were concluded with singing of the anthem "I Will Lay Me Down in Peace and Sleep."

Among those present at the services were the following: Hon. W. A. Russell, Hon. Leopold Morse, Hon. Thomas J. Whidden of Boston, Judge Robert R. Bishop of Newton, Hon. F. M. For three weeks I was suffering from a severe cold in my head accompanied by a pain in the temples. I tried some of the many catarrh remedies without any relief. Ely's Cream Balm was recommended to me. After only six applications of the Balm every trace of my cold was removed.—Henry C. Clark, 1st Division New York Appraisers Office.

OH, WHAT A COLD!

THIS is the season for sudden changes in the weather, and a great many "take cold" either in their head or on their lungs, causing Coughs, Hoarseness, and Sore Throat. These troubles can be soon relieved and cured by taking Ingalls' Throat and Lung Specific, which acts directly on the Throat and Lungs, entirely removing these difficulties.

Cured his boy of Croup.

C. M. Brooks, Lowell, Mass., says: "I take great pleasure in recommending Ingalls' Throat and Lung Specific as a cure for Coughs, Colds, and Croup. I used it in my family last winter with the best results. Two or three doses cured my little boy of Croup, for which I am very thankful."

You can cure that Cough in a short time. You can cure your Catarrh if you persist in its use, as it will stop the secretion of Catarrhal matter in the head; it will relieve Croup in from three to five minutes.

The best he ever saw.

"The best medicine for Coughs and Consumptive Complaints that ever I saw is Ingalls' Throat and Lung Specific," so says JOHN McLAUGHLIN, of Boston.

Ingalls' Throat and Lung Specific is sold by all Druggists. Price 50 cents and $1. Prepared only by the INGALLS MEDICAL CO., Lowell, Mass.

TARIFF REFORM QUOTATIONS.

WHAT GOOD REPUBLICANS HAVE SAID IN FORMER YEARS.

In reply to a request for their views a number of prominent Independents have sent us the following extracts from speeches of prominent Republican leaders, with a request that it might be printed, at the same time regretting that they could not spare the time to address Newton people on the issues of the campaign through the columns of the GRAPHIC:

HENRY WILSON.

"Men who have looked with hungry eyes upon a Treasury overflowing with surplus millions do not wish to see the sources from which those coveted millions are derived dried up. Now, as in times past, political ambition is not unwilling to sacrifice the business interests of the country in the hope to win political power. I think American labor will be best protected by taxing all the necessities of life lightly; placing the raw materials which enter into our manufactures on the free list; raising revenue to support the government upon articles that come in competition with our manufactures, and upon the luxuries of life, which are consumed by the more wealthy classes of society."

"We want all those articles that enter as raw materials into the manufactures of the country free of duty, so that the country can stand on an equality in the markets of the world with the other nations of the world. Depend upon it, the country will not stand still or consent to keep pace with the growth of Pennsylvania railroad iron establishments. This talk about protection, the history of the past twenty-five years shows has been mainly for political effect. Every public man knows that it has been so. I think the interests of the labor of this country will be best promoted by living as near as we can practically to the doctrines of sound political economy."

CHESTER A. ARTHUR.

"The present tariff system is, in many respects, unjust. It makes unequal distributions both of its burdens and its benefits. Without entering into minute details, which, under present circumstances, is quite unnecessary, I recommend an enlargement of the free list, so as to include within it the numerous articles which yield considerable revenue, a simplification of the complex and inconsistent schedule of the duties upon certain manufactures, particularly those of cotton, iron and steel, and a substantial reduction of the duties upon those articles, and upon sugar, molasses, silk, wool and woolen goods."

HUGH McCULLOUGH.

"The present tariff was created when the government was engaged in a war of unparalleled magnitude for the maintenance of the rightful authority. It has accomplished the object for which it was created, and now needs careful revision to accommodate it to the present conditions of the country. The surplus which it produces and locks up in the Treasury to the detriment of business is only one of the many serious objections to it. It is greatly prejudicial to our great farming interests by gradually but effectually diminishing the foreign demand for agricultural products at returnative prices. It stands in the way of the restoration of our shipping interests by duties upon many articles which are needed in shipbuilding. It is anti-republican in its character and its influences; it fosters monopolies; it enriches the few at the expense of the many. It violates the constitution of the United States, inasmuch as upon many articles duties are imposed for protection, not for revenue."

JUSTIN S. MORRILL.

"The tariff was intended to be revised,
so that there should be some reduction in the cost of living. It was obvious from the first that woollens and wools would have to submit to their fair, equitable and just share."

JOHN SHERMAN.

"We agree that the tariff should be revised and the taxes reduced. That under existing law we are collecting from the people of the United States as national taxes the sum of fifty to one hundred millions of dollars more than is requisite to meet all the proper current expenditures of the government and all our obligations to the public creditors and to comply with the sinking fund act for the gradual reduction of the public debt."

JAMES G. BLAINE.

"In the first place, let me say that during the entire war, when we were seeking everything on the earth and in the skies, and in the waters under the earth, out of which taxation could be wrung, it was never entered into the conception of Congress to tax breadstuffs—never. During the most pressing exigencies of the terrible civil war, in which we were engaged, neither breadstuffs nor lumber ever became the subject of one penny of taxation."

EUGENE HALE.

"I believe there is no one question about which the reflection of millions of people day by day is so decided as it is in declaring that there should be no tax upon this article of salt. I have been asked to amend the bill introduced by me so as to cut down the duty 50 per cent. I do not consent to that. I believe this article should go upon the free list;
that the monopoly which has obtained heretofore for the Onondaga Salt Works
—as great and complete as any monopoly ever granted by the Tudors in England's most despotic times—ought to cease."

WARNER MILLER.

"The sooner we have that [tariff] revision the better it will be for all indus-

BENJAMIN BUTTERWORTH.

"Every nation that is worthy the name is seeking to enlarge the area of its trade commerce, to enlarge the opportunity to buy and find new markets in which to sell."

JOSEPH R. HAWLEY.

"Since the reductions of duties on raw materials in England, since wool was admitted free, her woolen manufactures have so increased, so prospered, that the production of native wool has increased more than 100 per cent. The experience of England, France and Belgium demonstrates the wisdom of that policy which makes the raw material duty free. Let us profit by their example. If our manufactures are to increase, to keep pace with the population and the growing wants of our people, if we are to have the control of the markets of our own country, if we are to meet with success the manufacturers of England and other nations of western Europe in the markets of the world, we must have our raw materials admitted duty free or at a mere nominal rate."

JOHN D. LONG.

"There are only two ways to reduce the surplus revenue; one, by raising the tariff to a prohibitory height, which nobody advocates; the other, the free list. The free list is the honest revenue reformer's hope."

BOSTON AMUSEMENTS FOR NEXT WEEK.

Globe Theatre—Tonight and to-mor-row's matinee, Mrs. Potter will appear in "Romeo and Juliet," to-morrow evening in "Twixt Axe and Crown," which scenery and costumes alone produce a most charming effect, while the entire weeks gone by—"Little Lord Fauntleroy," but they say it will certainly be taken off Nov. 17th.

—Boston Theatre—If you wish to see and enjoy something unique, grand—yes, de Moray." Miss Morris is a prime favorite. On Monday, Nov. 5, Miss Cora popular actor and always replenishes the exchequer.

Letter from Ex-Alderman Tyler.
BOSTON, OCT. 25, 1888.
MESSRS. GEORGE B. JONES, WILLIAM P.
ELLISON, WILLIAM C. BATES, Committee.

Gentlemen:—Your letter of Sept 28th was received yesterday, conveying to me in most generous language the action of the citizens of Ward Seven, approving my humble services the past year as Alderman in the city council. No one could have been placed in office who desired less than I, but knowing how I had urged public service on others, (one of your number having held the highest place in the gift of the city with honor to himself and satisfaction to our community,) I did not think it right not to try and do what I could for the best interest of our good city. No community has a larger list of intelligent citizens to draw from for public service than we have. All that is wanted is a willingness to serve others with courage and independence.

Accept, gentlemen, my kindest regards.
WARREN P. TYLER.
Nickerson, Nebraska, Oct. 22, '88.

B. A. ATKINSON & CO., LIBERAL HOUSE FURNISHERS.

827 Washington St., Boston, Mass.

Offer the following suggestions.

There are two ways to make money. One is to earn it; the other is to save it.

There are two ways of saving money. When you save a dollar by putting it in the bank you do well; but when you save a dollar by shrewd purchasing you do better. The first is saving; the second is in reality earning.

So there are two ways of earning money. By labor and by wise purchasing.

LET US SAY A WORD ABOUT PURCHASING.
There are a few sound facts that the public are beginning to learn.
What are they?

The First Thing to learn in order to become a successful purchaser is that price means nothing till you see the goods. The fact that Chamber Sets cost $25 in one store and $15 in another tells you nothing. The $25 set is perhaps worth $30 while the $15 set may not be worth carrying away.

Goods may be too cheap sometimes. Price doesn't tell the whole story.
Either know the goods or know the dealer. If he is a liberal furnisher his reputation as such has gone abroad. People find it out. His trade increases, his store has to be enlarged, and when at last you learn it covers ten acres, why, it means something. It tells the whole story of his business methods. It shows that people have discovered his liberal ways and taken advantage of them. It points you the direction for your next purchase.

PEOPLE OFTEN ASK US IF IT PAYS TO ADVERTISE?
It does if you have got genuine bargains. The man who advertises largely shows his own large confidence in his goods.

A Second Precept in successful purchasing is that the best is cheapest in the end. Many people who have never visited our ware-rooms have the idea that only cheap goods are sold by houses who sell on the credit system as well as for cash. That is a great mistake.

Remember there is a difference between Cheap Goods and Goods
Cheap. Go elsewhere for cheap goods; but come here for goods cheap.
The man who sells cheap goods sells his customers also. We are not in that line of business.

The public are beginning to understand the difference. Our establishment of ten acres shows this. It speaks very plainly.

A PURCHASE BY PARTIAL PAYMENTS is a savings bank, a good resolution, and the means of keeping it—all in one. It is the beginning of a successful career for it is the formation of a wise habit of saving.

Visitors to Boston are interested in our White Teams which they meet on every side. They are a part of our White Business Methods. The goods are sold on white principles and they are white goods always.

Not every bright, active young man can become President of the United States, but he may become president of a beautiful home. And as such a president he will find his White House here.

—The Stebbins Aid Society met on Wednesday afternoon at the house of Mrs. Edwin Melchor on Norwood avenue.

—Mr. Charles W. Richardson is here with his family at present; his business being in Portland takes him away a good deal.

—Mr. D. C. Scott gives up housekeeping on Crystal street and is storing his furniture at Mr. Thomas Frost's on Cypress street.

—Miss Flora Greenough, who has been visiting her uncle, Mr. Huntress, has gone to Providence, where she expects to pass the winter.

—Mrs. Sarah E. Fay and Miss Mabel Fay moved into Boston on Tuesday, and Mrs. French and her mother of Boston have leased the house.

—There is to be baptism in the Baptist church on next Sunday morning. Many of the young people of the church are intending to become members.

—Mr. Moses Stevens who has been staying with Mrs. Fay, has now gone to Mrs. Bowen's on Summer street, where he expects to pass the winter.

—The last wedding reception of Mr. and Mrs. Francis L. Weston, occurred on Tuesday. A large party of Mrs. Weston's friends from here attended.

—Rev. Mr. Gould of Burlington, Vt., was here for the dedication. He was for many years a professor in the Seminary, and is now preaching in Burlington.

—Mr. James Gammons of Beacon street has been in Bangor, Maine, for several days, where he was called by the sudden death of his sister, Mrs. Wadleigh.

—Miss Bucknow does not intend to return for two weeks or more to her class in the Mason school. Miss Mary Morse is taking her place during her absence.

—At least five deaths have occurred in Thompsonville of fever, either typhoid or malarial, within a short time, and other cases are under the doctors' care now.

—There is to be another Republican rally here to-morrow, Nov. 3rd, in Associates' Hall, Senator Hoar and Mr. William E. Webster of this place are expected to speak.

—Mr. Edward Burke, who has been clerk for Messrs. Knapp & Co., for a number of years, died last Monday morning from pneumonia. He had many warm friends here.

—Rev. William R. Clark is again able to resume his work in the Methodist Church. He has occupied the pulpit for the last two Sundays, and we hope he will be able to continue doing so.

—Professor Caldwell has been in town this week, and attended the exercises at the new Baptist church yesterday. Since Prof. Caldwell left here, several years ago, he has been president of Vassar College.

—Mr. M. F. Libby takes the E. D. Wiggin stock farm on Oak Hill for the winter, and business will be carried on as usual. Twenty-five horses are now on the farm. Mr. Wiggin and family will spend the winter in Boston, at the Adams House.

—The meetings of the Inter-missionary Missionary alliance held lately in Park Street Church, were well attended by the students in the missionary work. Twenty and thirty sometimes attended in a body, all enthusiastic on the subject of missions.

—An exhibition of water-color paintings by the pupils of Ross Turner has been held in the schoolhouse at Chelmsford, since October 24, and will continue until Nov. 2. The proceeds are to be given in aid of the boys at the Pine Farm school in this city.

—Dr. Edward Brailin of Brooklyn, N. Y., former pastor of the Baptist church here, has been in town this week in connection with the Educational Question. The meeting was held at the house of Mrs. Daniel B. Cladin on Chase street.

—Capt. Arthur C. Walworth, who has been so active in trying to get the building of the new church, was too ill with typhoid fever at his residence to attend the exercises of dedication. Capt. Walworth is a son-in-law of Gardiner Colby, who left so generous a sum for the building.

—A singular fact is that there are in Newton Centre now three buildings, counting the new one, which have been used by the Baptist society. One stands on Centre street, opposite Mr. Henry Paul's, and the second is now our Associates' Hall. The three other societies here have had only one building apiece.

—The road men in repairing the streets, sometimes leave an abrupt line of new material across the street over night. Last week two of our horse boys fell in consequence on Beacon street, near the Baptist church; in one case a lady and gentleman were thrown out, the carriage broken and the horse somewhat injured.

—Mr. Mellen N. Bray intends erecting a block of stores on Constitution avenue, between the double house owned by Mrs. Holmes and the station; the post office is to be transferred again into it, we hear. Institution avenue has only had residences on it so far, but perhaps the block will be so convenient that the citizens living in the neighborhood will overlook the invasion.

—On Wednesday evening last occurred the wedding of Mr. Loring Brooks of the firm of Pearmain and Brooks, and granddaughter of Joshua Loring, Esq., of this place, to Miss Kate Glover, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry P. Glover. The ceremony was performed at the bride's residence in Ypsilanti, Michigan. Mr. and Mrs. Brooks will reside at Hotel Berkeley, in Boston.

We understand that Miss Jennie Martin, who has so long been telegraph operator here, has given up her position on account of the long hours. There being no one else here to take her place, she has been obliged to go without any. Miss Martin is to take Miss Annie White's place in the post office, Miss White having resigned after twenty-two years of faithful service.

At the request of many friends in Newton Centre, Miss Leonora Cousens, the gifted contralto of Grace church, will give a concert at Associates' Hall, some time in November. It will be her first appearance in public at home since her return from her studies abroad. This concert will be an artistic success, as her past efforts have proved her eminently capable to delight her audiences. Further particulars will appear in a later issue of this paper.

The enterprise of the Baptists in this place is worthy of high praise. While the whole country is agitated by the coming election, they have kept steadily in their proposed dedicating a complete church. The erecting and grading of their grounds in an inconceivably short space of time shows the efficient men in control. As they have combined elegance with utility in the building and furnishing of the church, every member will be able to say "well done," and the whole village will have pride in a building which adds so much in every way to its beauty.

The credit for the improvement on the Mason school house grounds should be given to Councilman Read, one of the city committee on parks. He has made a special effort to put in a lot of spring bulbs, that the city parks may look attractive in the spring. The point front of the Unitarian church has been filled with Hyacinths, double tulips and crocuses, while on Chester Park and the Commons tulips and crocuses have been planted in the various beds. The round bed on the Commons has been filled with rhododendrons and azaleas, and in years to come will become a beautiful bed. The work has been done and planned, furnished by Mr. Ross, special care being taken to make the beds thorough, and furnish a select lot of shrubs.

—The net proceeds of the "Harvest Festival," held at the Congregational chapel, on Wednesday evening last, were $102.00. Fifty dollars is to be appropriated towards educating the daughter of a Home Missionary at Rollins College, Florida.

—Mr. Adams, for several years a missionary among the Bohemians in Austria, but now laboring among the Bohemians in Chicago, occupied the pulpit at the Congregational church last Sabbath, and gave a very interesting account of his labors among them.

—The Chataignons met on Tuesday with Mrs. Hollis. In place of the usual work they enjoyed a dinner which was exceedingly Dutch, the souvenir being the flag of the Netherlands; the stories, poems and toasts also had reference to Holland. Later in the afternoon a farce was well acted under the able direction of Miss Bacul.

NEWTON UPPER FALLS.

—Miss Edith Newell gave a very pleasant "Hallow E'en" party on Wednesday evening.

The town has been painted very red this week by the political parades which have taken place.

—Mr. L. W. Young, a former resident, was in the place this week, stopping with Mr. W. K. Dresser.

—Mr. Hiram Kempton, who has been very sick, was removed to the Cottage Hospital on Sunday morning last.

—Dr. W. H. Hildreth left the place on Tuesday afternoon for New York, to sail to Europe from that port on Saturday of this week.

—In the suit for damages, which was on trial the first of the week at Cambridge, against Messrs. Phillips & Train, the verdict was rendered for the defendants.

—The Quinobegun Association elected the following officers last Monday evening: Frank Fanning, President; H. A. Smith, Vice-President; H. S. Dow, Secretary; C. E. Morrill, assistant secretary; L. J. Everett, financial secretary; Albert Temperley, librarian; John Proctor, usher.

—At a regular meeting of the Good Templars on Thursday evening of last week, the following officers were elected for the ensuing quarter: W. F. Stevens, C. T.; H. A. Sherman, Y. L.; C. A. Gould, Secretary; Mrs. George Wright, F. S.; Fred Morton, I. Mrs. H. A. Sherman, chaplain; Charles Harrington, marshal; May Gould, G. Fred Kempton, S.

From a thirty year old newspaper we learn that the officers of the Mechanic Engine Co., No. 4, of this village in 1858 were: Daniel G. Rice, foreman; Matthew H. Barnes, first assistant; Chas. W. Randall, second assistant; Geo. A. Billing, clerk, and C. W. Freeman, steward. The first died a few weeks ago, the second's residence is unknown, the third and fourth are residents here now and the fifth is in California.

—On Friday evening of last week there occurred quite a serious accident at the Eliot station. A Miss Mary Scott, who this morning was taking a course at Wellesley College, was returning, she was thrown from the train and very seriously injured. It is a case of carelessness on the part of the railroad train men, as the signal to start the train was given before the passengers had time to get off. The train was in motion when she stepped upon the platform and she was thrown violently upon the other track, breaking some ribs and it is feared otherwise inflicting internal injuries. The blow at first completely stunned her, but after the first shock had passed, she walked to her home, being kept up by the excitement of the occasion. Doctors were immediately summoned and everything was done to relieve her distress and she suffered intensely, but at the present writing is as comfortable as could well be expected. As it is so clear a case of liability, the Newton and Albany authorities will undoubtedly settle the damages without recourse to the courts.

Lord's house, said the speaker, is for the Lord's use. We build them here and the act itself is an act of worship—it is a prayer, an advancement towards God's kingdom. The service was a very interesting one.

At the conclusion of the sermon the quartette, comprising Mrs. Daniel White, soprano; Miss Ruth C. Long, alto; Mr. George W. Walton, tenor, and Mr. H. M. Walton, bass, rendered the anthem, "Worship the Lord." The prayer of benediction was delivered by Rev. Oakman Sprague Stearns, D.D., and the prayer of benediction by Rev. Nathan Smith Burton, D. D.

THE EVENING SERVICE.

The Baptist Church could not accommodate all who came last evening to the exercises, without bringing in hundreds of chairs; everyone in town seemed interested without regard to religious opinions. After a voluntary by Miss Hood on the organ, an anthem was given by the choir, "The Lord is my strength," by Morello.

Rev. Theodore J. Holmes of the Congregational Church offered the invocation, which was very impressive. Mr. George Walton and Mrs. Daniel White then sang that beautiful duet, "I will magnify thee" by Mesenthal.

The selections from the scriptures read by Rev. Horace L. Wheeler of the Unitarian church were both well chosen and well read.

The quartet composed of Mrs. White, Miss Long, Messrs. Geo. and H. M. Walton which followed, was much enjoyed by all, as was all the music, which did credit to Mr. George Walton's management.

Mr. Barnes then arose and introduced Mr. Gardiner of Middlebury. This was an unexpected pleasure to the audience. Mr. Colby begged the audience's indulgence, while he gave some personal reminiscences. He spoke of his reverence for Rev. S. F. Smith, his first pastor and of the Rev. Dr. Stearns, who baptised him thirty-one years ago, and also spoke of his father's love for the church and his anxiety that the society should have a new house of worship, hence his gifts for that purpose.

President Alvah Hovey then arose and gave the prayer of Thanksgiving. During the offertory Miss Cordie Long of Portland gave an alto solo, "Come ye blessed." Miss Long has a charming voice.

Dr. William Newton Clarke, who came from his far away parish in Canada, then congratulated the society on its beautiful house and gave some suggestions as to its use. He is one of the five pastors of the church who were present. An original hymn followed written by Henry Francis Colby D. D.

Dr. Brailin, of Brooklyn, made an interesting address in which he endorsed Mr. Barnes's sermon in the afternoon as regarded the use of the church.

Dr. Gordon, of Boston, gave the prayer of supplication, which was followed by an anthem by the chorus, "Praise you to the Father." Dr. Gordon, Dr. W. R. Clarke of the Methodist Society, closed the exercises by giving the benediction.

—The fire broke out in the residence of Mary Mack on Bottle alley Sunday morning and caused quite an excitement. An alarm was rung in and the fire department quickly responded and put an end to the flames. The damage was slight, one room being slightly burned and a quantity of clothing destroyed.

—The Harvest concert was held at the North Evangelical church, last Sunday evening; the pulpit and platform had been nicely decorated with fruit and vegetables, and which, at the close of the concert, were distributed among the poorer families in the village. Mr. Arthur R. Coe, superintendent, presided. Mr. Geo. Hudson, assistant superintendent, conducted the singing, and Miss Mary W. Young officiated as organist.

—Mr. Candler's plurality in Newton of 388 is considered a gain by the Republicans in comparison with the vote between Ely and Burnett in 1886. In that year Ely received 1339; Burnett, 1098, Ely's plurality being 331. Candler's plurality therefore was only 51 votes more this year, notwithstanding the fact that the increased vote was largely Republican. Of the total vote polled, Candler received 997 more than Ely, and Burnett made a gain of 552 votes over his vote in 1886. The Burnett vote in Newton is therefore unusually large and demonstrates the popularity of the candidate. In Ward Three, Burnett secured a plurality of 12, running ahead of his ticket, and in Ward Four, he received a very flattering vote, the appointment of Miss and Misses Bourne as postmistress, through his influence with the administration, having helped materially to swell the number.

—The annual harvest concert of the Sunday School of the Eliot church was given in Eliot hall Sunday evening, and was very largely attended. The choir platform was profusely decorated with autumn leaves, potted plants and flowers, presenting a very tasteful appearance.
The exercises were of an interesting character, consisting of singing by the Sunday School choir, exercises by the infant department, and readings, recitations and dialogues relating to the harvest time by members of the various Sunday School classes. The singing by the Sunday School choir was an especial feature, and the selections were sweetly and finely rendered. The address to the children was delivered by the pastor, Rev.
Dr. Walcott Calkins, and interesting remarks were made by the Superintendent of the Sunday School. The program follows: Organ voluntary; song, "Come, Ye Thankful People," Sunday School choir; responsive reading; recitations, "Thine is the Harvest," Carrie Eddy; "Lord of the Harvest," Mrs. Frankling; song,
"Sing to the Lord of Harvest," Sunday School choir; responsive reading; recitations, "The Harvest Master," Master Leeds; "The World's Harvest," William Ellison; song, "To Thee, O Lord," responsive reading; recitations, "The Need of Reapers," Mabel Eddy; "My Sheaves," Miss Nicholas; song, "My God, I thank Thee," Sunday School choir; recitations, "Ungarnered Sheaves," Carrie Emery,
"Fruitfulness," Abbie Weston; song,
"Praise, Oh, Praise the Lord," address,
Rev. Dr. Walcott Calkins; song, "Summer Suns are Glowing," Sunday School choir; benediction, Rev. Dr. Calkins.

—The large wooden building on Church street, familiarly known as Whipple's mill, owned by Mrs. Mary A. D. Lewis of Framingham, and occupied by Alfred Fitzpatrick for a planing mill, and James McDuff, stair builder, was seriously damaged by fire last Saturday evening.
Two alarms were rung, and at 10.14, at 8.45 o'clock and the department responded promptly, succeeding in a measure in arresting the progress of the flames. The fire is supposed to have been set underneath the flooring of the office, setting fire to the building. The flames spread throughout the interior, and the building was pretty badly gutted, some of the machinery used in the planing mill being totally destroyed. The loss is estimated at about $4500. The building and a portion of the contents were insured. On Monday, Mr. Fitzpatrick's loss was adjusted through the insurance agent and Mr. Ross. He received $1830, $1130 for losses on machinery and $700 on stock. Through failure in receiving the alarm at the No. 1 engine house, there was quite a delay before the arrival of the apparatus at the scene of the conflagration. The fire engine engaged upon the ground first and put the stream on the fire, the Newton company being engaged in laying its line of hose when the firemen from Ward 2 put a stream into the burning building. Chief Bixby handled the fire in good shape, and succeeded in keeping the flames pretty well confined to the lower story. The fire travelled up to the roof, however, notwithstanding the efforts of the department, and was finally drowned out by the immense quantity of water poured into the building from several lines of hose.

The Public Library.
The circulation of books at the Public Library during October reached a total of 9,100, the largest circulation ever reached in that month. February and March always show the largest demand for books, 10,800 being taken out last March. Every month shows a steady increase in the use of the library.

The books of photograph of English cathedrals are shown by the librarian to visitors on Tuesdays, and they are well worth seeing. One book treats of the Norman cathedrals, the second of the Early English, the third of the Decorated, and the fourth of the Perpendicular.
Most of the cathedrals have the autograph of the bishop, accompanying the photographs. It is a rare opportunity for those interested in architecture, the pictures giving several views of the exterior of the buildings, and the more prominent points of interest of the interiors. They were collected and mounted by Miss James, who is preparing a book of notes on each volume of the series.

Another collection of photographs, which is of great interest, was described in the GRAPHIC a few weeks ago. These embrace some six hundred photographs of sculpture in different Italian galleries, comprising selections from the Vatican, the Capitol, the Lateran, the Villa Borghese, the Villa Ludovisi, the National Museum at Naples, with some from the British Museum—the latter including photographs of the frieze of the Parthenon
They were purchased from the Jewett Art Fund, and were very carefully selected by a gentleman of Newton, who has made a special study of art subjects, and who devoted a great deal of time while abroad to the selection. His notes have been added to the photographs, and will be of great value and assistance for those interested in examining the pictures.

given at the City Hall on Wednesday and

CELEBRATING THE VICTORY.

SALUTES TO BE GIVEN TO EVERY HARRI-SON FLAG.

The following order has been issued for a celebration for next Monday evening, when the different Harrison flags in the city will be saluted with ten guns each, and then hauled down. The salutes will begin at Annumdale at 8 o'clock, then go to Lower Falls, West Newton, Newtonville, Newton and Newton Centre. Following is the order:
NEWTON, Nov. 8, 1888.

TO THE CHAIRMEN OF THE SEVERAL WARD COMMITTEES:
In honor of the election of Harrison & Morton, and for the great victory in the Ninth district, I have made arrangements with the Waltham battery to salute the flags which have borne the names of our candidates during this campaign in the several wards, with ten guns each.

At the close of the salute, which has been ordered for Monday evening, Nov.
12, the chairman of each Ward committee will cause the flags to be hauled in.
I would suggest to the committees of each ward that it would add very much to the enthusiasm of the occasion if they would make arrangements for the display of fireworks in their respective squares.

I take this opportunity to thank the committee for their faithful work, and for their willingness to co-operate with me in any suggestions I have made towards the election of our candidates.

I am very truly yours,
C. BOWDITCH COFFIN,
Chairman of the City Committee.

As a Matter of Fact.
To the Editor of the GRAPHIC.

There was a circular distributed in Ward One on election day, that may be worthy of notice and correction, and as a matter of history.

The reasons urged and accepted for the division of the original Ward One, were, that taxation should be the basis of representation. As originally constituted Ward One had by far the largest number of tax payers, and they were assessed two thirds of the whole amount that was levied by the assessors of the city.
This fact and the large number of voters in the old ward, were the ground on which a division was urged and carried.
Politics did not in any wise enter into the question, and were not discussed in the arguments at the time, and we fail to see the connection of the last paragraph of the circular between "Ward Seven" and "the Congressional district of Hon. P. A. Collins." WARD ONE.

Master of the Situation.

This is the subject of a lecture once delivered by James T. Field in Eliot hall, Newton. Those who heard it will remember the proud place he accorded to men who were masters of their respective callings. He spoke with significant emphasis of the comparatively few in agricultural, mechanical, mercantile, literary and professional pursuits who could justly claim the title of master, and thus the arts which they represent,
as well as society, suffered by their short comings.

Music, poetry, sculpture and oratory suffer injury and ridicule at the hands of professional amateurs. Hence the true artist, as Mr. Field well said, is singled out from a multitude of pretenders and appreciated accordingly. Such a one the people of Newton will soon have an opportunity of hearing in the person of William Ludwig, who, by his genius and masterly interpretation of music honors, and is honored by the art he professes. Voice, heart and culture have made the great artist justly renowned even among the foremost of his profession, and entitle him to the national reputation he so well deserves.

The Graphic's Job Printing.

The job-printing business of the GRAPHIC has grown to such an unexpected extent that more room has been found to be a necessity, and on Thursday work was begun on a 22 feet addition to the GRAPHIC building. Six months ago, when the office was removed to its present location, there promised to be all the room necessary for several years to come, but orders for pamphlets, books, bill-heads, circulars, cards, posters and so on, began to flow in, as people discovered that the office was convenient and the work was as well done as that of any Boston office, and at as reasonable rates. There is an advantage in having work done in Newton, and many Newton people seem to have the idea that it is to their interest to patronize home industries.

The contract for the addition has been given to Mr. U. G. McQueen, who completed the recent addition to Hotel Hunnewell.

Returns at the Newton Club.

The election returns were received at the Newton Club house at Newtonville, a special wire being run to the house, and an operator being present to take off whatever news came. The despatches were bulletined in the parlors, and a large and enthusiastic crowd were present until after midnight, of members and their friends. Tables were set in the dining room and lunch was served to all comers. Members were allowed to invite one friend each, and the club house furnished a very comfortable place for those who could not wait until the next morning to find out whether or no the country was saved.

Parade, Monday Evening.

There will be a grand parade and celebration of the Garden City Cadets, next Monday evening, in Wards 1 and 7. The cadets will have a band of music, and a committee has been appointed, Mr. G.
T. Coppins, chairman, to make all necessary arrangements. Citizens who feel enthusiastic over the results of the election and all others who desire, are requested to illuminate their houses and grounds, and to greet the procession with red fire and fireworks.

THE GENERAL RESULT.

The Republicans have won a great victory and will enjoy the responsibilities of power for the next four years. They have carried nearly every northern state, have secured a working majority in Congress, and will be able to have everything their own way for the next two years, at least. It is a complete overthrow for the Democratic party, and the explanations are many and varied. The Republicans have now before them the problem of revising the tariff, and we may expect them to resume the policy outlined by former Republican leaders and former Republican platforms.

For four years the Republicans have been the party of the opposition, and have found it easy to criticize the mistakes and blunders of the administration. After the fourth of next March the position will be reversed, and the Democrats will have an opportunity to criticize.

Gen. Harrison has a great opportunity before him, and his party friends are confident that he will be equal to it. He will probably find the question of civil service reform just as difficult to deal with as President Cleveland has done, but all will hope that he will avoid the mistakes of his predecessor. The workers of both the great parties are about equally opposed to reform, and Gen. Harrison will need a very rigid backbone to resist the demands made upon him, as is evident from the claims that are already being put forward to the collectorship of Boston. Dr. Burden's friends claim that he will get it, as he was an original Blaine man, and Mr. Beard's friends say it will be but common gratitude to give such an efficient political worker his old place. Gen. Grant, Hayes, Garfield, Arthur and Cleveland have all found the demand for spoils too much for them, and now Gen. Harrison will take up the burden in his turn. He has given pretty decided expression to his convictions, and every friend of reform will hope that he will live up to them, and extend the civil service rules so that the spoils system may be completely banished from our politics. With a good working majority in Congress, he has an opportunity to show himself the real leader of his party, and to so recommend it to the intelligent voters of the country that no political overturn will follow at the end of his term.

It is an excellent thing for a country to have the political parties so evenly balanced that neither can lay claim to having a mortgage upon the government, and frequent changes of administration will put each party upon their best behavior. Gen. Harrison's success will depend in a large measure upon the kind of advisers he calls about him, and the whole country will watch with great interest for his selection of a cabinet.

MR. CANDLER'S ELECTION.

The size of Mr. Candler's majority in the district is surprising even to his most enthusiastic friends; but it only shows that in a presidential year the Ninth District is safe for any Republican candidate. An examination of the returns shows that his majority came chiefly from the smaller towns, the larger places, except Newton and Brookline, going the other way.

We have heard no one claim that Mr. Candler is the ideal candidate the Ninth district has been waiting for these many years, although ex-Alderman Powers, in his speeches, vouched for him as "The Peer of any man in Congress." Still he is chosen as the representative of this district and it only remains to make the best of it.

Mr. Candler has probably learned some valuable experience from his previous term and its results, and whatever may be his opinion of civil service reform, he will probably do nothing now in opposition to it, even if he does not actively favor it. He will probably have an opportunity to have a good deal to say about post office appointments in this district, and if he succeeds in bringing them up to the level of the appointments made by Congressman Burnett, he will satisfy the people. Mr. Burnett has not tried to set up a political machine, and the appointments made on his recommendation have been so excellent, that he is said to have lost many votes from the active workers and their friends, who were disappointed at not being rewarded for alleged political services. It will take some very delicate steering for Mr. Candler to avoid the dangers which lie on both sides of this appointment business, and he will need to exercise great care, if he desires a re-election.

It is not given to every man to have a second chance at making a name in public life, and Mr. Candler has won in spite of many obstacles which in any other year would have defeated him. His nomination was not popular with the majority of Republicans, and his speeches on the "Solid South" have not been calculated to win votes, but he now has the opportunity to correct the mistakes made during his first term, and to prove himself worthy to represent one of the most important districts in Massachusetts. The people will watch his course with interest, and be ready to give him credit for anything in it that is worthy.

THE CITY ELECTION.

Now that the Presidential election is over, the city election is coming into prominence, and the question of the next mayor is being discussed with much interest. The point most people are interested in is whether Mayor Kimball will consent to run again, or whether he will refuse to accept another term. In the latter case there would be plenty of candidates, and conventions would only have to choose between them. In the board of aldermen both Alderman Ward and Alderman Johnson have announced that they do not desire a renomination. Their retirement would be a great loss to the board, and their constituents will not accept such an announcement as final, without trying to overcome it. Alderman Ward has been a faithful attendant at meetings, and has been a cautious and conservative member. He says that he has done his duty by the city and that some younger man ought to be brought into service. Alderman Johnson has not as good an excuse as the member from Ward Six, but claims he has given his share of service to the city, and that some other citizen ought to relieve him. He has been one of the most efficient members on the board, and no inexperienced man could fill his place, and Ward Four people do not seem likely to excuse him.

In the common council there is not a probability of many changes, as most of the members have only served a year and unless they absolutely decline they will be re-nominated.

In the school board, the members from Wards One and Two complete their terms this year, and both Miss Smead and Mr. Stone have said that they should decline a re-nomination. The position of Mr. Converse and Mr. Dickinson has not been announced. Mr. Converse is being urged to serve another term, as he has been a very acceptable member, and has always sought to advance the best interests of the schools. It has not been easy in the past to find men willing to serve upon the board and nominations have been in the nature of a forced draft, but within the past two years there has been something of a change, and possibly it will not be so difficult this year to find candidates who will accept a nomination.

THE CAMPAIGN ENDED.

The campaign is now over and after the papers and politicians get through explaining how the grand result was brought about, the country will once more be able to settle down to business. It has been a peculiar campaign, and as a general rule has been conducted in a manner worthy of an intelligent people. The great issue has been the tariff and the voters have studied this abstruse subject with remarkable interest. It has been discussed on all sides, and is better understood now than ever before in the history of the country. The campaign orators, instead of waving the bloody shirt or berating their political opponents, have given their hearers facts and figures in about equal quantities, and the most popular speakers were those who had the most information to convey.

The old fashioned political speaker, who appealed simply to party prejudice, and gave his hearers nothing but his one-sided opinions garnished with more or less apt stories, has met with a cold reception, and has not been able to draw large audiences that have greeted his younger rivals who have devoted time and thought to the study of the subject they were to discuss.

We have had a thorough tariff diet for the past three months and every one seems to have thriven on it and enjoyed it. The people have read articles on both sides and the authorities on the tariff question have been found on every street corner. Both parties have agreed that the tariff must be reformed, the only difference being the way in which it is to be done. The next Congress will have to set about the work of revision in earnest, as the bills hitherto were prepared mainly for use in the campaign.

JUDGE PARK'S running behind his ticket in Newton showed that when it comes to such a practical question as Congressmen, many people do not believe in throwing their votes away. It is all right out governor and presidential electors, as a few votes more or less in the State will not affect the result, but every vote counts on congressmen. Judge Park was certainly the ablest of the three candidates, and had he been twenty years younger he might have distanced them both. Even now he could make a more telling political speech than either of the other candidates.

MESSRS. SLOCUM and Gilman received an old fashioned Republican majority for representatives, and the city will be well represented at the next session of the legislature. Mr. Slocum is prominently mentioned for the speakership, and no one of the other candidates mentioned is better qualified for the position. Speaker Slocum of Newton is a title that would please all the people in this city, without regard to party.

GOVERNOR AMES led Harrison in Newton, and came very close to the presidential ticket all through the State, which shows how little faith the voters took in attacks made upon him. Mayor Russell made such a splendid fight that it is a pity both he and Governor Ames could not have been elected. Mr. Russell would have discharged the speech-making part of the governor's duties in admirable style.

The county treasurer, register of probate and register of deeds seem to be very satisfactory officials, as the Democrats did not even nominate candidates in opposition. This seems to show that there is nothing serious the matter with the county's system of bookkeeping.

Newton Natural History Society.

This society held its regular monthly meeting last Wednesday evening. Prof. Charles J. Maynard exhibited a large number of specimens, corals, corallines, shells and sponges, which he obtained last winter at Bahama Islands, and gave an interesting description of them and the coral reefs where they were found. Later in the season he will give a paper before the society on these islands, and the life which is found so abundantly there.

Mr. Sidney R. Bartlett gave a very interesting lecture on "A Trip around the World." It might very appropriately have been termed "What I did and what I saw during my twelve months travel from Newton to my home again."

Omitting any description of the ride across the continent from the Atlantic to the Pacific, he commenced at San Francisco and in an easy colloquial style, told of his journey across the Pacific to the Sandwich Islands, then down to New Zealand and Australia; up to Japan, then westward again to China, India, through the Red Sea and the Suez Canal to Italy, France, England, and other places, then home from Liverpool. He evidently travelled with his eyes wide open, not merely to "do" the trip, but to see and learn, to obtain the information which such an extensive journey gives to a wide awake young man.

His delineations of the manners and customs of the people, of the beautiful places he visited, and interesting things he saw was very graphic, and held the attention of his audience to the close. With the fear of wearying them by too long an address he closed while in Europe and took his seat. President Chandler suggested that it was a good time to ask questions if any one wished further information, whereupon Mr. Spinney asked for a description of the rest of the travel home. This evidently was what the audience wished, and the lecturer again took the stand and continued the story till his home was reached.

The lecture was a success from beginning to its close and was heartily appreciated by the audience, which was larger than usual. Mr. Bartlett is to be congratulated upon his successful entrance upon the rostrum, and doubtless other calls will be made upon him to tell of his delightful "Trip around the World." Doubtless the society will expect him to deliver another lecture later in the course on volcanoes, a study of which he made while away. The thanks of the society were presented to Prof. Maynard and Mr. Bartlett.

A Veteran Not Allowed to Vote.

To the Editor of the GRAPHIC: We have in this place a very worthy gentleman who served through the Mexican war, and also served through the late rebellion under the authority of the United States, and has received honorable discharge from both wars and has cast his vote ever since without any question in regard to it in the town and city of Newton until this present election. He tells me that the city clerk sent word to him by our police that if he would come down and bring his papers he might be entitled to vote, otherwise he could not. He, being very much worked up about the case, did not vote. He says supposed that he was a pure Yankee. He tells me he is of French descent. Now will you tell me through the GRAPHIC, wherein he is not entitled to vote, being an owner of real estate and paid taxes for the last twenty-five years. It looks to me like drawing the lines very tight on one of our honorable veterans of two wars. Yours truly, RUFUS MOULTON.

—The pupils of the Newton High school have cast their ballots for president, agreeable to the custom in similar educational institutions, the vote standing as follows: Harrison and Morton, 270; Cleveland and Thurman, 75; Fiske and Brooks, 24; Belya Lockwood, 2; American Party, 1. The plurality for Harrison and Morton over Cleveland and Thurman was 195. The majority for Harrison and Morton over all the other candidates was 168. The voice of the pupils of the High school has certainly been heard in favor of protection to American labor and industries.

—On Sunday evening two teams approaching from opposite directions came into collision at the corner of Washington and Cross streets. Patrick Ross and family were occupants of one of the carriages which was overturned and pretty badly demolished. Mr. Ross and his wife and child were pretty well shaken up and somewhat bruised. They were taken to the residence of Mr. Allen, Parsons street, by Officer Bosworth and subsequently returned home in another carriage. The other carriage was not injured by the accident.

—The Representative Democratic caucus held in the City Hall, Saturday evening, was well attended and harmonious. Mr. John Lowell, Jr., and Mr. W. H. Mague were unanimously nominated as candidates for the legislature from the 17th Middlesex district, but Mr. Lowell refused to accept.

—Attention is called to the concert advertised in our columns under the auspices of Mr. F. J. Falkenberg of Auburndale, which is to be given in Tremont Temple, Boston, Wednesday evening, Nov. 21. The Ruggles Street Quartet, Levy the famous cornetist, and Alfred de Seve, the violin virtuoso, are among the attractions.

—The Democrats held a rally in City Hall last Friday evening. Mr. W. J. Follett presided and the tariff was discussed, by Mr. Osborne Howes, Jr., of Brookline, Mr. Henry J. Skeffington of Philadelphia, and Mr. Thomas F. Doherty of Boston. There was a very good attendance and selections were played during the evening by the Newton City Band.

—The Republicans of this ward are going to paint the town red Monday evening. There will be an elaborate display of fireworks in the square and music will be rendered by the American Watch Company band. Cannons will let forth a triumphant roar and the happy victors will then assemble in the City Hall for a general jollification meeting. Addresses relative to the Republican victory and its significance will be the order of the occasion.

—The anniversary of the Newell Young People's Society of Christian Endeavor will be observed with appropriate exercises in the Congregational Church, Tuesday evening. There will be a reception and collation for the delegates of visiting societies from 6.30 to 7.45 o'clock; public meeting at 7.45 o'clock, to which all are invited. The program will comprise singing by the church choir and Young People's quartet, with addresses by several speakers.

—The first sociable of the season was held in the Second Congregational church last evening. Supper was enjoyed between the hours of 6 and 7, after which those present adjourned to the chapel where an entertainment was provided, consisting of readings by Miss Kate Nason of Boston Highlands, piano duet by Mr. J. E. and Miss Trowbridge; singing by Miss Sadie Symonds, and pianoforte selections by Miss Trowbridge.

—The ladies of the Foreign Missionary Society of the Congregational church met in the west parlor Monday afternoon, Miss Abbie Child, secretary of the Boston board, made a short address, giving an interesting account of Miss Sheldon's school at Adabazar, Turkey, alluding to the progress made by the pupils, and the Christian influence exerted through the work and teaching of this estimable West Newton girl in her field of foreign mission labor. The meeting was well attended and very interesting.

—The Republican battalions participated in a torch light parade at West Newton last Friday evening, under the auspices of the West Newton Republican club. The procession formed on Washington street at 8 o'clock and marched through the following streets: Washington street to Greenough, Auburn, Washington, Elm, Webster, Waltham, Chestnut, Highland, Temple, Putnam, Shaw, Perkins, Margin street to West Newton square. Lieut. Scott acted as chief marshal. Arriving in the square, the parade was dismissed and lunch was served in the yard at the Peirce schoolhouse.

—A ticket headed "Regular Republican" with the words "except for Burnett for Congress," in fine Gothic type, caused quite a commotion in the Ward 3 polling place. Some of the Republican distributors claimed that it was a ticket calculated to deceive voters, and it was withdrawn by the Independents, although it was a perfectly legitimate ticket, entirely unlike the regular Republican ticket, the heading and body being printed in different type. A young man who was quite an enthusiastic Candler man, was the only one who got left. He failed to read his ticket carefully, and unintentionally voted for Burnett. His grief could not be assuaged and he was a picture of discontent during the day.

—The annual meeting of the Woman's Auxiliary society of the Unitarian church was held in the church parlors Wednesday afternoon. The society numbers some fifty members, and is doing a useful work in the circulation of Christian literature, and aiding feeble churches. It was unanimously voted to send all its available funds in aid of the Montana mission, where Mr. and Mrs. Henry Bond are stationed, zealously laboring among the Crow Indians. Miss M. A. Furber of Cambridge was present to speak of the post-office letter mission which has become quite a power for good in other branches of the same society. The question of taking up this work in addition to the rest was discussed, but voted not to do so until an increase of members and funds warranted.

—A serious accident occurred here Wednesday afternoon at 2.15 o'clock. Mrs. Herbert A. Pike and Mrs. George P. Whitmore were riding in a carriage on Margin street, when the horse became frightened and ran, making a sharp turn at the corner of Chestnut street, breaking a shaft and colliding with a telephone pole. Mrs. Whitmore was thrown out, and Mrs. Pike was very badly injured. She received a terrible blow in the head, and severe contusions upon the chin and over the eye. One arm was broken, and the side of her face was blackened with the force of the blow. The unfortunate lady was picked up unconscious and taken into the store of Mr. F. H. Humphrey by Officer Clay and Mr. John Stoddard, and subsequently removed to her residence, Winthrop street, where she was attended by Dr. Thayer. She partially recovered consciousness at 7 o'clock in the evening, but did not know anyone. Mrs. Whitmore was somewhat bruised and badly shaken up, but her injuries are not considered serious.

—Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Chamberlain were "at home" Wednesday evening. They will receive, also, Wednesday evening next.

—Many people congregated at the store of E. W. Keyes, Tuesday evening, where election returns were received up to 12 o'clock.

—Mr. W. E. Plummer received a very flattering vote for councillor in his own ward and ran well in the other wards of the city.

—Mr. and Mrs. Isaac Worcester have been in town for two weeks; they have gone to Springfield, Mass., to spend some time.

—The vote in Ward four, Tuesday, was the largest ever thrown, and Congressman Burnett received very nearly one-half of the total vote polled.

—Patrik Richardson had his thumb badly jammed by a heavy timber at Partelow's boat house, Riverside, last Saturday. He was taken to the Cottage Hospital.

—Miss Annie M. Kittridge, who has been here on a visit to her old home, has returned to West Bridgewater, where she resumes her position in the Harvard Institute.

—The first official returns in this city of the election Tuesday, came from Ward 4 as usual, arriving at the City Hall at 6.55 p. m. The last returns, as usual, came from Ward 5, arriving in the alderman's room at 9.30 p. m.

—Miss Anna Gordon and Miss Frances Willard, the distinguished temperance advocates, were guests at the residence of Mr. James Gordon during last week. They started Monday for the West and will make brief stops at Elmira, Rochester and Detroit, where they will speak at public meetings.

—While Maggie Carey was passing through Melrose street, Tuesday evening, she was assaulted by an unknown man, knocked down and roughly treated. It is a dark street and several new lamps would be a great improvement and thus insure the safety of people who are obliged to go back and forth to their homes.

—The friends of Mrs. S. H. Kimball will be pleased to learn that she will have an exhibition on and after Nov. 11, a choice variety of lovely painted articles both useful and ornamental in oil and water colors. Having had many years experience her work is of the most choice order; the display this year will eclipse all former attempts.

—One of the finest concerts of the season will be given in Tremont Temple, Boston, Wednesday evening, Nov. 21. The artists include Levy, the celebrated cornet soloist; Miss Hortense Pierce, prima donna soprano; Marshall P. Wilder, humorist; Alfred De Seve, violin soloist and the Ruggles street quartet. The concert is under the management of Mr. F. I. Falkenberg of Auburndale.

—The Melrose street difficulties arising from the dispute over the moving of the little shanty alluded to in a recent issue of the Graphic, culminated this week in the appearance of some of some of the interested parties in court. Thomas Hart, charged with assault and battery on Mrs. Edward Hinds was discharged, the complainants failing to furnish satisfactory proof of an assault.

—Miss Marion E. Morgan played a selection from "Sonnambula" at a Methodist entertainment at Hyde Park, Thursday evening. Her effort was received with warm appreciation, and in response she played a Galop. This young lady shows much talent in this direction, reflecting credit upon her teacher, Miss Kate Plummer.

—The Harrison & Morton cadets of Auburndale will parade Monday, Nov. 12, weather favorable, if not the following day. The company will start at the depot and march through Centre street to Captain Randall's, back through Woodlawn, Vista, Woodlawn, Grove, Central, Maple, Auburn, Lexington, Walcott, Bowe, Auburndale avenue, Lexington, Severns, Melrose, Ashbourne, Woodbine and Auburn streets, then to the hall, where a collation will be served by some of our public spirited citizens. All on the route, who hurrah for Harrison bring out your candles and fire works.

—A missionary meeting was held in the Congregational chapel Sunday evening. Rev. H. Hazen brought a report from the American Missionary Association convention recently held in Providence. He stated that papers were read upon the Indian, the colored race and poor whites in our country, which were of great interest and importance. One Indian and three colored men spoke for themselves. Mr. Dike, who was present at the convention, followed Mr. Hazen, and Rev. Mr. Green, missionary from Japan, spoke of the great growth of education and the spread of the gospel in that country.

—Miss Carrie Bourne has been appointed postmistress and received her official papers from Washington, Saturday last. It was an appointment, certainly, where fitness, not party, was considered, and Congressman Burnett personally sent her petition to the President. The news was received here with sincere satisfaction by Republicans and Democrats alike. Her long service as assistant has rendered her especially qualified for the duties of the position, and the public is assured of courteous treatment and the prompt and careful management of the business of the office. The appointment is one in many which clearly indicate that Congressman Burnett is not the exponent of the spoils system. His official acts are worthy of imitation, and he has faithfully carried out the principles of civil service reform.

—Miss Annie Payson Call entertained sixteen young ladies from Lasell, last Saturday evening, in a very unique and novel way at her home on Highland avenue, Newtonville.

—On Monday afternoon, from three until six, about one hundred of the delegates to the Seventh Annual Convention of the Woman's Home Missionary Society of the Methodist Episcopal Church, then in session in Boston, were entertained by the faculty and young women of Lasell. They were received in the parlors, and then shown over the house, including the gymnasium, studio, and the fine view from the observatory. They all expressed themselves as much delighted with the beauty and homelike appearance of Lasell. Prominent among the many and talented women present was Mrs. Rutherford B. Hayes, a woman who is universally admired and beloved as one who has done more than any other to reflect honor upon American womanhood. All of the young women had the opportunity of meeting Mrs. Hayes in the gymnasium, and were charmed with the delightful and affable manners of the former lady of the White House. At half past four a collation was served in the dining-room, during which a quartet rendered some charming music from the adjoining club room. Among the distinguished guests were Dr. Pierce, the former, and Dr. Parkhurst the present, editor of Zion's Herald; Dr. Clark of Newton Centre, Dr. W. I. Haven of Temple Street Church; Miss Wyman, art teacher from Wilbraham Academy; Mrs. Clements wife of the Principal of Cazenovia Seminary; Miss Fitzgerald, sister of Bishop Fitzgerald; Dr. and Mrs. Torsey and Mrs. Dr. Allen, Kent's Hill, Me., and Mrs. Prof. Morse, Evanston, Ill.; and among the trustees were President Tower and wife, E. W. Gay and wife, Mrs. Eager and others. Mrs. Hayes, in behalf of the delegates present, thanked Mr. and Mrs. Bragdon for their generous hospitality, and assured them that in their minds the most pleasant recollections would ever cluster around Lasell Seminary.

MUSICAL MATTERS.

THE SYMPHONY CONCERT. The program of the fifth symphony concert, which occurs tomorrow evening, is as follows: Overture, "Coriolanus," Beethoven; aria, "Jean de Paris," Boieldieu; symphony, "Rustic Wedding," Goldmark; Funeral March, from Die "Gottterdammerung," Wagner; Wotan's Farewell and the Fire Chorus, from "Die Walkure," Wagner. Herr Emil Fischer of the Metropolitan Opera House, New York, will be the soloist.

NOTES.

Mr. E. A. MacDowell will make his first public appearance in Boston as soloist at the next Kneisel quartet concert, Nov. 19.

At the American debut of Herr Moriz Rosenthal, the Roumanian piano virtuoso, and Master Fritz Kreisler, the young violinist, at Boston Music Hall this (Friday) evening the program will be as follows: "Overture to the Weber, Concerto for violin Mendelssohn; Toreador and Andalous, Rubinstein, orchestra; Concerto in E-flat major for piano, Liszt; (a) Nocturne; (b) Mazurka, Wieniawski, Master Kreisler; (c) Waltz, (d) Chant polonaise, Chopin, Herr Rosenthal; spring melody, Grieg, orchestra; Fantasia, themes from "Don Juan," Liszt, Herr Rosenthal and orchestra. Mr. Walter Damrosch will conduct.

Mr. Frederic Chopin will give a series of three Chopin lectures, illustrated on the piano, entitled "How to Interpret the Chopin." to take place at Chickering Hall in December and January.

There is much fun anticipated among Boston musicians over the paying of a bet made by a well known violinist of this city on the result of the election. The band stand on Boston Common is to be the scene of the payment of the wager, and the one who loses has agreed to appear as the premier danseur of the occasion to dance 15 minutes to his own accompaniment. As the men are somewhat unevenly weighted the result is all the more interesting, and if the Republicans win it is feared that City Messenger Peters will apply for an injunction on the proceedings, as the Cleveland man's solo would involve heavy repairs on the stand.—Herald.

Faust, Carmen and Martha will be heard during the engagement of the Clara Louise Kellogg opera company at the Boston Theatre, which begins Nov. 10.

A new string quartet has just been formed, the members of which are Mr. J. Adamowski, Mr. E. Fiedler, Mr. D. Kuntz and Mr. G. Campanari. It will be called the Adamowski Quartet, and will give three concerts this season, the first one taking place Nov. 26.

The Amphion Male Quartette of Abundant, although of comparatively recent organization, has already earned many just compliments by its singing. The voices blend perfectly, and the quality of tone is delightfully fresh and pure, while the command of expression and phrasing is excellent. These qualities, coupled with the rendition of none but the very best music the quartette is taking a place in the first rank. It is under the direction of Mr. J. Walter Davis, which fact alone would vouch for the artistic merit of its performance. The membership is as follows: First tenor, Mr. W. J. Rice, second tenor, Mr. A. W. Ashenden; first bass, Mr. J. W. Davis; second bass, Mr. C. B. Ashenden.

NEW MUSIC RECEIVED.

The following new music has been received from A. P. Schmidt & Co., 13 and 15 West street, Boston: For pianoforte, "Petite Valse" and "Alla Mazurka," A. D. Turner; "Die Jagd" (The Chase), Rheinberger; "Valse," Charles F. Dennee; "Souvenir de Munich," Straub; "Alpine Melody," and "Dance of the Fairies," O. Peurel; "Fantasia," G. F. Haendel, ed. by Arthur Foote; "Scale Studies," J. W. Crawford, Vocal, "In love she fell," F. Lynes; "The Fishermen," (for bass voice) and "A Wake, beloved," a serenade, by J. B. Campbell; "Minnie," Beethoven, revised by H. E. Woolf; "The Star of Bethlehem," a Christmas song, M. B. Crowninshield; "The Sweet May," and "The Maid of Marlville," Sebastian B. Schlesinger.

THE BACK BAY COURSE.

Unusual interest is being manifested in the development of the plans of the Back Bay Course, which is now nearly perfected. The financial backers of the enterprise have been fortunate in securing the services of Mr. John E. Pinkham as Manager, which of itself would point to an eminent success, while Mr. Pinkham has prepared a list of artists and attractions, which can only strengthen the interest of a brilliant season. Mr. F. Van der Stucken of New York will conduct the orchestra of seventy-five performers, and will have the assistance of Mr. Arthur Weld as associate conductor, and of Mr. Arthur W. Thayer as chorus conductor. The list of soloists is not the smallest feature, and includes such artists as Miss Juch, Gertrude Franklin, Fraulein Sophie Traubman and Messrs. Morawski, Fessenden, Kalisch, Morgan, Boscoritz, Rosenthal and Lichtenberg. The course includes twenty public rehearsals at 2.30 o'clock, Tuesday afternoons, and twenty concerts at 8 o'clock, Tuesday evenings, the first concert and rehearsal occurring Tuesday, Nov. 20. The season tickets for either the afternoons or the evenings have been placed at the low price of $4, $6, and $8, according to location, and are to be obtained at the box office, Chickering Hall, with absolutely no premiums to be paid, every ticket being sold at the advertised rate. We congratulate Manager Pinkham upon so brilliant an outlook, and give him Newton's best wishes for a complete success.

Defective Speech Cured.

This is an extract from a letter recently received by Mrs. Thorpe from one of her pupils who had tried many methods: "I hope by taking your work into Boston your field of operations will be widened, for your own good, and more especially for the good of the large class of humanity known as stammerers; for I am as sure of your ability to save them as I am that the sun will rise to-morrow. Your knowledge on this subject and your enthusiasm in the work are unequalled, and your thorough honesty in this business (which has its humbugs and incompetents as well as any other), must mutually benefit yourself and your pupils. I have been able to breathe but a few days at a time on three different occasions, yet your principles are so simple that I have found perfect relief and know your ideas and work are thoroughly correct. This letter you may add to your long list of testimonials if you wish." Yours truly, H. LE ROY RANDALL, New Milford, Conn.

That Hired Girl.

Old stories of the proverbial assurance of the female domestic are quite eclipsed by the following tale related by the Albany Journal: "A young married couple started house-keeping and hired a young woman of Hibernian extraction to attend to the 'general house-keeping work.' She was a gem—the acme of neatness, dispatch and culinary proficiency. But she broke her young mistress' heart on the second day by climbing the stairs to the parlor during the call of a social acquaintance, and in a voice about as melodious as a fish horn, inquiring: 'Say, Bess, what time does Frank come home to dinner?'"

B. A. ATKINSON & CO., LIBERAL HOUSE FURNISHERS.

827 Washington St., Boston, Mass.

Offer the following suggestions.

There are two ways to make money. One is to earn it; the other is to save it.

There are two ways of saving money. When you save a dollar by putting it in the bank you do well; but when you save a dollar by shrewd purchasing you do better. The first is saving; the second is in reality earning.

So there are two ways of earning money. By labor and by wise purchasing.

LET US SAY A WORD ABOUT PURCHASING.

There are a few sound facts that the public are beginning to learn. What are they?

The First Thing to learn in order to become a successful purchaser is that price means nothing till you see the goods. The fact that Chamber Sets cost $25 in one store and $15 in another tells you nothing. The $25 set is perhaps worth $30 while the $15 set may not be worth carrying away.

Goods may be too cheap sometimes. Price doesn't tell the whole story. Either know the goods or know the dealer. If he is a liberal furnisher his reputation as such has gone abroad. People find it out. His trade increases, his store has to be enlarged, and when at last you learn it covers ten acres, why, it means something. It tells the whole story of his business methods. It shows that people have discovered his liberal ways and taken advantage of them. It points you the direction for your next purchase.

PEOPLE OFTEN ASK US IF IT PAYS TO ADVERTISE? It does if you have got genuine bargains. The man who advertises largely shows his own large confidence in his goods.

A Second Precept in successful purchasing is that the best is cheapest in the end. Many people who have never visited our warehouses have the idea that only cheap goods are sold by houses who sell on the credit system as well as for cash. That is a great mistake.

Remember there is a difference between Cheap Goods and Goods Cheap. Go elsewhere for cheap goods; but come here for goods cheap. The man who sells cheap goods sells his customers also. We are not in that line of business.

The public are beginning to understand the difference. Our establishment often shows this. It speaks very plainly.

A PURCHASE BY PARTIAL PAYMENTS is a savings bank, a good resolution, and the means of keeping it—all in one. It is the beginning of a successful career for it is the formation of a wise habit of saving.

Visitors to Boston are interested in our White Teams which they meet on every side. They are a part of our White Business Methods. The goods are sold on white principles and they are white goods always.

Not every bright, active young man can become President of the United States, but he may become president of a beautiful home. And as such a president he will find his White House here.

NEWTON CENTRE.

—Dr. Hayden has been and still is quite ill at his residence on Pleasant street.

—Mrs. Maria Upham Drake is delivering a course of lectures in Watertown.

—In Ward 6 of the 576 voters on the list 532 appeared at the polling place and cast their ballots.

—Mrs. S. C. Spaulding has rented the Scott cottage on Crystal street, and will take possession at once.

—Mr. and Mrs. Mellen Bray, Jr., of Boston, spent Sunday at Mr. Mellen Bray's on Institution avenue.

—Mr. George E. Warren and Mr. Fred Hovey have returned to Brown University this week. They came up to attend the dedication.

—Mrs. Maria Upham Drake is giving courses of lectures in Fitchburg, Jamaica Plain, Watertown, Portland and Lewiston, Maine.

—The vote for councillor in this ward was Fuller, 394; Plummer, 120, and Small, 18. These figures were left off the returns sent to City Hall.

—Mrs. Captain Downs of Newton, who has been at Dr. Bates' residence under treatment for some time, has returned home fully recovered.

—The Democrats with wry faces pulled down the Cleveland and Thurman campaign flags that have floated to the breeze in this ward, Thursday noon.

—Fred Bates, '90, and Harry Bates, '91, were members of the executive committee of the Harvard Republican Club, which has done such efficient work during the campaign.

—Mr. and Mrs. L. Loring Brooks were here on Sunday; they came direct, after the wedding of Mr. Fred Brooks, who acted as best man, and Mr. and Mrs. Brooks, his parents, have also returned.

—Dr. Samuel F. Smith went on last week to Ypsilanti, Michigan, to perform the ceremony at the wedding of Mr. L. Loring Brooks and Miss Glover. Dr. Smith was very much missed at the dedication.

—Rev. Charles Kingsbury, brother of City Clerk Kingsbury, who came on from the west some time ago to settle his father's estate, intends returning to New Jersey immediately. The farm is for sale.

—On Sunday fourteen young people were baptised at the Baptist church, among them six of the children from the missionary home, whose parents are in the east. The church was completely filled for its first regular morning service.

—The fine out of the Newton Centre Baptist church, published in the GRAPHIC of last week, caused a large demand for papers. The new church building is undoubtedly one of the handsomest ecclesiastical edifices in New England.

—The boys of the village it is supposed, have been breaking down fences and cutting several others. Several years ago this was done but the police succeeded in stopping it; it is to be hoped that the boys will cease destroying and mutilating other people's property without having the police sent after them this time.

—The Newton Centre Gun Club enjoyed a supper at the Woodland Park Hotel, last evening. Instrumental and vocal music and dancing were among features of the occasion. Mr. George A. Carter, humorist, gave selections during the evening. About 35 members of the club were present with ladies.

—On next Thursday evening at 7.30 o'clock, Mr. Angers Robinson will wheel Mr. Albert Scott in a wheelbarrow in payment of an election bet. They will start in front of Associates' Hall and down Station street to Beacon, up Beacon to Crescent street to Pelham, down Pelham, and finish in front of the post office. They will be accompanied by the Newton Centre Fife and Drum Corps.

—The vote polled in this ward was unusually large, and showed that Ward Six is still the banner Republican Ward. For secretary of state Mr. Pierce had 273 majority, while Harrison had 189, and Chandler 171. The prohibition ticket in this ward ran behind the vote cast in any other ward in the city. Mr. Burnett led the Democratic ticket in the ward, leading Cleveland by 37 votes.

—The Bishops of the Methodist Episcopal church, sixteen in number, will hold their semi-annual meeting in Boston next week, and all are expected to be present. This coming Sunday they will preach in various Methodist pulpits in and around Boston. Newton Centre will be favored by the presence of Bishop Goodsell, the youngest in years but one of the strongest preachers in the board, who will preach in the Methodist church in that place in the morning. A rare opportunity is thus offered the residents of that village.

NEWTON HIGHLANDS.

—The next meeting of the Monday club will be with Mrs. Shaw.

—Prof. Clarke of Wellesley College has been visiting at Rev. Mr. Phipps.

—Mr. E. H. Tarbell now occupies the house lately built for him on Chester street.

—Mr. S. C. Cobb, after several weeks at home, has returned to his business at Pensacola, Fla.

—Mr. Page is having a street built through his land at Waban, from Chestnut street to the railroad station.

—The Chataqua Club met this week with Mrs. J. F. C. Hyde. The next meeting will be with Mrs. T. P. Ritchie.

—Mrs. H. B. Clark, on account of ill health, will leave the Highlands this week, and will go south for the winter.

—Four hundred and seventy persons cast their ballot at the election on Tuesday, in Ward 5, out of five hundred and two that were entitled to vote.

—The temporary barracks occupied by Mr. Brickett were this week moved southward about 200 feet, in order to give place to the new block to be built upon its former site.

—Dr. Burr has removed from the Skinner House, which he occupied for a year or more, and has taken one of the apartments in the double apartment house lately built by him on the corner of Lake avenue and Walnut street.

—The Republicans will celebrate the election of Harrison and Morton this (Friday) evening, if the weather is fair, by an elaborate display of fire works in the square. Music will be rendered and the victors will cheer and crow lustily over the great Republican triumph.

—Mr. Irving H. Davis who located at the Highlands a few weeks since as a barber, we find to be a superior workman, and serving his patrons in a very gentlemanly manner, and we hope that he may receive sufficient patronage that it may be for his interest to remain among us.

—The ladies of the Monday Club voted for President of the United States last Monday at their meeting. Thirty-six votes were cast. Of these twenty-six were for Harrison and Morton six for Cleveland and Thurman, three for Fisk and Brooks, and one for Harrison and Thurman.

—The Monday Club are to be congratulated that they were able to secure Mlle. Calliope Kechaya to address them this week. Those who heard her seemed charmed no less with herself than with her account of her work in Greece and in Turkey. She told of her experience in securing the approbation of the Queen of Greece for her educational work among Greek girls and Greek women, and how she "stirred up a little the vanity of the ladies of Athens" in respect to the work; then of the "fiery work" which was done in the school that first year in order to prove to the Athenians that by their works they had a right to be. After her four years work in Athens, she told how she was called to Constantinople to found a college there, and how she now has not only the college for the management of which she is responsible, but also schools in many parts of Asia Minor.

—On Wednesday evening, Nov. 7, Mr. and Mrs. Gott celebrated their tenth anniversary at their residence on Lincoln street. Over one hundred invitations were issued, about every one responding personally, not forgetting to bring some token of respect for the happy couple. Among the many presents were a beautiful piano lamp, some fine easy chairs, also a fine painting, the product of one of our natural artists, the Rev. Mr. Phipps. By 8 o'clock the parlors were filled with as jolly a company as was ever in Newton Highlands. It was a combination of radiant faces and light hearts. Mr. Gott's brother presided at the piano and furnished some very fine music. The very accomplished Miss Lewis of Portland, Me., gave some fine selections on the piano, which were highly appreciated. At about 9.30 a fine collation was served which was enjoyed by all, especially by the writer of this, he having a fondness for angel cake. It is natural for some to like the best. After the collation there was singing and dancing which was enjoyed by old and young. The hour having arrived for the friends to leave, each one expressed their pleasure at being present, wishing the happy couple many a year of happiness in their pretty home, and in return taking with them the life-long impression made by the radiant smiles of Mr. and Mrs. Gott.

NEWTON UPPER FALLS.

—Mr. Dyson lost a horse on Saturday of last week.

—The question next to be considered is, who is to be our next mayor?

—Many from our village went to Boston on Monday evening, to witness the Republican torchlight parade.

—The state election passed very quietly, the splendid weather helping materially to bring out the large vote cast.

—The election returns were received at Newton Highlands, and there was a crowd about the station until a late hour in order to get the "latest."

—Mr. C. S. Lovell, who recently gave up his position as clerk for Mr. Billings to accept a similar position in Lynn, was in the place on Tuesday.

NEWTON LOWER FALLS.

—The Democrats held a very successful rally in Boyden Hall, Newton Lower Falls, last Saturday evening. Every seat was occupied, and the aisles and floor failed to accommodate the large number present. Music was rendered by the Newton City Band, and addresses upon the tariff were given by Messrs. John Orvis of Boston, Joseph J. Kelly of Cambridge and Thomas Drew of West Newton.

Charles Ward Post.

A large number of the members of Charles Ward Post, 62, went to Lower Falls Wednesday night, and gave a surprise and reception to Surgeon J. L. Sears in Boyden hall. The ladies of Lower Falls had decorated the hall with flowers, and also furnished a bountiful supper, which was enjoyed later in the evening. After reaching the hall, Commander Lucas and Past Commander Sylvester went to Surgeon Sears' residence and invited him to take a walk with them. His family were in the secret and followed to the hall, when the guest of the evening was escorted to a seat on the platform. Junior Vice Commander Fiske welcomed him and, on behalf of the post, presented him with a handsome easy chair, upholstered in velvet, and spoke of his services in behalf of his country, he being a hero of two wars, the Mexican and the War of the Rebellion, and his record of attendance at post meetings being not exceeded by any other member, he having been absent from only six meetings in 20 years. Mr. Sears was so utterly taken by surprise that he was unable to reply, but he thanked the Post heartily for their remembrance and expressions of good will. The supper and a social dance concluded the evening's festivities. Among the articles received for the supper was a generous donation of fruit from Mrs. Thomas Rice, who has kept up the interest that her husband always felt in the soldiers of the late war.

This is one of the best stores in Boston to buy ready made clothing, as the goods are all of the best make and finish, and can be depended on to be just what they are represented to be. Remember you save one profit by going up stairs.

NONANTUM.

—The Republicans of this village celebrated the election of Harrison and Morton by a torchlight parade, fireworks, etc., last evening (Thursday). A large number participated, despite the weather, and the event was pronounced a success. Coffee, sandwiches, etc., were served to the men at the residence of Dr. Stearns, while the officers were treated to an oyster supper inside. After the doctor had sung by special request a few stanzas of that new song, "Carve that Possum," the gathering broke up at an early hour.

Holiday Goods.

You would never believe that five or ten cents would buy such handsome and desirable articles as are to be displayed on Francis Murdoch & Co's bargain counters in the basement of their store. How they can do it is a mystery, but perhaps it is because as the Dutchman said, they expect to sell so many of them. Their holiday goods will be open to the public tomorrow, and comprise an endless variety of the latest novelties in toilet articles, bric-a-brac, and fancy goods. Seeing is believing and everyone is invited to call and inspect the goods.

The Plurality.

The vote of this State from all but Gosnold and North Reading has been received and is as follows:

Harrison, 183,450; Cleveland, 151,900; Earle, 8,630; Harrison's plurality is 31,447. Ames, 180,724; Russell, 152,942; Earle, 9,170. Ames' plurality, 27,782.

Miscellaneous.

Opportunities for great usefulness, like thousand-dollar notes, seldom come to ordinary mortals, but little kindnesses and benefactions are wanted daily, and, like small change, are very necessary to carry on the business of life and happiness. —[Hartford Religious Herald.]

Major Stofal—Can you sell me a blue necktie to match my eyes? Clerk, politely—Very sorry, sir, we are just out of the blues, but I can sell you a beautiful red one to match your nose. —[Washington Post.]

The latest instance of economy is that of a Boston man who declined to buy a compass to take into the Maine woods. He said he was a singer, and could save expense by using the compass of his voice. —[Burlington Free Press.]

The Philadelphia Record tells the following story about little George: Every night his good mother sits by his bedside and endeavors to answer his questions. One night there were more than usual, and she said: "Now, George, you must go to sleep; I'll not answer any more questions." "Mamma, just one more." "Not one more, mamma, please." "Only one more, mamma, please." "Well, what is it, George?" "Mamma, if Satan was so bad, who robed his cradle when he was a baby?" The mother has not been able to answer that question yet.

Miss Anderson is by no means a slave to the critics. She says that when she decided to play the two parts of Hermione and her daughter Perdita, in "The Winter's Tale," herself, there was a perfect howl raised against her doing so by the London critics. She says that she fancied that they thought her audacity was truly American. Her success in that play, which had always previously been a failure, attests to the genuine artistic instinct of this American actress. She explains this herself: "If I get a deep feeling in me that a thing is right, I try my best to do it whether it has ever been done before or not. I find that even the slightest thread of conventionalality will bind and fetter one so that one's powers are restricted. And if one can, it is very wise not to think of what has been done before. Therefore playing both parts was really a novelty, as it had never been done before."

Bessie [just home from boarding-school]—(I'm delighted to see you mamma. (Kisses her.) Mamma (regarding her suspiciously)—Bessie, you didn't kiss with a burrowing motion when you went away from home. You've learned that from somebody with a long moultache! —[Chicago Tribune.]

A GREAT MAGAZINE.

The Century for 1889.

HE question has often been asked, "to what does The Century owe its great circulation?" The Christian Union once answered this by the statement that "it has been fairly won, not by advertising schemes, but by the excellence which characterizes it in every department." In their announcements for the coming year the publishers state that it has always been their desire to make The Century the one indispensable periodical of its class, so that whatever other publication might be desirable in the family, The Century could not be neglected by those who wish to keep abreast of the times in all matters pertaining to culture. And the unprecedented circulation of the magazine would seem to be the response of the public to this intention.

With the November number The Century begins its thirty-seventh volume. Two great features of the magazine which are to continue throughout the new volume are already well known to the public, the Lincoln history and the papers on "Siberia and the Exile System." The first of these, written by Messrs. Nicolay and Hay, President Lincoln's private secretaries, contains the inside history of the dark days of the war, as seen from the White House.

THE SIBERIAN PAPERS, by George Kennan, are attracting the attention of the civilized world. The Chicago Tribune says that "no other magazine articles printed in the English language just now touch upon a subject which so vitally interests all thoughtful people in Europe and America and Asia." As is already known, copies of The Century entering Russia have these articles torn out by the customs officials on the frontier.

The Century will publish the most important art feature that has yet found place in its pages. It is the result of four years' work of Mr. Timothy Cole, the leading magazine engraver of the world, in the galleries of Europe, engraving from the originals the greatest pictures by the old masters. A series of papers on Ireland, its customs, landscapes, etc., will appear, and there are to be illustrated articles on Bible scenes, treating especially the subjects of the International Sunday-School Lessons. George W. Cable will write "Strange True Stories of Louisiana." There will be novelettes and short stories by leading writers, occasional articles on war subjects (supplemental to the famous "War Papers" by General Grant and others, which have been appearing in The Century), etc., etc.

The Century costs four dollars a year, and it is published by The Century Co., of New York, who will send a copy of the full prospectus on request.

FOR CHILDREN OF ALL

St. Nicholas for 1889.

PEOPLE who have the idea that St. Nicholas Magazine is only for little children should look over the prospectus of that magazine for 1889, and they will discover that it is for children of all ages, "from five to eighty-five," as some one recently said of it. Indeed, while St. Nicholas is designed for girls and boys, it might almost be called a "family magazine," for the grown-up members of a household will find much to interest them in every number.

The editor, Mrs. Mary Mapes Dodge, calls the next volume an "all-round-the-world year," because it is to contain so many illustrated papers about the world in general—not dry geographical papers, but stories and sketches and tales of travel and adventure by land and sea—and all illustrated by the best artists. The features will include a serial story, "How We Made the Farthest North," by Gen. A. W. Greely, the well-known commander of the Greely Expedition; a serial about Canada, by Mrs. Catherine Wood, who is writing a serial story for The Century this year; "Indians of the Amazon," by Mrs. Frank R. Stockton. There are many papers about Europe, including a Christmas story of life in Norway, by H. H. Boyesen; articles on Holland and the Dutch, by Mrs. Mary Mapes Dodge; "The Queen's Navy," by Lieut. F. Harrison Smith, R. N., with illustrations of many of England's finest war ships; "The Winchester School," illustrated by Joseph Pennell; "Home Life in the French provinces," by Wm. H. Rideing, etc., etc. The French papers include "Ferdinand de Lesseps and his Ship Canals," and there are several interesting contributions from German, Italian and Russian writers.

Under "Asia," comes "Boys and Girls in China," by Yan Phou Lee (a recent graduate of Yale); "Home Life in the East," by Mrs. Holman Hunt, and a number of papers about Japan. Under "Africa" there is a sketch of Henry M. Stanley, by Noah Brooks, and several stories about Egypt. Australia is not forgotten, nor the islands of the sea, and there are even to be stories of under the sea.

Of course the bulk of the contents will relate to American subjects, as usual. Mrs. Burnett, the author of "Little Lord Fauntleroy," contributes a story of New York called "Little Saint Elizabeth"; there will be papers describing how the government offices are conducted, papers about athletics, amateur photography, etc. The full prospectus will be sent to any one who wishes to see it by the publishers, The Century Co., of New York.

The Graphic recently said of St. Nicholas, "the family without it is only half-blessed."

—Rev. Wm. Butler of Newton Centre preaches the annual missionary sermon at the Methodist church next Sunday morning. Dr. Butler spent many years in India and was the founder of the Methodist missions in that country. He is exceedingly interesting as a speaker on this theme, in which he is so enthusiastic.

—To persons working in the mills and to all mechanics the Newton Hospital has proven itself to be a great blessing to the working people of our city, and they should show their appreciation of it by contributing to its support. It will need every one's help, for about $7,000 must be raised for this year. Nov. 25 is Hospital Sunday.

—Mr. D. W. Farquhar, who was a secretary of the Massachusetts delegation at the Chicago convention, has invited the Republican delegates and alternates to a reunion at his residence on Pembroke street, Friday, the 22d. Mrs. Farquhar joins in requesting the delegates to bring their wives. Lunch will be served about 2 o'clock, and the occasion is certain to be a very pleasant one.

—An unusually fine program, which is given in full on page seven, is presented by the Young Ladies' Foreign Missionary Society of Eliot church, for their concert in the Baptist church next Tuesday evening. The soloists are all well known in Newton, and a performance of artistic merit is guaranteed to all who attend.
The concert will commence at 7.45 sharp, and tickets may be obtained at Hubbard & Procter's.

—At a meeting of the ministers of the different religious bodies of Newton, held on Monday afternoon in the parish house of Grace Church, the Revs. H. L.
Wheeler, W. A. Lamb and Fayette Nichols were appointed a committee to make collections on hospital Sunday. The crowded condition of the hospital makes it necessary to secure very much more money than during the last three years for current expenses.

—The Helping Hand Society of Grace church gave an interesting entertainment in the parish house, Wednesday evening.
A series of tableaux were presented and a pretty little drama in three acts followed. It is entitled "The Changelings," and was presented by the following young ladies: Misses Grace Montgomery, Mollie Pond, Nellie Flint, Mary Cutler, Mary Cook, Elsie Brainerd, Edith Kimball, Fanny Brainerd, Annie Hudson, Susie Peck, Bessie Peck, Edith Hale, Beatrice Springer.

—A fully attended meeting of the executive committee of the Newton Woman's Suffrage League was held at the house of Mr. Geo. A. Walton, West Newton, last Friday evening. Mr. Walton reported for the committee on nominations for members of the School board that a meeting of ladies interested in the matter had been held at Newtonville, at which Mrs. Mary Martin had been nominated as successor to Miss A. A. Smead, who refuses to serve another year.

—A grand and costly committee was selected to inspect the voting list, and to ascertain the number of women registered and to act as a rallying committee. It was voted that three meetings be held during the winter, one at Auburndale, one at Newton and one at Newtonville. The first of these meetings is to be held on Thursday, Nov. 22, at 7.30 o'clock, in the chapel of Lasell Seminary, Auburndale. An address will be given by Mrs. S. S. Fessenden, of the franchise department of the Women's Christian Temperance Union, subject,
"The relation of woman to education and the saloon." All are cordially invited to be present.

Y. M. C. A.
The eleventh anniversary of the Newton Young Men's Christian Association will be held in Eliot Hall, next Sunday afternoon, at 3 o'clock. Walter C. Douglass, Esq., General Secretary of the Boston Association, will deliver the principal address. R. M. Armstrong, Esq., the popular State Secretary, will also be present and add his good words of cheer to the occasion. The music will be by the well-known Mendelssohn Male quartet of Boston. These anniversaries are always occasions of interest when the friends of the association gather to show their interest and hear the report of the glorious work which the association is doing in our city, and this year will probably see the hall filled as usual to enjoy this rare opportunity to show their interest and enjoy the very interesting program which the committee has prepared. All are cordially invited, and those who come early will be sure of seats.

Change of Time.
The Boston & Albany railroad will make several changes in its time-table on the 18th, or rather on the 19th, as no Sunday train is affected. There will be no changes in through trains between Boston & Albany or between Boston and New York. A new train to Riverside, stopping at all intermediate stations, will leave Boston at 6 p. m. The present 6.50
a. m. train to Newton Highlands will be discontinued, but one will run empty from Boston at 6.25 a. m. via the circuit to Riverside, and returning via the main line, will constitute a new accommodation train from Riverside at 7.15 a. m., reaching Boston at 7.50. All Circuit trains will stop at Eliot.

Artistic Specialities.
For anything in the way of lamps, chan-delliers, etc., Newton people should call upon R. Hollings & Co., 347 Washington street, next to the Adams house, Boston, where they will find the most extensive assortment of the latest styles of goods, many of these being recent importations.
See advertisement in another column.

The Essex Boot and Shoe Co., calf, hand-sewed waukenphast for $5.00.

Orchard streets, will be sold at auction
next Tuesday, by S. S. Gleason. There are 10,712 feet of land with a stable, all in good repair.

HONEYMOON."

The second season of the entertainments given by The Players was opened at City Hall this week, when "A Russian Honeymoon" was presented. A very large and enthusiastic audience was in attendance on the first night; on the second some were kept away by the storm, but there was no lack of applause and the excellent work done was evidently appreciated. The cast was as follows:
Poleska De Fermstein. Miss Boynton
Baroness Vladimir. Mrs. Farley
Micheline. Miss Fallett
Konikoff. Mr. Walker
Ivan. Mr. Stubbson
Alexis. Mr. Call
Osip. Mr. Fowle
Mr. Call had the leading part of Alexis, and the fact that he leaves Newton this week for New York lent an additional interest to the performance. The plays opens in a peasant's hut in Russia, where the count passes himself off as a shoemaker in order to subdue the pride and haughty temper of his bride, somewhat after the style of Claude Melnotte. His appeals to her to live simply for love, and be content even if her husband is a peasant instead of a count were very effective, and so were the exhibitions of Poleska's temper, and her gradual yielding to her love for him. The character of Ivan gave occasion for some admirable traits, and Mr. Stubbson played the old shoemaker with a charming air of reality, while making the most of the humorous situations. Mr. Walker was equally effective as Konikoff, the count's man of business, and a real Russian could hardly have done better. The Baroness Vladim-er, sister of Alexis, was simply delightful, with her airs and affectations, her enjoyment of a mystery and her interest in the novel role of a judge, which she found to be "better than Paris." Micheline, the daughter of Ivan, and Osip, her coverly assisted in making the performance a success.

The costuming and stage setting were admirable, Ivan's hut and the castle's drawing room each being appropriately furnished, while the costumes were as nearly Russian as it was possible to make them.

The music was furnished by the High School Orchestra, and was honored with several encores.

The Players are certainly doing a great deal for the enjoyment of Newton, and social occasions are too few and far between, and the popularity of their entertainments from the very beginning shows the pleasure which such occasions can give, when managed so admirably as have been all of those given by The Players.

Bent-Woodburn.

The first wedding in the Newton Baptist church was solemnized Wednesday evening. Miss Mary L. Woodburn and Mr. Herbert F. Bent were the contracting parties, and Rev. Dr. Thomas of Newton Centre officiated. The auditorium was filled with the friends of the bride and groom. The decorations were very beautiful, the pulpit platform being laden with rare flowers, and a variety of potted plants. The bride was dressed in white silks, with court train and wore the usual long tulle veil. She carried a beautiful bunch of tea roses. When the bridal party entered the church, the organist played the introduction and the bridal procession from Lohengrin and Wagner.
The other organ numbers were from compositions of West, Jensen and Goun-
d. The ushers were, Messrs. Edward Russell, Jr., Frank Wheeler, George Donkin, Wallace Moore, Newton: W. F.
Jones of Boston, and Charles A. Davenport of Cambridge. The primary department of the Newton Baptist Sunday school, of which Mr. Bent is the superintendent, occupied seats in the gallery, and the Semper Paratus Club was present in a body. After the ceremony a reception to family friends was held at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Bent on Washington street, Newton. Mr. and Mrs.
Bent will enjoy a wedding tour in the South, and will be absent about a month.
The couple receive many wedding gifts, including a beautiful gold watch to the bride from the groom's father. $50 in gold from the brother of the groom, an elegant case of silver spoons from the Semper Paratus Club; a silver tea service from the primary department of the Raptist Sunday school. Among the other presents were a toilet set, silver butter knife, silver berry spoon and case, Crown Derby vase, silver spoon and case, silver nut dish, silver card receiver, "Shakespeare's Home," (handsomely bound), silver oyster shell, "Log-Book Notes" (a series of exquisite marine engravings) from the bride's school friends in Brat-tlesboro, engraving on silk, sliding book-rest, beautiful bronze mantel ornament, bisque figure, modern mosaic, beautiful case of silver knives, lace fan, silver butter dish, handsome case and tray, silver handsome case and tray, silver butter silver ladle and case, silver knife, set of George Eliot's works, and many other useful and beautiful articles.
Among the presents from the business friends of Mr. Bent were an elegant antique oak sideboard from the Ayer Furniture Co., and an elaborate cooking range from the Plymouth Foundry Co.

Mr. Bent recently purchased the C. H.
Pierce house on Washington street,
which he has remodelled and improved.
The interior is beautifully furnished and very tasteful in all appointments. The sitting room there is a pretty open fire place with an elaborate mahogany mantel decorated with panels painted in oil colors.

Among guests present at the wedding were noticed Mayor Kimball, Judge Harman, ex-Alderman Leonard Cutler of Boston, Mr. Wm. Roberts of Waltham,
Mr. and Mrs. G. S. Harwood, and numerous friends from the Newtons, Brat-tlesboro, Cambridge, Waltham, Watertown, Chelsea and Middleboro.

NONANTUM.

—There is a nice lot of the Nonantum dress goods on sale at Hudson's.
—Wm. Mitchell, employed by the Nonantum Worsted company to run the yarn-net, a very large and complicated machine, in some unaccountable way got his hand between the rollers and had it very badly mutilated Saturday afternoon.

20TH ANNIVERSARY OF THE INCORPORATION OF THE TOWN OF NEWTON.

Both branches of the city government were in session Monday night, all of the aldermen being present except Alderman French.

Mayor Kimball sent in a message calling attention to the fact that the town of Newton was incorporated in the year 1688, and as this was the 200th anniversary there should be some public recognition of it. The message was received, and after some discussion the following committee was appointed to consider the plan of an appropriate celebration: Mayor Kimball, Aldermen Pettie, Ward and Childs, President Burr, Councilmen Hale, Hamblen and Bond, and it was voted to appropriate not to exceed $200 to pay the expenses of such celebration.

Mayor Kimball in explaining his message said it was contemplated to hold the celebration in the largest hall in Newton and invite ex-Governor Rice and other native Newtonians to make addresses, and to provide suitable music.

The result of the recent election was then declared, no notices of a contest having been received.

SELLING BONDS.

Alderman Childs presented an order which was passed, authorizing the City Treasurer, under the direction of the finance committee, to sell four per cent. water bonds to the amount of $15,000, the sum realized to be applied for water construction. Mr. Childs stated that the sinking fund commissioners would take the bonds and that the water department needed the money.

FIRE DEPARTMENT.

On recommendation of Chief Bixby, E. A. Mansfield was granted an honorable discharge from No. 7 Hose, and W. J. Riley was appointed a member of No. 2 Hose, to fill a vacancy.

A number of bills were approved and ordered paid.

Alderman Ward presented the petition of property owners in the vicinity for four street lamps on Clarendon street, between Cabot street and a private way near Harvard street.

NEW STREETS.

Alderman Nickerson presented petitions from H. B. Day and others for the laying out and acceptance of Berkeley street, westerly from Chestnut street, and also for the acceptance of Prince street as public highways; referred to the highway committee.

ABC LIGHT.

Residents of Upper Falls petitioned for an electric arc light on Chestnut street, opposite St. Mary's church; referred to highway committee.

NEW BUILDINGS.

A petition for license to build an addition to the Newton GRAPHIC building was granted.

Charles Miner asked for license to build a stable and shed in Ward Five, 20 by 30; granted.

J. Herlihy gave notice of intention to build a house 26 by 30 feet on Edinboro street, Ward Two.

G. Brown gave notice of intention to build house 23 by 26 on Alden Place off River street, Ward Three, and T. F. Gamman, one 25 by 35 on same street.

RESOLUTIONS.

Alderman Johnson from the joint special committee appointed to draw up resolutions on the death of ex-Mayor Pulsifer, read the following:

To the City Council of Newton. The joint committee appointed to draft appropriate resolutions upon the death of the late ex-Mayor Royal M. Pulsifer, so long and prominently identified with our city affairs, respectfully submit the following as expressing in some measure the high respect and sincere affection with which his memory will be long and kindly cherished:

Resolved, That in his public and private life he recognize a notable example of unswerving integrity and enduring character, distinguished alike for earnest and efficient devotion to the welfare of our city and its institutions, and for noble and generous interest in ministries of humanity and beneficence.

That in his faithful discharge of important municipal services and responsibilities, our people were especially favored, while in all his relations of public and private citizenship no one deserved more grateful and honorable mention.

That in rendering this tribute to his memory, the city council of Newton expresses its sincere and kindly sympathy with the afflicted family and relatives, whose great loss is so widely appreciated and deeply mourned.

The resolutions were adopted by a rising vote.

FLORAL AVENUE.

Alderman Nickerson reported an order authorizing the city treasurer to pay such sums as may be received from abutters on Floral avenue, Ward Five, as their part of the betterments, to highway widening and reconstruction, and also appropriating all such sums to pay the cost of the widening and reconstruction of said avenue. The order was passed.

A FOUL CONDUIT.

Residents near the corner of Walnut and Beacon streets petitioned to have the unfinished conduit conveying water through their lands examined, claiming that it was full of stagnant water, from which rose a disagreeable odor, and that it was dangerous to health; referred to highway committee.

DR. DEAN'S WATER PIPE.

The order granting Dr. Dean permission to use iron service pipe came back from the common council, with the endorsement that they adhered to their action, requiring Dr. Dean to pay for the laying of the pipe. The aldermen also voted to adhere to their action and a committee of conference was appointed.

Alderman Pettie called for the water ordinances, and read from section 12 of ordinance 20, which provides that the city shall lay at its own expense the service pipes from the street main to the boundary line of the abutter's property. He did not see how the city council could pass an order violating a city ordinance, without voting to suspend the ordinance. The common council practically refused to comply with the ordinance of the city, and if the ordinance were not to be obeyed they should be repealed. He thought it was the duty of the council to conform to the ordinance without any committee of conference. He saw in the GRAPHIC of last week that the matter had come before the board of health, and that Dr. Frisbie and the chairman of the state board of health had allowed that there was a possibility of danger from the use of lead pipe, and the board of health had decided to give further discussion to the subject. The water main was put at one side of the street and the ordinance was so worded that all citizens would be treated fairly, and one citizen not be required to lay 13 feet and the man on the other side of the street 27 feet. It is the duty of the city council to obey the ordinance and to see that all citizens are treated fairly.

Alderman Childs said that the water board proposed to dictate as to who shall be made to pay for laying water pipes, and who shall not, and the common council were supporting them in this policy. But neither the water board nor the city council had a right to dictate in such a matter. Dr. Dean had a perfect right to have iron service pipes if he desired, and so had every other citizen. He thought that the rights of citizens and the ordinance should be respected by the city council, even if they were not by the water board.

The motion then passed for a committee of conference, and Mayor Kimball appointed Aldermen Childs, Pettie and Johnson; President Burr appointed for the council, Messrs. Wiswall, Bond and Ranlett.

WORK AT THE STONE CRUSHER.

The order appropriating $4,000 for the work of getting out crushed stone for use on the streets came from the common council amended by substituting $3,000, as that is all that will now be required to carry on the work to Jan. 1st.

As amended the order was passed. Alderman Chadwick from the committee on public property reported that the $900 appropriated for ventilating the Pierce school house had been expended and the work done.

A petition was received from F. E. Clark and others asking that Auburn Place in Ward Four be laid out and accepted as a public street, to be 35 feet wide; referred to Highway committee. The board then adjourned.

The Common Council.

In the common council all the members were present except Messrs. Rice and Greenwood. Concurrent business was disposed of, and there was considerable debate on the stone crusher order and Dr. Dean's water pipe.

The appropriations for next year were presented and the board adjourned to next Monday evening, when the items will be taken up in detail for discussion.

A NOVEL SEWERAGE PLAN.

An Idea Which Might Well be Applied to Newton.

EAST ORANGE, N. J., PROPOSES TO MAINTAIN HEALTH, IF IT DOES COST A LITTLE MONEY.

Newton's need of sewerage, is often times brought home with force, and never more forcibly than in a perusal of the following from the New York Tribune regarding the evidently admirable system adopted at East Orange, N. J.

The incorporated town of East Orange, N. J., has just completed a system of sewerage treatment that presents some novel features, both in the details of construction of the pipe lines, and the process for rendering the refuse matter innocuous and disposing of it. The engineering problem was a decidedly complex one. The town covers an area of about six square miles. Its general topographical features are a succession of rolling ridges running north and south, while the natural drainage is by three distinct water sheds. To devise a system of drainage and sewerage pipes that should collect the sewerage matter from the entire territory and concentrate it at a definite point on the outskirts of the town for deodorization and treatment seemed at first an impracticable scheme.

The agitation of the subject was begun early in 1883, and under the lead of the Township Improvement association, engineering experts were engaged to study the problem and prepare plans. In May, 1884, a set of plans prepared by C. F. Bassett were adopted, and he was placed in charge of the work, which has since been pushed steadily to completion. The system is what is known as the small-pipe, flush-tank system. Four main sewers are laid through the natural valleys or depressions. They vary in diameter from 12 to 24 inches, and are tapped at a h street intersection by short laterals of smaller diameter running transversely. With these laterals the house connections are made. At the extreme end of each lateral is constructed an automatic flush tank, ingeniously contrived so as to discharge 200 gallons of water in a solid body into the pipe once in twenty-four hours. For the clearance of any obstruction that the flushing fails to dislodge, manholes are constructed 380 feet apart over the main line and a clever arrangement of jointed iron rods with scraper attached is used.

About one-fifth of the township, or that part lying east of the Grove-street hill, lay at such a low grade that it was found impossible to conduct the sewage to the disposal works by gravity alone. A separate system was therefore provided for this section concentrating in a central collecting vault, from whence it is forced by an Otto sewage pump through a line of iron pipes over the Grove-street hill and into the main sewer. With the exception of this short line, all the sewers are built of vitrified drain pipes cemented at joints, the diameter of the small laterals into which the house connections lead being eight inches and that of the trunk or carrying lines from 10 to 24 inches.

But it is the treatment of the sewage matter at what are termed disposal works that the greatest novelty in the system exists. The disposal works are located at Greenwood avenue, and comprise about fourteen acres of ground of an old historic mill pond. The "second river," a tributary of the Passaic, runs along the westerly side. The buildings are of considerable architectural pretensions, looking at first sight like an old feudal castle or medieval monastery. They are built of blue trap rock, laid in rock-faced irregular ashlar with red mortar. The main building is massive, with wide, low Norman arches, battlemented parapets, and at the corners heavy octagonal turrets, surmounted by high pyramidal roofs. To the north stretch away the settling tanks, the building being of similar architectural design, and pierced by panes of lancet-shaped windows.

The tank-house is divided by a longitudinal wall into two great settling tanks, each thirty-six feet wide by two feet high by 112 feet long, and each of them is sub-divided by transverse walls into three compartments. These two tanks are used alternately, one being drawn off and cleaned while the other is filling. The sewerage matter entering the works through the main sewer first passes through what is technically termed "the salmou ladder," a series of interlocking and alternating projections from the sides of the sewer. Into the sewer at this point runs a small but steady stream of deodorizing and disinfecting chemicals. The effect of the salmou ladder is to thoroughly disintegrate the sewage and mix the chemicals with it. It now passes into the settling tanks, filling successively the three compartments. The solid matters settle to the bottom and the liquid—now entirely inodorous, flows out through the irrigating channels over the surface of the adjoining grounds. Here it speedily sinks through the earth to the underlying network of the drains, and from thence passes into the second river.

The solid matter collects in the bottom of the settling tank, and when the deposit is of sufficient quantity, the inflow of sewage is changed to the other tank, the supernatant water is carefully siphoned off, and the cold residuum drawn into the sludge well. From here it is drawn up by vacuum pressure into the cast iron receivers, at the same time mixed with milk of lime. The effect of the latter ingredient is to still further cut and disintegrate the greasy element and flocculent matter, rendering the separation of the remaining water easier. When the receivers are full the flow is reversed and the matter forced through coarse canvas bags arranged as linings on the interior of a series of corrugated sliding disks of iron, tightly bound to the shaft of a screw. When the last remaining water is forced out in this press under an average pressure of 150 pounds to the inch, the press is opened and the residuum, now in the shape of circular cakes of a chocolate color, and having a slightly pungent aromatic odor, is taken out and packed away in casks to be sold as fertilizer. The revenue from this source, it is believed, will pay the entire cost of running the disposal works. The sewerage system is calculated to dispose of the refuse from a population of 60,000. This is four times the present population of the township. To cover the township completely 60 miles of sewers will be necessary. The system as it now stands comprises only about 27 miles of pipe. The cost of the entire system has been about $370,000. Of this amount $90,000 was expended for the plant at the disposal works, and $310,000 for the pipe lines. The funds were raised by the issuance of sewer loan bonds, which were floated at from 4 to 5 per cent.

Hospital Sunday.

A meeting of the ministers of Newton and the finance committee of the Newton Cottage Hospital was held in the parish house of Grace church, Monday afternoon, to consider plans for the Hospital collection on Hospital Sunday, and a committee was appointed to get out circulars and make all necessary arrangements. It is hoped that a handsome sum will be realized this year, and the great value of the hospital in caring for the sick and injured in this city, should appeal to the generosity of all citizens. The Hospital Sunday collection the first year amounted to $1,048.09; the second year, $1,521.42; the third year, $1,492.71. The cost of supporting the hospital in 1887 was $5,700; the cost for the current year will probably be about $7,000. The receipts for care and treatment of patients in 1887 were $1,829.77; the receipts from the city, $1,000. The income from two free beds for 1888 was $900, and the income from invested funds, $550. The number of patients admitted this year to date has been 88, of which number 57 have been discharged as well-numbered from the hospital, and 31 are now in the hospital. During the month of October, in addition to the milk supplied from the Cottage Hospital dairy, 500 quarts of milk was consumed by patients. Outside of Newton, the hospital has acquired a reputation for the successful methods of treating disease, and the success which has been attained. It is regarded by physicians as one of the best hospitals in the country.

The Verdict Unanimous.

W. D. Sult, Druggist, Bippus, Ind., testifies: "I can recommend Electric Bitters as the very best remedy. Every bottle sold has given relief in every case. One man took six bottles, and was cured of Rheumatism of 10 years' standing." Abraham Hare, druggist, Belleville, Ohio, affirms: "The best selling medicine I have ever handled in my 20 years' experience, is Electric Bitters." Thousands of others have added their testimony, so that the verdict is unanimous that Electric Bitters do cure all diseases of the Liver, Kidneys or Blood. Only a half dollar a bottle at Arthur Hudson's drug-store.

Happy and Hungry.

For over five years I was a constant sufferer with that most terrible and annoying disease, dyspepsia. After trying out hundreds of dollars, the only medicine I found that would do me any good was Sulphur Bitters. Six bottles cured me. Now I can eat well and am happy and hungry.

Mrs. Geo. P. Cooke was appointed treasurer in place of Mrs. Dickinson resigned.

—So many rare and curious things have been promised to the committee on the Art Loan Exhibition, that it is expected to be an occasion of great interest to all. Rich old lace, quaint costumes of brocade of our grandmothers' festive days, bric-a-brac and curios from far away countries beyond the sea, oil paintings and water colors and artistic needlework, with many an article of romantic history, will tend to charm the fancy, while the confectionary and cream, and cake will add to the sociability of the occasion. As a great amount of time and labor is involved on the part of the Guild, it is hoped the public will show their cordial appreciation.

Call leave Newton this week to take up their permanent residence in New York City, where Mr. Call has accepted a position in the advertising department of the Royal Baking Powder company, one of the wealthiest concerns in the country. He has been connected with the Boston Herald for almost 12 years, and for the last four has had charge of the advertising department, and severs his connection with the Herald much to the regret of the owners of the paper. For the present Mr. and Mrs. Call will board at the Gilsey House, New York, where Mrs. Call's parents are staying.

—Miss Fannie L. Chick and Mr. Walter S. Cunningham were married at the residence of the bride's parents in Boston, Tuesday afternoon, Rev. R. A. White, pastor of the Universalist church, officiating. They will be assisted by that always popular soprano, Mrs. Louise Baldwin Powers, Mr. Bernhard Listemann and Mr. Wulf Fries will be the instrumental soloists of the evening. The Newton Musical Society are deserving of thanks for their enterprise in bringing this very fine company to West Newton, and it is to be hoped they will receive a good substantial vote from the people.

—Many visitors have been attracted to the conservatories of Mr. E. W. Wood, Highland street, during the early part of the week, where has been displayed one of the most beautiful exhibits of chrysanthemums seen in many years. The variety of foliage and coloring is simply bewildering and the harmonious effects of color appeal to the tastes of the lover of the beautiful in nature, commanding his admiration in the myriad beauties which completely fill the available space in one of the large green houses on Mr. Wood's estate. A number of seedlings in luxuriant bloom and rich coloring have been greatly admired by many horticulturists in Newton and its vicinity. Many of the choicest plants were exhibited at the chrysanthemum show of the Massachusetts Horticultural Association in Horticultural Hall, Boston, Wednesday and Thursday and compared favorably with the finest varieties from the conservatories in various sections of the State.

—The sixth anniversary of the Newell Young People's Society of Christian Endeavor was observed with interesting exercises in the Second Congregational church, Tuesday evening. A reception to the delegation of visiting societies was held from 6:30 to 7:45 o'clock. Quite a number of societies were represented, delegates being present from Watertown, Wellesley, Charlestown, Brighton, Boston, Dorchester, South Natick, So. Framingham, Waltham and Needham. A collation was served at 6:30 o'clock. A public meeting was held in the chapel, the exercises commencing at 8 o'clock. After an organ voluntary and singing by the young people's choir, Rev. H. J. Patrick read from the Scriptures. Singing by a ladies' quartet preceded the report of the secretary, Mr. Warren E. Leach, which follows: "It gives us great pleasure to greet you on this our sixth anniversary. The past year has been a prosperous one, although several of our members have left us since September, among them some of our most earnest workers. At the beginning of the year we had 41 active and 20 associate members on our roll; during the year 33 active and 10 associate members have been added, showing faithful work on the part of our Lookout committee. Six active and one associate members have had their names dropped from the Society, so that now we have a total of 100 members, including our honorary member, Deacon R. W. Kendall. Our motto, which you will see in the prayer-meeting room, was adopted during the past year. At the beginning of the year we had $5.66 in the treasury, and have since secured $76.44, of which $71.77 was expended, $40 going to the United Society of Christian Endeavor, leaving a balance of $10.33. Several of our members have joined the church, indicating interest in the work for the Master. We trust that the ensuing year will prove as prosperous as that through which we have just passed. The work of the committee has been good; the prayer-meeting committee has furnished topics and leaders; the Sunday School committee has brought in several new members to our Sunday School; the Flower committee has furnished flowers for the church and parlors and afterwards distributed them among the sick, and in that way done much good. Last winter the Social committee gave an entertainment which was very enjoyable and the society was helped financially to the extent of $61.98. Standing thus, as we do, at the turning point in our year, looking back at the past with the record we have just reviewed, shall we not take fresh courage from our work, and looking to God for help, press forward in the cause of Christian Endeavor?" At the conclusion of the report an interesting address was delivered by Rev. Elijah Horr of East Boston, and a selection was rendered by a mixed quartet, followed by congregational singing and the benediction.

—Last Sunday evening the Congregational Sunday School concert was held. It was a Temperance Concert, under the auspices of the W. C. T. U. Verses from the Old and New Testaments were repeated in favor of total abstinence, or of efforts to rescue the tempted, and there were recitations, music, and an address to the children, bearing upon the subject.

—Hon. Leopold Morse paid an election bet by a dinner to a large number of Auburndale and Boston gentlemen at the Woodland Park Hotel, Thursday evening.

—The Mother Goose entertainment was repeated in Auburn Hall, Monday evening, and attracted quite a large audience. Mrs. Clara Tourjee-Nelson was the soloist. Last week, when the entertainment was given, over 100 were unable to secure seats.

—The ladies of the M. E. church are preparing for a sale which will be held during the second week in December.

—Last Monday evening the Auburndale people were aroused and full of Republican enthusiasm. The election of Harrison and Morton was celebrated, and the streets were ablaze with colored lights, fireworks and bright lanterns. A torchlight parade was a feature of the occasion, the Auburndale Cadets parading through the principal streets accompanied by the Newton city band. The stores in the square were generally illuminated, big bonfires kindled, and a large crowd was attracted to the scene of the festivities. Many residences along the route of the procession were brilliantly illuminated and elaborately decorated with flags, streamers and Japanese lanterns. Among the attractive displays noted were the residences of Mr. J. Willard Rice, Mr. Sprague, Mr. E. L. Pickard, Alderman Johnson, Mr. Fred Barnes, Mr. Harry Newell, Mr. George M. Fiske, and Mr. William Briggs. Auburn Hall was illuminated and Lasell Seminary, the fair students giving three rousing cheers for Harrison and Morton as the procession moved by. The store in the square looked very bright and pretty, Woodberry, Pluta, Bush, Baker, Lucas and others making special illuminations. A string of lanterns was run in front of the barber shop, near the railroad bridge, and the buildings in the vicinity were more or less illuminated. After the parade, a ratification meeting was held in Auburn Hall, where speeches were delivered by ex-Mayor William B. Fowle, Mr. Charles W. Robinson, Mr. George M. Fiske and others. The torch-bearers enjoyed a first-class collation after the march, a caterer having been secured who looked after the material comforts of those who participated in the demonstration.

Lasell Notes.

Miss Hallock of Cromwell, Conn., a former pupil, was an over-Sunday guest at Lasell.

Miss Colburn of Delaware City, Pa., was the guest of her sisters Ida and Madeline during the week.

The subject for the demonstration lecture in cooking on Monday next, Nov. 19, will be "Cauliflowers, Onions, and Potatoes."

Miss Susannah J. Brown of Philadelphia, one of last year's graduates, has been a guest at the Seminary for the past few days.

Gymnastics and drill have begun; the former is under charge of Miss Martha Ransom, while Major Benyon, of Watertown, the drill master, is rapidly working in the raw recruits.

The chorus classes, under the charge of Mr. J. Walter Davis, now meet on Monday and Friday evenings. The Orphean club is doing good work and will sustain its former reputation at the winter concerts.

A kind friend from Minneapolis has sent unsolicited a check for ten dollars with which to secure a share in the Lasell pew of the American church in Berlin—Moral: "Go thou and do likewise."

Lasell has now another tie by which to bind together her daughters and enable them to recognize each other the world over—the Lasell pin. It is the work of Shreve, Crump & Lowe, and is a nugget of gold on a stab-pin, having a scroll on the top of the nugget with "Lasell" engraved thereon.

Judge Park spoke in the chapel Sunday afternoon in behalf of the Lasell Y. W. C. T. U., on the subject of temperance. His clear cut sentences and forcible arguments carried convictions with them and quickened the interest which the young women have always felt in this great question of the day. No one finds a warmer welcome at the seminary than Judge Park, and his words of wisdom are always received and cherished as coming from a personal friend.

The new natatorium and bowling alley are now completed and furnish a valuable addition to the already fine equipments for athletic development at Lasell. The natatorium is twenty feet by fifty, and is furnished with the usual appliances, such as life-belts, pulleys, spring-boards, etc. There are two bowling alleys and they are said to be the finest in the country. The room is light and airy and quite artistic, and the young women will doubtless spend many pleasant hours in it.

Seal Skin Advancing.

The price of seal skins was recently advanced about 45 per cent, and all thinking of purchasing seal-skin garments should do so before the furriers mark up their goods. Mr. Joseph A. Jackson, the veteran furrier of 412 Washington street, Boston, says that he can not duplicate his stock at present prices, but having been fortunate enough to buy a large stock before the advance, he will give his customers the benefit of it. He has also a fine and carefully selected stock of other furs in collars, coats, muffs and fur trimmings, to which he calls public attention. See advertisement.

It is equal to most 10 cents, the old 740 for 5 cents. G. W. Shaw.

A CARD.

Charles Ward Post No. 62, G. A. R., would respectfully announce that the Charles Ward Woman's Relief Corps Auxiliary to the Post which was organized about a year ago, was duly disbanded in August last by order of the Dept. of Mass. It has never been reorganized and there is now no Relief Corps Auxiliary to or recognized by this Post.

R. M. LUCAS, Commander.

Charles Ward Woman's Relief Corps.

To those persons who are laboring under the impression that the Charles Ward Woman's Relief Corps of Newton is auxiliary to Charles Ward Post No. 62, G. A. R., I would say that no impression could be more erroneous. Our corps is an independent organization managed wholly and entirely by its own members and governed by its own constitution and by laws. We are organized for charitable work and are doing much good in this direction. We are entirely unfettered from Grand Army rules and have no connection whatever with Charles Ward Post neither do we wish to be recognized as its ally.

OUR SLAVE.

BY ROSE TERRY COOKE.

I don't wonder now that Father would marry her; but oh, how mad we were all then!

Alma, Belle, Daisy (that's me), all three of us were furious. Jack didn't care.

"I think it'll be rather jolly," that boy said. "I hope a feller's clothes will be mended on time, and buttons stay on now she's here. Girls are such a lot; no good as I can see."

"That I can see," put in Alma. She was the oldest—sixteen and a half. Belle was fifteen, and I thirteen. Jack was ten. It is very true Father had a hard time after Mamma died; he wouldn't let Aunt Talcott come and live with us; he said Alma was thirteen, and Betsey in the kitchen was capable and knew Mamma's ways. So she did, but she couldn't do everything, and how did we little girls know men were so helpless? Alma thought Father could buy his own flannels, so of course she paid no attention to them except to mend them, and when they couldn't be patched and darned any more, she put them in the rag-bag; so one Saturday night he—Father I mean—called out to her from the next room and said:

"Alma! where are my flannels?"

"I don't know, Papa," she said. "I put those that came out of the wash into the rags; they were not worth mending."

Father gave a groan. I heard him say in such a voice:

"Oh, Elizabeth! That was Mamma. Then the table-cloths began to be all little holes; and when our frocks wore out Betsey went with Alma to buy some more, and what awful things they were! Stiff and strong woolen stuff, as ugly as it could be; but Betsey said it would wear and not show dirt. I should think it wouldn't!"

Alma got old Miss Taylor to come and make them. I never shall get over those gowns. The girls at school called them the Pepperell strait-jackets. They were just as plain as a towel and just as strait up and down—a dull brown with black horn buttons on them. Miss Taylor said those were the best sort for romps. And the house; it was forlorn enough! The tables got scratched, holes came in the sofa-cover. You see Jack and I used to have such fights on the parlor sofa I suppose it couldn't have been good for the cover. The carpets were faded, everything was dusty, and Father used to sit with his head in his hands, thinking about his law cases I suppose, when he wasn't reading the paper.

Betsey couldn't stand it. One day she bounced into the dining-room where Father was. I happened to be in the library.

"Squire Pepperell!" she said, "I've lived with you going on ten year, but I've got done. I'm all pestered out. Them young ones is enough to distract Job, and they won't hear to me. 'Paps its nateral; I'm only hired help, but I ain't going to be hired help no longer. There's a likely man down to our place, a man with means, that I used to know when I was a girl; he's a widower now with four children and he's got a good home for 'em, but he says he can't do nothin' without a woman for to look after him and them, so he's wrote up and offered marriage to me and I've said Amen. So I'm a goin' to leave you today two weeks, certain sure; and my advice to you is go and do likewise!"

"Hm," said Father in a cool sort of way; "so you prefer to do housework without wages? Well Betsey, I am sorry; but I suppose it can't be helped. I'll look about for a girl."

Then the Irish set in. Goodness! I thought we should go distracted. Twelve in one year! We hadn't enough plates and cups to go round at the end of it. The towels were all rags; the store burned out on top and twenty-six tons of coal with it; and Alma did not go to school one day; all that year. I suppose she had the house would have been burned down, and the spoons all gone into the swill-pail. Ten of them did, but old Jake was honest and he knew the initials and brought them back. Oh dear, what a time that was! Next summer Father sent us all out to Linden to board in a farm-house; he shut our house up and he went out to Swampscott. He wouldn't take us, and I don't much wonder; we looked like a lot of ragged colts as much as anything, and we hadn't two manners in the crowd. Alma was the best of us, but she was a girl to take to Swampscott.

We had a horrid time. The old house was hot and stuffy, and the bread was sour half the time, and we had "biled dinner" twice a week. If there is one thing I do hate it's "biled dinner," everything tastes so of cabbage and grease. Well, we lived through it, we had to; but I've despised Linden and that old Brackett woman ever since.

In September Father came for us. He told us to be in the cars. I suppose he thought we couldn't stray and scold much before all those strange people. We were all in the end of the car, Jack and I on the little seat that faced the other way and Belle and the bags on the first of the row of seats, Father and Alma right behind. Father leaned over and said, in a kind of a low voice:

"Children, you will find the house much changed. I have had it all renovated and refurnished down-stairs, and something done to the chambers. Also you will find there my wife, your new mother. I was married to Miss Elinor Payne at Swampscott last week."

I looked right at Alma; she was just as white. Belle colored all up and said, in her halting way:

"Oh my! a stepmother."

Jack whistled. I kept looking at Alma, but I felt awfully.

Then Father said, in the kind of stern, deep voice he has when he gets in real earnest, or is mad:

"I expect you to treat my wife with respect at least. I think love will not fail to come when you know her."

Then he took up the New York paper. Alma did not say a word. I didn't either. Jack kicked the side of the car, and Belle made up such a face at me!

After a while we got home, bag and baggage; and when Father opened the door with his key she came out to meet him and kissed him, right before us all.

I thought that was horrid; so did Alma. She was tall and pleasant-looking. I must own that. She was pretty thin, and had dark, soft eyes and her lips trembled a little when she turned to speak to us.

Well, we shook hands and said:

"How do you do?"

Father looked just as black; but she didn't try to kiss us, or to say anything about anything. We just walked into the library and took off our things. The door was open into the dining-room; there was a bright fire and a hot supper all ready; such a good supper!

"I thought you would all be chilly and hungry, the night is so damp," she said, as we sat down to the scalloped oysters, and brown bread, and cold ham, and coffee, and little crisp sugar-cakes.

"Oh, bully for you!" said Jack.

"Jack!" said Father, in such a voice; but she laughed.

"That's a genuine compliment," she said, in a real bright way. But Alma never said a thing, and she just made believe to eat. Belle ate enough for both; and I was hungry too; but I wouldn't talk because Alma didn't.

"We all want to bed; but it seemed strange in our two rooms. There were new papers, new carpets, freshly done up furniture, and Mamma's own carved bedstead and mahogany bureau and work-table in Alma's room."

"Hm! it smells just like a funeral; so vanish!" said Belle, tossing her head up.

Alma didn't say a word. The next day Father said at breakfast:

"Alma, now you can go to school; your education has been unavoidably neglected, but you are still young and can recover lost time. I have secured a place for you at Mrs. Hancock's school in Framingham; and the term begins next week. And you, Belle and Margaret, will go to Miss Ward's private school hereafter; Jack continues at the Grammar, but I think we have had enough of public schools for the girls."

"B. Father!" said Alma, in her clear, startled voice, "how can I get ready so soon?"

He looked at her. I mean—well—"his new wife" we called her then—with a smile.

"I think you will find you are nearly ready now."

So she took Alma up-stairs into the spare room after prayers, and there were lots of clothes she'd bought, knowing Alma's size, and three such pretty dresses, cut and made, too.

Miss Wilkes will be here to-morrow and try them on and fit them to them."

she said. "They were cut after the pattern of your last winter's serge; and I think that can be fitted up for a traveling dress."

"Thanks," said Alma, as stiff and gruff as ever Father was.

"Weren't they pretty dresses, Alma? Didn't you like them?" I asked, when we got into our room.

"Well enough, but I'd rather buy my own clothes," she answered.

So she went away for the winter and I didn't know what to do. Belle wasn't a bit nicer; she was all the time bothering about the school and Mrs. Pepperell—

you see she would not call her anything else, so I couldn't; and that was what Alma always said in her letters. We generally said "Mrs." for shortness. Jack liked her; he said she was bulky, and jolly, and bit me. I'm sure I like to be Mrs. Pepperell very much.

"Oh, Will!" she answered, never mind that; it is natural that when they can remember their own mother they should not want to call me by her name. We can't have but one mother, dear; don't vex the little things by requiring it of them. I'm sure I like to be Mrs. Pepperell very much."

Then he laughed and kissed her. I told Belle about it; she sniffed and said:

"Dear little things indeed! Fourteen and sixteen isn't so very little!"

Pretty soon Father seemed to be in the dreadful dumps; a good deal of the time and by and by it came out that some way or other he had lost all his money.

"Mrs." had some of her own, to be sure, but of course she wouldn't give it to us.

"She's got to," said Belle. "She's Papa's wife and she's got to take care of us whether she wants to or not."

I thought Belle knew. Then Alma came home from school; she was very quiet and cold. There was a sort of sorrowful look in Mrs. Pepperell's eyes when she looked at her, as if she was disappointed.

guess she was. But Belle and I just adored Alma; she was so pretty and stylish, and had learned such lots of little ways at school; and then she used to help us with our lessons and stop our fights, which Mrs. never could.

Well, Father began to grow thin and look so discouraged. Belle would get up and go to bed, and then she'd say:

"If I was a man, I'd do something, if it was digging potatoes!"

Belle was like Aunt Talcott in her disposition. Old Mrs. Vance used to say the Talcotts were as streaky as bacon—a soft streak and a hard streak. Mamma belonged to the soft one. We had no end of trouble with the girl now—for we had only one after Father lost his money and the family was large, and Alma had to practice and study German, so she was no use and we went to school. Mrs. had to do a lot of work. She used to cook and sweep and iron Alma's skirts and our linen collars; for one girl couldn't or wouldn't do it all. One day Father got a letter that made him laugh; it was from Betsey.

"SQUIRE PEPPERELL—Dear Sir: I have been in some 'dition of late; Mr. Docks has been very about two months ago and finally he up and died. I do no as you have ever heard that I found his children all adopted out except one that had quick consumption, and he went to the nether. I can't one to complain, I have felt as the I was took in quite a little; and I ain't as ungrateful to his departure as I might be. But that isn't nothing to you; what I undertook for to say is this; I have heard through a man that peddles in round these parts and does it for a company in your place, that you was married again to a most excellent woman, and had trouble with your help. Now, seein' I'm no better off for money, I've the considerable about your partin' words that I was goin' to be help without bein' paid for it; and so it was. Now, seein' you've got somebody to look after them gals of yours I am willin' to come back and do for you, if so you say, just as I used to after your first one died. Let me know if you want me, so as I can look about elsewhere, if you don't."

"You're to be married," "BETSEY DOKES."

Father was very glad, and he had always wished Betsey was back, and Mrs. was glad, too. She was worn out with Bridget, so one day she bounced into the kitchen and we all ran out and hugged her—all but Alma.

It was queer she liked Mrs. right off. Alma was surprised. Belle resented it.

"I don't see how anybody can like a stepmother!" she snapped, and Betsey overheard her.

"I dono as bein' a stepmother nateral'y spiles a woman, I should think 'twould sometimes. Ef I was called upon to be step to some folks, I think I should be spiteful myself!"

Belle went out and banged the door. It was good to have Betsey back in the kitchen; we had things to eat such as we used to have, but she snubbed us and made disagreeable remarks oftener than she used to. She seemed to like Mrs. better than she did us, and because they're with likin'; and so far as I know, you ain't, and she is. I'm mortal sorry for her, too; she's a good woman, and a pretty-behaved woman, and she's stepped into one trial, Arbell Pepperell, when she stepped into your ma's shoes! I bet a father who'd be so fond of you, just, or she'd have give the Squire the mitten amazin' quick!"

Belle was so mad, she cried; she did cry for that, always.

After a while Father fell sick; that was in the second spring after Betsey came. Mrs. would have been a nurse, she took care of him herself. One day Mrs. Betsey said, when Mrs. came down to make something for him:

"I should think you could afford it better 'n you can to get sick yourself."

"But Betsey," she said, "I can do my work, I can't say no more."

"Oh, yes! Folks can burn a candle at both ends, I s'pose; but it burns up twice as quick for all that."

You see Mrs. was all the time doing drawn work, and beautiful embroidery in colors; she did a broadcloth table-cover with the handsomest thing! Belle used to say she was as stingy as a miser, not to give us the bureau-covers for our rooms, and not to put her nice things in the parlor, nor use the lovely little round doilies she had made dozens of on the table. But she didn't. After a while Father wouldn't get up for two or three days; he couldn't do any business; but he got so that we could go out to parties again, and have new dancing dresses, and so forth. But about the September after, Mrs. was very sick; she used to have times of having neuralgia fully before, and dreading to see her, she would cough for months, and rheumatism, and weak eyes, but we didn't think anything of that.

This was different, too; it was real typhoid fever; and the doctor told Father he was very anxious about her, she was so entirely worn out to begin with. I never knew it too; Mrs. Pepperell said, when she told Alma what Dr. Rogers said, but she only smiled, and said doctors always were alarmists; she did not see what Mrs. Pepperell had done to wear herself out.

Belle didn't believe it either. She said "No such good luck." I think that was rather too big.

But Mrs. kept getting no better all the time. There was a nurse came, and we were not allowed to go near the room. About the second week in November I went into the kitchen to get something, and Belle came down-stairs for a pitcher of water just home, and I opened the door, and there stood Betsey, with her apron on her eyes, crying as hard as she could cry.

"Why, Betsey," said I, "what is the matter?"

"Matter enough," said she, when she could stop sobbing, "and you'd ought to know it too; Mr. Pepperell's got to die; the doctor's give her up for certain."

"Oh, Betsey, I guess not. Alma says doctors always talk that way; Mrs. is a strong woman."

"She's goin' to die, if she is," growled Betsey.

"I don't believe it!" snapped Belle.

"Well, you're goin' to believe it; and it's as much your fault, Arbell Pepperell, as 'tis anybody's. You've all made a reg'lar slave of her, and you've bein' the hatefullest of 'em all. She's worked her hands off 'most for you; you'd have been her foot home, or her clothin', or food, or twain to her money."

"Well, she married Father; she'd got to take care of us anyhow," said Belle in a real angry voice.

"No she hadn't neither! The ain't no law in the world for that; you ain't a single thing, but you're a mother, if you'd be 'n Peter Parley's children, you'd be Victors; but she's done more'n the law requied because that she's one to do her dooty through thick and thin. An' you'll have somethin', all of ye, to reflect her by. Your white lace gown, Belle Pepperell, she's wearin' that, she got up by sunrise and set in her cold room a-sewin on that darning work so as to get you a new gown for one of your times. I talked to her about it, but she said she'd be a girl herself, and knowed they liked nice things. And that fit of neuralgia she's had a month ago meant your new cloak! Dared she ought to have had new flannels and a fur-lined cloak herself, bein' so delicate; but you fussed about wearin' your'n for three winters, and so had it. And after your pa got better she'd ought to have a rest; but she wouldn't. I thought she ought to be must go, because all the rest of her mates was goin', and Mrs. Pepperell knowed there wasn't money for it."

"Why I never thought she cared a bit about us!" I said, half-frightened.

"I ain't sayin' she did. I dono how she could. I think the Lord himse' must find it pretty tough to love such a selfish, hard-hearted, unconsiderate lot as you Pepperell gals be. You went out o' your way to hurt her. Didn't I hear Belle say only 't'other day, knowin' that Mrs. Pepperell was right in the doorway, 'she wants me to wear my green dress but I will not.' What'd she want you to wear it for? Why just because you look good in it. And you're as sassy to her as if she was the dirt under your feet. I've heered you tel her she didn't know what she was a-talkin' about more'n four times; that was pleasant and pretty, now wasn't it? I tell you what, I think the worst of her because she done so much for you when she couldn't love you, you was so hateful. 'Twas like the Lord who is good to the unthankful and the evil."

I heard somebody give a swallow just then as if they were trying to choke, and some hard thing down, and I looked round and there was Alma in the door. She must have heard a good deal.

"Betsey," she said, sort of solemn, "do you really think Mrs. Pepperell is dying?"

"I know she is," said Betsey with a dry sob.

"You may say she's dyin' of a fever if you want to; but I know she's dyin' of over-work and trouble and loneliness and ill-treatment. I believe there had ought to be a law aginst step-motherin'."

I tried to say no more, but I was so lucky for the Docks youngsters they were 'dopted out; I should have trained

'em. I ain't one of Mrs. Pepperell's kind. I didn't mind the sick one, she wasn't cross-grained, and she was glad enough to be nursed and coddled, poor creatur'. But if the rest had been such as you be they wouldn't have made me their mother; no way; they'd have danced to my tunes or I'd have left 'em. No, I don't believe in step-motherin'. It's unnatural and miser-ble for both sides. But land! as long as there's men there'll be marryin' over and over.

"What does a man care about his children, or whether they'll like the woman he does, or whether she can stand them? He wants somebody to wait on him and look after his clothes and his vittles and his notions and not be paid for 't. It's the least of his troubles how she likes the business. Men is as the Lord made 'em, I suppose, and he got to put up with 'em. They're a tryin' disposition, but p'raps they're a means of grace. Troubles is meant to be, Scripser says, but it does rile me to see a sweet, good, likely woman like Mrs. Pepperell lose her health just to please one evange kind of a man; for what reason it comes to. She ain't been even hired help, she's been a slave to you all, and its over, and for her sake I'm glad on it."

Betsey threw her apron over her head, bounced out into the woodhouse and shut the door with a slam.

Alma looked just as pale!

"Come girls," she said, and we followed her into the library.

"Oh, dear!" she said; "I am afraid Betsey is right. Daisy, Belle, did you know that Mrs. was working so hard and spending her own money on us?"

"Yes, I knew it," I said, quickly; "but Belle said she had got to spend her money on us because she married Father."

"Oh, Belle! But I can't say much. I have been to blame, and I was the oldest. Poor, poor woman! she has had a hard time, and we have all been wicked to her."

"I never wanted a stepmother!" snapped Belle, half-crying.

"But Father brought her, and he had the right. If I hadn't been lazy and careless; if I'd kept the house like Ann and Eliza Harris after their mother died, very likely he wouldn't have married again; or if I had tried to be good, and helped you to be good; or if I had been a little sensible!"

"I hate 'ifs," said Belle, angrily.

Alma did not mind her; she went right on.

"But it's all wrong; and how can we make it right?"

"You can't see her," I said, crying; for I had always believed what Alma said.

"Not but I shall go and tell Father we're sorry."

I never knew what Alma said to Father, but after a while she came back with her eyes awfully red, and she said:

"Girls, I want you to go up-stairs to Father; he's in the north bedroom, and tell him you're sorry."

Belle pouted out her lips and looked at Alma sideways; she didn't want to go, not a bit; but she really did begin to wish she had been better; so she went.

Oh, dear! I can't bear to think how Father looked. We sort of sobbed out what we had to say, and he looked at us with big dim eyes, as if we were a great what. He was so white!

"Poor children! poor children!"

"Poor Father!" I said, and then I had to fling my arms round his neck and kiss him and cry like everything, then Belle sidled up close to him and he put one arm round her, and she cried too; then he gave up and cried himself. Goodness! how we did cry; but we had something to cry for.

In two days more they said she was sinking, but she had her mind, Betsey said; and she asked for us. How we hated to go; but we had to.

"Oh, Mother, Mother, don't die!" said Alma. "We will love you, so, if you'll live!"

Her sad eyes looked over Alma at Belle and me.

"Yes we will, Mother!" we both said, and actually the tears rolled out of Belle's eyes. But you would think that a woman made out of ashes, so wan and weak; she couldn't lift her hand or her head. Alma went down on her knees by the bed.

"Good-by, dear," said the faintest, tired little voice.

THEATRES.

BOSTON AMUSEMENTS FOR NEXT WEEK.

Globe Theatre.—"The Still Alarm" depicts the life of the fireman in a most picturesque manner, while the general cast of the play is good and ably sustained. It had a long, continuous run in New York City and is now being produced in London, scoring a marked success for American genius. Mr. Stetson has spared no expense in staging this great piece, and his efforts are being rewarded by having full houses at each performance.

Boston Theatre.—"Dockstader's Minstrels" certainly put up the best variety show ever seen in this country. See them tonight or tomorrow, (matinee and evening), for on Monday next, Nov. 19, Clara Louise Kellogg, Opera Co., will appear in Faust, Carmen, Martha, Bohemian Girl, and Il Trovatore, etc. The simple announcement of Miss Kellogg's appearance is always sufficient to insure large and fashionable audiences in Boston.

Boston Museum.—As before announced, Little Lord Fauntleroy will be discontinued after tomorrow evening. On Monday, Nov. 19, the new play "Shenandoah," by Bronson Howard, Esq., author of "The Banker's Daughter," "Old Love Letters," etc., will be placed before the public. The scenes are laid during and since our great war, largely of a military character, and the cast embraces the entire stock company with some few recent acquisitions. Great care and expense has been assumed in mounting this play.

Park Theatre.—Corra Tanner will close a most successful engagement here Saturday evening next. Her "Fascination" has pleased every one.

There is but one Lotta; she will renew her acquaintance here on Monday evening, Nov. 19, in "Paw Ticket No. 210," Grand Opera House.—"The Fugitive," a powerful drama well sustained throughout. On Monday, Nov. 19, "Mixed Pickles" will be presented.

Hollis Street Theatre.—Mr. E. H. Sothern continues in "Lord Chumley." This play is direct from the Lyceum Theatre of New York, under management of Daniel Frohman; it was written expressly for Mr. Sothern; his style of work is popular and in this particular play he frequently finds himself in most ludicrous situations coming out each time, however, in good shape.

MUSICAL MATTERS.

Next week's concert—Monday, Wm. Ludvig, in Irish music, Elmer Hall, Tuesday—Benefit of the Young Ladies' Foreign Missionary Society, Newton Baptist church.—Wednesday, Bernhard Listemann, City Hall.

At the concert to be given in the Newton Baptist church next Tuesday evening, the following program will be rendered: 1. Organ, Tocata and Fugue in D minor, by J. S. Bach. Mr. J. Wallace Goodrich; 2. aria, "Ging Mars," by Gounod. Mrs. H. E. Hibbard; 3. organ, Pastoral in C, Lefebvre-Wely; 4. song, "The Quaker," by Adams. Mr. Edmund P. Marsh; 5. piano, Concerto in G minor, by Moscheles; Last Movement, with organ accompaniment, Mr. Albert B. Allison; 6. "A Bird in Softly Calling," by Mendelssohn; aria from "Nauman," Costa, Mrs. F. L. Gross; 7. organ, "Notturmo," Mendelssohn, from the "Midsummer Night's Dream;" 8. Ladies' Trio, "Day is at last Departing," by J. Raff; 9. Organ, Grand Choeur in D major, Guilmant.

At the symphony concert to-morrow evening Mr. Arthur Whiting will play a manuscript concerto of his own in D minor, and the orchestral numbers will be the Hebrides overture, by Mendelssohn, Slavonic Dances from the third and fourth series, Dvorak, and Rubinstein's Ocean Symphony.

NOTES.

Mr. Wm. H. Lee, who is well known in Newton, will sing the part of Valentine in Faust during the opera season next week at the Boston Theatre.

The repertoire for next week of the Clara Louise Kellogg company at the Boston Theatre is as follows for the respective evenings: Faust, Carmen, Il Trovatore, Martha, Bohemian Girl, and Mignon, with Trovatore for the Saturday matinee.

Mrs. T. P. Lovell will make her first public appearance in Boston at an invitation recital in Association Hall, Monday night, when she will be assisted by Miss Flora E. Finlayson, Messrs. Alfred De Seve and Otto Bendix, and Sig. August Rottoli.

The following is the program for the opening concert of the Back Bay Course next Tuesday evening: Kaiser-marsch, Wagner; aria, Der Freischutz, Weber, Mme. Fursch-Mad; Angelus, Pete. Boheme, Massenet; overture, Waldmeisters Brautfahrt, (new) Gernheim; scene and aria, La Reine de Saba, Gounod, Mme. Fursch-Mad; Coronation march, Svendsen; (a) air (orchestra and organ) Bach; (b) Menuet, Weber; (c) organ-Mad; Hungarian march, Brahms.

Another "Young People's Popular" will be heard in a few weeks, and will fully equal the merit of last week's performance, which was certainly most enjoyable.

The Traveller announces that it is almost certain that Niemann will be a member of the Metropolitan Opera House company this year. Boston will have a rare treat next April in hearing not only the Wagner operas, but the Wagner singers (or part of them) as well.

The Liverpool Philharmonic Society will shortly give in concert selections from one of Gluck's operas. This is a step in the right direction, and might well be imitated by American conductors, thereby giving many an opportunity of hearing what they would otherwise, from one reason or another, be deprived of.

The class of '88 Orchestra, N. H. S., furnished the music for "The Players" this week, these performances being their only appearance this winter.

NEW MUSIC.

The following new music has been received from A. P. Schmidt & Co., 13 and 15 West street, Boston, for piano, "The Echo" and "The Happy Child," G. P. Ritter; "Indulo," Hungarian March, M. R. MacFarlane; for organ, eight short Preludes and Fugues by J. S. Bach, ed. by Henry M. Dunham. Vocal, "Invitation" and "Fair O Fair," by Clara Kathleen Rogers; in bist wie eine Blume," by Clayton Johns; "It Came upon the Midnight Clear," a Christmas song, by G. W. Marston; choral, "Come unto Me," C. W. Marston; "In Heavenly Love Abiding," and "Call the Lord Thy Love Salvation," for male voices, by J. E. Trowbridge; "O, Cause, my Wandering Soul," (C. B. P. or S.), and "Abide with Me," (Trio, S. A. T.), Geo. W. Chadwick.

Fillmore and the Hen.

In the first quarter of this century a party of travellers was journeying down the Missouri on a flatboat. The river was covered with floating ice, and provisions were scarce, but the men were young, possessed of much more wit than money, and able to extract plenty of fun out of the danger and privation.

One evening two of them, a school teacher and a Frenchman, went ashore to buy provisions at a farmhouse. The teacher offered half a dollar to the farmer's wife for a motherly old hen that was scratching about the yard. She refused with a torrent of abuse.

His comrade, who was lounging over the gate, whispered, "Offer another bit." "Five bits!" said the teacher. "The woman hesitated, when, to her amazement, the hen squeaked out: "I'm not worth it! I'm four years old! I'm not worth it!"

The teacher started back in dismay; the farmer's wife, regaining her courage, closed the hen, and caught it up in her arms.

"Take two bits! It's all I'm worth!" it said, flapping wildly in her arms. She ran, pale with terror, to the Frenchman, and put it in his hands, screaming out: "Take it away! It's bewitched!"

The young man threw the money back to her and carried off the hen.

Many years afterward, among the crowd in the East room of the White House which attended one of the receptions of President Fillmore, was the kindly old Signor Blitz, well known to all the children of the Eastern States, a ventriloquist. When he was introduced to the President the two men looked at each other a moment and then burst into a laugh.

"You never thought to see me here," said Mr. Fillmore. "Now for the first time I understand the mystery of the old hen!"—Chicago Herald.

A Woman's Discovery.

"Another wonderful discovery has been made and that too by a lady in this country. Disease fastened its clutches upon her and for seven years she withstood its severest tests, but her vital organs were undermined and death seemed imminent. For three months she coughed incessantly and could not sleep. She bought of us a bottle of Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption and was so much relieved on taking first dose that she slept all night and with one bottle has been miraculously cured. Her name is Mrs. Luther Lutz." Thus wrote W. C. Hamrick & Co., of Shelby, N. C.—Get a free trial bottle at Arthur Hudson's drugstore.

A GREAT MAGAZINE.

The Century for 1889.

THE question has often been asked, "to what does The Century owe its great circulation?" The Christian Union once answered this by the statement that "it has been fairly won, not by advertising schemes, but by the excellence which characterizes it in every department." In their announcements for the coming year the publishers state that it has always been their desire to make The Century the one indispensable periodical of its class, so that whatever other publication might be desirable in the family, The Century could not be neglected by those who wish to keep abreast of the times in all matters pertaining to culture. And the unprecedented circulation of the magazine would seem to be the response of the public to this intention.

With the November number The Century begins its thirty-seventh volume. Two great features of the magazine which are to continue throughout the new volume are already well known to the public, the Lincoln history and the papers on "Siberia and the Exile System." The first of these, written by Messrs. Nicolay and Hay, President Lincoln's private secretaries, contains the inside history of the dark days of the war, as seen from the White House.

THE SIBERIAN PAPERS, by George Kennan, are attracting the attention of the civilized world. The Chicago Tribune says that "no other magazine articles printed in the English language just now touch upon a subject which so vitally interests all thoughtful people in Europe and America and Asia." As is already known, copies of The Century entering Russia have these articles torn out by the customs officials on the frontier.

DURING 1889 The Century will publish the most important art feature that has yet found place in its pages. It is the result of four years' work of Mr. Timothy Cole, the leading magazine engraver of the world in the galleries of Europe, engraving from the originals the greatest pictures by the old masters.

A series of papers on Ireland, its customs, landscapes, etc., will appear, and there are to be illustrated articles on Bible scenes, treating especially the subjects of the International Sunday-School Lessons. George W. Cable will write "Strange, True Stories of Louisiana." There will be novelettes and short stories by leading writers, occasional articles on war subjects (supplemental to the famous "War Papers" by General Grant and others, which have been appearing in The Century), etc., etc.

The Century costs four dollars a year, and is published by The Century Co., of New York, who will send a copy of the full prospectus on request.

Offer the following suggestions.

There are two ways to make money. One is to earn it; the other is to save it.

There are two ways of saving money. When you save a dollar by putting it in the bank you do well; but when you save a dollar by shrewd purchasing you do better. The first is saving; the second is in reality earning.

So there are two ways of earning money. By labor and by wise purchasing.

LET US SAY A WORD ABOUT PURCHASING.

There are a few sound facts that the public are beginning to learn. What are they?

The First Thing to learn in order to become a successful purchaser is that price means nothing till you see the goods. The fact that Chamber sets cost $25 in one store and $15 in another tells you nothing. The $25 set is perhaps worth $30 while the $15 set may not be worth carrying away.

Goods may be too cheap sometimes. Price doesn't tell the whole story. Either know the goods or know the dealer. If he is a liberal furnisher his reputation as such has gone abroad. People find it out. His trade increases, his store has to be enlarged, and when at last you learn it covers ten acres, why, it means something. It tells the whole story of his business methods. It shows that people have discovered his liberal ways and taken advantage of them. It points you the direction for your next purchase.

PEOPLE OFTEN ASK US IF IT PAYS TO ADVERTISE? It does if you have got genuine bargains. The man who advertises largely shows his own large confidence in his goods.

A Second Precept in successful purchasing is that the best is cheapest in the end. Many people who have never visited our ware-rooms have the idea that only cheap goods are sold by houses who sell on the credit system as well as for cash. That is a great mistake.

Remember there is a difference between Cheap Goods and Goods Cheap. Go elsewhere for cheap goods; but come here for goods cheap. The man who sells cheap goods sells his customers also. We are not in that line of business.

The public are beginning to understand the difference. Our establishment of ten acres shows this. It speaks very plainly.

A PURCHASE BY PARTIAL PAYMENTS is a savings bank, a good resolution, and the means of keeping it—all in one. It is the beginning of a successful career for it is the formation of a wise habit of saving.

Visitors to Boston are interested in our White Teams which they meet on every side. They are a part of our White Business Methods. The goods are sold on white principles and they are white goods always.

—The lecture given by Mrs. Edna Cheney, before the Ladies' Union recently, at the residence of Dr. S. A. Sylvester. Beacon street, was well attended, about forty-five ladies being present; the subject, "Schools and School Suffrage," was presented in an able manner by the lecturer, who has made a special study of the schools and those of Europe. This subject bearing upon the present question at issue, was deeply interesting to all, and was followed by a lively discussion. Mrs. Cheney attended the Conversations given by Margaret Fuller in Boston, (so famous in their day.) The speaker's own style was in an easy, conversational manner.

"Hospital Sunday."

To the Editor of the GRAPHIC:

It has been the custom once a year to take up a collection in the churches for the benefit of the Newton Cottage Hospital. The committee (consisting of Rev. Messrs. H. L. Wheeler, W. A. Lamb and F. Nichols) appointed to arrange for the collection of this year, wish to make the following announcement:

1. On Nov. 18, envelopes bearing a statement of facts and needs will be distributed in the churches. These envelopes, with their contents, will be collected on "Hospital Sunday," Nov. 25.

2. Envelopes (with circulars) will be left at some drug store in each section of the city, and those who prefer to give directly rather than through the churches, are requested to place their contributions in these envelopes and leave them to be called for by the committee, or hand them to some clergyman of the neighborhood.

3. Certain envelopes (with circulars) will be sent to individuals, and notices will next week be posted on the public buildings, giving the names of the places where contributions, not placed in the church boxes, may be left.

The committee present certain facts: 1. From May 1 to date, there have been 88 patients in the hospital. Comparing with this the number (65) for the corresponding period of last year, an increase of 35 per cent. is shown. It is probable that by the end of the year 100 patients will have received the benefits of the hospital.

2. The current expenses for 1887-8 were estimated at $5,000. They were actually $5,700. For 1888-9 they will probably be $7,000.

These statements show how the work and the needs of the hospital are increasing. How shall the expenses be met? From the City will come $1,000; from the endowment of two free beds $800; from the income of invested funds $550;—a total of $2,350. The balance for the year from fees and from voluntary contributions. How much may be expected from these sources? We can judge only from the figures of last year, when from the first source came about $1800, and from the second about $1500. This year, from the first source perhaps more, for the same reason, may be expected from the second more is expected.

The Hospital is for the benefit of all. It is a tangible Gospel. It is a necessity. It is an acknowledged success. Its work must go on. It needs means for treatment of patients and for the training of nurses. Shall it have them? What is worth doing at all is worth doing well. Cannot the collection of Hospital Sunday be much increased? Will not those contribute who are not connected with the church? Will not each one who reads this statement set apart something for the institution? In behalf of the Committee,

Respectfully Yours,
Horace L. Wheeler, Chairman.
Newton Centre, November 19.

NEWTON HIGHLANDS.

—See announcement of Miss Cousen's Concert at Newton Centre.

—Mr. A. Roach, who has occupied a part of the house of Mrs. Converse, has moved to Newton Centre.

—Mr. J. P. Estabrook, from Royalston, has moved into the house built by Mr. H. Ross on Tappan place.

—Mr. L. A. Ross is grading a portion of Hillside avenue, starting from its junction with Walnut street.

—Mr. T. W. Mullen, the horse-shoer and blacksmith, has moved into his new shop in the rear of his residence.

—Mr. F. E. Young of Somerville has leased and now occupies the Bowler house, corner of Walnut and Hyde streets.

—Mr. John Keating, after making extensive alterations and improvements upon his house, is now having a new stable built.

—Mr. G. N. B. Sherman has moved to Newton Centre, and taken a tenement in a house lately erected by Mr. Thomas R. Frost.

—Rev. Mr. Patrick of West Newton exchanged pulpits with Mr. Phillips of the Congregational church here, last Sunday evening.

—The Episcopal and Congregational churches will hold union services at the Congregational church, Thanksgiving day. Rev. Mr. Mills will preach the sermon.

—November 25 is Hospital Sunday in Newton. The churches are called on to raise $7,000 this year as the work is increasing, and money is needed to meet the expenses.

—Mr. G. O. Fogg received quite a severe wound on his chin from a small pebble, thrown by the explosion of some fireworks at the Republican rejoicing on Friday evening.

—Rev. Mr. Harriman and family from Providence have moved into the house recently purchased by him of Mr. H. Hodson, and Mr. Hodson will take the Watson house on Chester street.

—Rev. E. P. Hooker, D.D., is here raising money for Rollins college. It is to be hoped that when he presents his cause here, where he has preached, that there will be a generous response.

—The funeral of Mr. Almond Blood was held on Tuesday at his late residence, Rev. Mr. Phillips of this place, and Rev. Mr. Wheeler of Newton Centre conducting the exercises. The interment was in Newton Cemetery.

—Our Republican friends at the Highlands showed their joy at the result of the late election by a grand display of fireworks, Chinese lanterns, transparencies and illumination of houses in the neighborhood of the square, which brought together a large number of people, and much enthusiasm was manifested.

—Mr. C. H. Hale, the contractor, has completed the building of the street from Lake avenue, near the residence of Mr. Crane, to Walnut street, and it appears to be well done. Some of the most desirable building lots in the Highlands are to be found here, being in close proximity to Crystal park and Lake avenue, which is to become one of the most beautiful avenues in Newton. How would Harrison avenue sound for a name for the new street?

—Mr. A. Blood, whose death occurred on Sunday morning last in his sixty-ninth year, was one of the early settlers in the Highlands, dating from the commencement of its growth in 1870, having taken up his residence here in 1871. His real estate interests here were large, and he spent much time in making improvements upon the same. He was possessed of many kind qualities, and he will be much missed by his neighbors and acquaintances.

—The anniversary festival of the choir of St. Paul's church will be held in their chapel Thursday evening, Nov. 22, at 8 o'clock. The following is the order of service: Processional, "Come ye faithful;" choral service; hymn 493, "Jerusalem the golden city;" address; anthem, "I will lift up mine eyes;"

award of prizes; offertory anthem, "He shall dwell in the land;" benediction; recessional 200. "Pleasant are thy courts above." The address will be given by the Rev. George W. Shinn, D. D., rector of Grace church, Newton. The public are cordially invited.

—The ladies of the Congregational church held their sewing circle on Wednesday, at the chapel. At the entertainment in the evening Mr. C. P. Clark acted for the ladies in the role of auctioneer in the most appropriate style. We recommend him to those needing the services of an auctioneer as one who can represent all the advantages of a laundry-bag to perfection. Miss Margaret Logan played a piano solo, and Miss Emma Stevens recited Aunt Tabitha. Mrs. Samuel Shaw and Miss Smith greatly delighted the company with a vocal duet, "See the Pale Moon," by Guidini, after which, Miss Ames of Rosindale, violinist, and Miss Bowen, accompanist, rendered Wiensawski's "Legende," with great acceptance, and a Mazurka by the same composer as an encore. Miss Ames is a pupil of Elshberg, and herself is an instructor on the violin. Mrs. A. F. Hayward, Mrs. Elliott Hyde, Mrs. Gilbert and Miss Minnie Hyde then acted Cleveland and Harrison, two choruses, after which, Miss C. E. Cameron read "Bay Billy," and the entertainment closed with singing America. The fine supper should also be noted.

NEWTON UPPER FALLS.

—A large load of Odd Fellows of Home Lodge, went to Needham on Tuesday evening to visit the brothers of Elliott Lodge of that place.

—Mr. William McIntosh, formerly of Newton, but now of Nantucket, was in the place this week. He formerly resided at Oak Hill, and in Newton's town meeting days, was a power in town affairs.

—Mr. Anthony Tapp, a veteran of the war and a member of Post 62, G. A. R., was buried in the Catholic cemetery on Sunday last, a detachment of the Grand Army assisting in the ceremonies.

—Mr. Elisha Sanderson will occupy the pulpit at the Baptist church on Sunday next, his subject being especially appropriate to young men. Every one is cordially invited to be present, more especially the young men of the village.

—A notice has been posted in the post office, announcing the change of time of leaving for the library express, which will leave at 8.45 o'clock instead of at 9 o'clock as has been the custom.

—An Uncle Tom's Cabin company gave an exhibition in Prospect Hall on Wednesday evening to a crowded house. There was a street parade previous to the performance in the hall, which aroused the enthusiasm of the place, that of a small boy in particular.

—The Republican celebration of the victory of Harrison and Morton on Monday evening was witnessed by quite a number from this place. The cannonade did not stop the quiet neighborhood as we had no flag to salute, but there were some fireworks by private individuals, who wished to express their gratification at the result.

—Wednesday morning Miss Annie E. Daniels was married to Mr. Patrick F. Lilly, at St. Mary's church, Rev. Fr. O'Brien officiating. Over 400 people gathered to witness the ceremony, after which the invited guests went to the home of the bride's father to the wedding breakfast. Miss Mary A. Daniels acted as bridesmaid and Mr. T. F. Lilly as best man. The presents were numerous and costly. Mr. and Mrs. Lilly started on the 4.30 express for New York, where they intend to stay for 10 days. On their return they will reside on Elliott street.

—On Friday of last week a body of a man was found in the Charles river, near the pumping station, by Mr. Thomas Gresthead. The police were immediately notified and efforts were at once made to prove his identity, which was accomplished later in the week. The deceased formerly worked in Brookline on the Tenny place and later at Newton Centre. His name was George Tuck and he has a sister residing at Beverly. It is thought that he was the victim of a drowning accident, and that the body floated down the river from above. That there was no foul play is proved by the fact that he had $26 in his pocket when found. The remains were interred in the Newton Cemetery on Saturday of last week.

A Grand Concert.

The attention of our readers is called to the announcement in another column of the grand concert to be given at Tremont Temple next Wednesday evening, Nov. 21. An evening of rare entertainment is offered by the management to all those who care to go. Either Levy or Wilder is a host in himself, but taken together with Miss Pierce, the celebrated New York prima donna soprano, Mons. Alfred DeSeve, a violinist of rare ability, the well known Ruggles Street Quartet of Boston and Mrs. Martha Dana Shepard, pianist, will be well worth some miles to see and hear. Marshall F. Wilder will appear in an entirely new program; this is his first appearance in Boston this season, and he will be cordially welcomed by the concert loving people generally. He is more popular than ever, having enjoyed a more than successful summer season in London and Paris, where he will return in a very short time. Funnier, wittier, brighter than ever, so they say to him. Levy needs no word of praise. The simple name means more than can be written of him. Miss Hortense F. Pierce, the celebrated New York soprano, will make her first appearance in grand concert in Boston at this time, and the fact of her appearing in New York and elsewhere with such singers as Fursch Mardl, Emma Juch and others equally as well known, will commend her to the Boston people. The Ruggles Street Quartet are always welcome. Their selections for this occasion are their best. Such an array of talent in a single concert is seldom equalled, and we predict that by the night of this concert "standing room only" will be in order.

Crockery.

Thanksgiving will soon be here and our housekeepers will be replenishing their table ware. At Morey, Churchill & Morey's crockery store, 155 Friend street, Boston, you will find crockery, knives and forks, carvers, dinner sets, tumblers and goblets, cake baskets and castors, and everything you need.

CELEBRATING THE VICTORY.

PARADES, FIREWORKS, ILLUMINATIONS AND THE DISCHARGE OF CANNON.

The election of Harrison and Morton was celebrated in Newton Monday evening by demonstrations, fireworks and a torchlight parade. The Waltham battery fired salutes in Auburndale, Lower Falls, West Newton, Newtonville, Newton and Newton Centre, and at the conclusion of the firing of the cannon, the Harrison and Morton flags in each of these places were hauled down. At Newton the streets were thronged with people, and everybody seemed wrought up to a high pitch of enthusiasm. The display of fireworks was one of the finest seen in many years, and colored fire, brilliant illuminations and the glare of torches made a grand and inspiring scene. Cheers rent the air, grotesquely dressed citizens were seen walking about, and the occasional strains of the band were heard amid the tooting of horns, the discharge of firearms and the shrill cries of young America. The Garden City Cadets, Maj. A. E. Fowle commanding, accompanied by the Newton City band, the Newton drum corps, and a Belva Lockwood Company, at the conclusion of the festivities in the square, marched through brilliantly illuminated streets, amid the bright light reflected from electric lamps, thousands of lanterns, bonfires and colored lights of every description. Pearson's team carried fireworks, which were discharged along the route. Among the places illuminated one of the most attractive was Brackett's block, occupied by Hubbard & Procter's drug store, Wellington Howes' market and the Newton Journal, C. O. Tucker's store, Hiram Chamberlain's market, Arthur Hudson's drug store, W. B. Whittier's, Harrington's news agency, H. B. Coffin's store, on which was an artistic piece of window decoration. The background consisted of an elaborate array of canned goods tastefully arranged. In an alcove appeared the portraits of Harrison and Morton, and overhead a red, white and blue canopy, formed the central decoration. Extending from the sides of the canopy to the window front, were displayed plaited folds of red, white and blue, the national colors being draped gracefully at either end. The light of many white and colored candles was reflected from within the decorated enclosure, and the effect was harmonious and pleasing. The window decoration was the work of Mr. Robert Brackett, Mr. Coffin's book-keeper.

Other illuminations noticed were Messrs. J. N. Bacon's, B. F. Bacon's, the Newton Graphic office, Mr. Walker's, Simpson Brothers, D. R. Emerson, J. W. Davis, in front of whose house was the motto on a white cloth, "Let all the ends thou aimest at be thy country's, thy countrymen's and thy King's." Mr. J. F. Frisbie, J. B. Goodrich, G. T. Coppin, Mr. Clapp, Mr. I. N. Peabody of Peabody & Whitney, J. W. Bassett and others. Mr. Ida was ablaze with light, and many of the residences were prettily decorated with flags and lanterns. Mr. Samuel Hano making a very fine display.

At West Newton there was a very pretty display, houses and stores being illuminated elaborately. In the square a huge bonfire was made of tar barrels. The crowds completely filled the streets, and the wildest enthusiasm prevailed. A display of fireworks was set forth from A. J. Fife's store on Washington street, and the roar of cannon and discharge of firearms commingled with shouts and cheers of the people. The Waban Cadets marched with their torches, led by the American Watch Company band, accompanied by a "contingent" comprising a number of men and boys arrayed in the most ludicrous costumes. Some were dressed in outlandish women's attire, some wore old beavers decorated with flags. A seemingly old man toddled along with an apparently old woman on his arm. One company of youngsters, 20 more in number, wore white shirts outside their jackets. It was called "Allen's Nightshirt Brigade," and was composed of the pupils of the English and Classical school. Another body of young men in horseback, in curious costumes, had no special designation, but said they were "anything for fun." Geo. M. Clark of West Newton had a "Harrison team." It consisted of a moderate-sized horse attached to a covered carriage. The carriage was decorated with the following legends: "Mugwumps to the rear!" "The number one and Grover must go!" "Good for 24 years!" "Teacher, Teacher, what makes me so happy? O mama!" Following the carriage was a small sulky, decorated with flags, on which was the well-known Home Market cry, "Protection for home industries." Among the places illuminated were the following: Chinese lanterns, colored lights and candles being used in an infinite variety of design: Nickerson's block, lighted from end to end; B. F. Houghton's store, Dr. Crockett's house, the Fuller place, H. A. Barker's place, Robinson's block, G. A. Fife's store, Robinson's store, A. J. Fife's store, H. E. Woodberry's store, F. M. Dutch's market, F. L. Linell's store, Mr. Russell's house and the houses of Wm. H. Rand, W. P. Plimpton, E. R. Blanchard, G. A. Walton, secretary of the State Board of Education; L. Cooley, F. W. Wood, A. L. Barbour, C. F. Eddy, Andrew J. Fiske, (house very handsomely decorated) Dr. Thayer, Watertown street, C. W. Whittlesey, Henry C. Sheldon, A. F. G. Libbey, A. K. Tolman and others.

At Newton Centre there was a torchlight parade under command of Lieutenant Sanborn. H. S. Williams' store was brilliantly lighted, as also were many other business places, and the residences of Hon. Levi C. Wade, Mr. Candler's rival for the ninth district congressional nomination, Col. E. H. Haskell, R. H. Gardner, E. T. Colburn, A. I. Rand and many others. There were also displays of fireworks and bonfires.

At Newton Lower Falls tar barrels were burned, houses were illuminated and there was general rejoicing. Mr. Wilson's house on the hill was ablaze with light, and prettily decorated. The house of Mr. L. E. Leland was also prettily decorated, and the residence of Mr. W. R. Dimond looked quite attractive with a display of Japanese lanterns. The discharge of the cannon in the square shattered glass in the "Yellow" block and Boyden Hall, but no very serious damage resulted from the demonstration.

At Newtonville, the square presented a bright and beautiful appearance, bright lights and the illumination from many lanterns, making a fine display. Fireworks were set forth on Walnut street and the Crescent Band of Waltham rendered music. After the salute of the battery, the Harrison and Morton flag was hauled down, while the band played the "Red, White and Blue."

The houses and stores were illuminated and decorated. Gaudet's drug store looked very handsome, and was thronged with visitors during the evening. Sullivan's dry goods store was neatly and prettily decorated. The windows looked very handsome, the back ground consisting of a combination of red, white and blue flannel gracefully draped and festooned. Many candles reflected light and brought out the national colors in richer harmony. C. H. Tainter made quite an elaborate display, and Dearborn's market was ablaze with light, while in the window appeared the motto, "We are beaten, but not Dismayed." Other illuminations noticed were the stores of C. H. Strout, Daniel Archibald, John Beals, D. B. Needham, O. B. Leavitt, A. A. Savage, John Payne, D. C. Fitch, U. H. Dyer, Mrs. Williams, the post office, Tremont Hall, and the second story of Leavitt's block. In front of John Payne's store, colored lights were burned, and the interior was brilliantly illuminated with gas and electricity. The store was filled with people during the demonstration in the square. Mrs. Williams displayed Japanese lanterns and lighted her store with both gas and electricity.

Many residences were illuminated, including those of Messrs. A. H. Soden, W. F. Hawley, Charles Dennison, G. D. Billings, E. B. Lovett, A. E. Adams, E. T. Wiswall and others. Cross street looked quite pretty, the houses of Messrs. Estey, Marsh, Cleveland, Kershaw, Fred Bosworth and Councilman Wiswall being illuminated. Mr. E. W. Bailey, Cabot street, Mr. Austin R. Mitchell, Walnut street, Mrs. Higgins and Mr. Putnam, Walker street, Mr. Edward Page, Watertown street, and Mr. Oliver Plimpton, Washington street, made fine displays.

and boys from Christ church, Cambridge, has consented to sing, and the program arranged has been as follows: 1. Processional Hymn; 2. The Psalms for the Dimittis; 4. Offertory Anthem; 5. Recessional Hymn. The speaker will be the Rev. Dr. J. F. Spaulding. The service begins at 7.30 p. m.

—The Congregational church was comfortably filled last evening with members and friends of the church who had gathered together to listen to an impromptu literary and musical entertainment, in honor of the donors of the handsome Mason Hamilton cabinet organ. The church has long been in need of such an instrument, as the old one had about outlived its usefulness. Mr. Chas. H.
Warren remembering this while at his eastern home in Newton, Mass., last summer, suggested to some of his friends there the donation of the instrument named to the Congregational church here. They took the matter up with their usual generosity, and the pastor, choir and entire congregation have been placed under lasting obligations to them.
—[Tucson, Arizona, Daily Citizen.]

—Mr. Edward P. Wright, of Denver, Col., arrived in Newton last Saturday night, on a short visit to his old friends and relatives here. Mr. Wright is much better health than when he left Newton, and finds the climate of Colorado very enjoyable. He is also very enthusiastic over the marvellous growth and unlimited natural resources of that state, which bids fair to rival the older states within a very few years in wealth, population and all the advantages of civilization. He will remain in Newton for two or three weeks, if the weather continues favorable. Last Monday was such a day as is never seen in Colorado, where rainy days are unknown, even in winter, and where a snow fall of several inches disappears in a few hours, leaving neither mud nor any trace of its presence.

—The fair at the Channing church, which opened Thursday afternoon, and which continues until this evening, has attracted numerous patrons, and the variety of articles displayed upon the several tables has offered unusual induc-ments to purchasers. The art table is in charge of Mrs. Dr. Frisbie; apron table, Mrs. James W. French; doll table, Mrs. J.
Whitman; A. L. Dimes; candy
table, Miss Mary Thompson; boy's table,
Miss Helen Wells; flower table, Miss Esther Bigelow; bundle table, Mrs. H. K.
Hobart; basket table, Miss Jennie Whiton.
The Turkish coffee room proved a great attraction, and the young men could not resist a drink from the hands of a charming girl, arrayed in becoming Turkish costumes. Mrs. W. L. Lowell was in charge of this popular department. The art gallery, in charge of Mr. Bailey, contained a rare collection, which must have been seen to be appreciated. The supper was provided with good things tempting to the taste, and was in charge of Mrs. John E. Alden and Mrs. Horace Soule.

—William Ludwig and his company of artists were greeted with a large and enthusiastic audience in Eliot Hall, Monday evening. It was the first concert given in this country since the return of the distinguished vocalist from his recent tour in Ireland. For Newton it was a new, yet pleasant experience to listen to the voice of Irish melody interpreted with rare artistic appreciation and rendered with characteristic national feivor. Mr. Ludwig's powerful and melodious voice attracts the admiration of all music loving people. His peculiar charm being gained from an evident sympathy with the stirring strains, incidents and the more tender susceptibilities of the Irish people. He carries the enthusiasm of his audience and awakens the chords of memory, full of loving reminiscences and revered remembrances in the hearts of the descendants of the Irish race. Madame Muller sang songs with much sweetness and feeling, and the contralto numbers by Miss Layton were much enjoyed. In the quartet selection, the combination of voices was harmonious, and frequent applause demonstrated the approval of the audience. The closing number, "Let Erin Remember," was very finely rendered.

—The concert given at the Baptist church on Tuesday evening last, under the auspices of the Young Ladies' Foreign Missionary Society of Eliot church, was one of the most enjoyable given in Newton for a long time. The selections were all of high order, and were given in a finished manner. Perhaps the most enjoyable number of the program was the movement from Moschies' concerto in G minor, played by Mr. Albert B. Allison, with the orchestral part upon the organ. This fine composition was given an intelligent and artistic interpretation at Mr. Allison's hands, and with perfect technical skill. This is the first time we have heard such a combination of instruments in Newton, but the effort certainly very fine. Mr. Allison delighted his audience with his facility of execution and delicacy of touch. Mrs. Hibbard and Mrs. Gross were warmly received, the former rendering the Beautiful cantata from Gounod's "Cinq Rains," and the latter a song by Mendelssohn and an aria from Costa's Naaman. Both selections were most enjoyable. Mr. Edmund P. Marsh also contributed a bass solo to the programme. Mr. Marsh's fine voice has often been heard in church and it is always a pleasure to hear him sing. Mr. Goodrich's organ work is so well known that we can only say that it was fully up to his usual high artistic standard, and was thoroughly enjoyed by the audience.

For the Holidays.

All in the search of bargains for the holidays, go to Francis Murdoch & Co's 5 and 10 cent counters, and you will be astonished at the number and variety of handsome articles to be purchased for such a small sum. The bargain counters are in the basement, and comprise glass ware, household utensils, a great variety of bric a brac, and countless useful and ornamental things.

Furs are Demanded

In such weather as we have been having the past few days, and Newton people will find one of the finest assortments in Boston at Jackson's, 412 Washington street, where the furs are carefully made and warranted to give satisfaction.

PRESIDENT BURR THE FAVORITE FOR MAYOR.

The Republican caucuses were held Wednesday evening, and the special points are given below. Delegates in favor of President Burr were elected from wards three, four and six, with wards one, two and seven unpledged, and ward five for Alderman Pettee.

WARD ONE.

The Ward One caucus was organized by the election of Dr. Frisbie as chairman and Mr. Fred W. Stone as secretary.
After defeating a motion to instruct delegates to vote only for a Republican as candidate for alderman from the ward, the caucus elected the following as delegates to the city convention: Dr. E. P.
Scales, H. W. Kendall, C. B. Coffin, L.
E. Coffin and J. E. Hollis; councilman Albert W. Rice was renominated by acclamation and Mr. Reuben Forknall by means of the marking list, the other candidates being J. B. Murphy and H. H.
Powell.

WARD TWO.

The delegates chosen were: W. F. Slocum, A. C. Jenkins, A. T. Sylvester, H.
F. Ross, A. P. Curtis; councilmen, A.
Fenno, E. T. Wiswall. The delegates were instructed to vote for N. H. Chadwick for alderman and Hon. J. W. Dickinson and Mrs. Mary R. Martin for school committee. There was a contest over Mr. Dickinson's name, but his friends were in a majority of seven.

WARD THREE.

In Ward Three the Republicans drew the party line pretty straight and anything less than a full feathered, up and up, swallow it all Republican had no place in the caucus. Mr. James T. Allen presided and H. C. Wood filled the secretary's chair. Mr. Allen read a circular from the women of the city urging the nomination of Mrs. Martin of Newton-ville to succeed Miss A. Amelia Smead on the school board. It was voted to refer the communication to the delegates chosen to attend the majority convention.

Mr. Allen stated that two of the members of the ward committee having resigned that he had appointed Messrs. A.
J. Fiske and H. C. Wood to fill the vacancies. The nomination of delegates was by ballot. The caucus was next proceeded with and Mr. W. E. Sheldon made a speech, alluding to himself and the assembled gentlemen as Simon pure Republicans who believed in making a straight party nomination, acting upon principle, and going forward then to the polls. In his judgment, after looking over the field very carefully, the best chance for Republican success in a candidate for mayor is promised in Mr.
Heman M. Burr, the president of the common council. He was a man of integrity and the people could be assured of thoroughness and faithful attention to their interests in all of his undertakings in behalf of the city. Last year, the Republicans made a mistake in making a combination with another party, and we don't propose to be caught in a like trap again. Continuing, Mr. Sheldon said we will start anew as a solid, unified Republican caucus to nominate and sustain men who were in sympathy with Republican principles. He then presented the name of Mr. E. W. Wood to the caucus as a candidate for delegate, stating that he was a Burr man. Before retiring from the floor, he stated that his own preferences were also for Mr. Burr.

For the common council, nominations were made from the floor, the names of A. F. Luke, O. D. Homer and H. H. Hunt, being presented. Mr. Charles Robinson asked if Mr. Hunt was a Republican, Mr.
Hunt, who was present, replied that he was a Republican in any sense of the word. On motion of Mr. Robinson it was voted that no person be allowed to vote in the caucus, who was not a Republican, and who had not voted the "straight" ticket for national and state officials.

Mr. J. Fiske then moved that the name of Mr. Hunt be stricken from the list, but the motion did not prevail and was subsequently withdrawn. On motion of Mr. Sheldon, a rallying committee of 15 was appointed by the chair to aid the ward and city committee during the campaign.

The result of the deliberations follows:
Delegates, E. W. Wood, E. P. Wilson, L.
G. Pratt, G. H. Ingraham, W. E. Sheldon; councilmen, A. F. Luke, O. D. Homer.
Delegates favor Mr. Burr for mayor.

WARD FOUR.

The caucus was very harmonious.
Delegates, C. C. Burr, W. B. Atherton,
Fred J. Rallett, E. E. Moody, George D.
Harvey; common council, Fred J. Rallett, E. E. Moody; for alderman, Frederic Johnson.

WARD FIVE.

The caucus was fully attended and Mr. Frank J. Hale was renominated for Councilman. As Mr. E. H. Greenwood did not wish to serve again on account of ill health, Mr. E. J. Hyde of Newton Highlands was chosen. The caucus was very enthusiastic over the mention of Alderman Pettee's name for Mayor, and the delegates favor his nomination,
and also Moses G. Crane for alderman.
The delegates are Levi C. Wade, Moses G. Crane, S. R. Dean, E. R. Tarbell and W. Marcy.

WARD SIX.

The caucus was held in Associates'
Hall and was quite largely attended. Mr.
Avery L. Rand presided and Mr. George A. Pierce was elected secretary. The delegates elected to the municipal convention were Messrs. A. L. Rand, E.
H. Mason, R. H. Gardiner, J. H. Sawyer, Frank Edmonds. Mr. A. D. S. Bell proposed the name of Mr. Heman M. Burr for the common council or for a higher office, and on motion of Mr. William E.
Webster he was nominated by acclamation.

By acclamation, it was voted, on motion of Mr. E. H. Mason, that John Ward's name be proposed to the convention as candidate for alderman. Mr.
Ward positively declined to have his name again used for the office. He said that during his official experience there had been much that he had enjoyed, much to learn in performing the numerous duties of the office, but because of account of his business interests and advancing years he must decline to longer serve.

Mr. W. B. Young proposed the name of Mr. H. H. Read for alderman, but Mr.
Read refused to have his name used.
Mr. W. F. Harbach was the choice of the caucus for alderman. Messrs. G. A.

Pond, R. H. Gardiner and A. D. S. Bell refused to be considered as candidates for the common council. Mr. Frank Edmonds was nominated, but not being present it was voted that Mr. D. W.
Eagles be considered the second choice of the caucus. The chairman read a letter from a convention of ladies recommending Mrs. Mary R. Martin for the school committee from ward two, as successor to Miss Smead. It was voted to consider the recommendation. Mr. Rand, after five years' service as chairman of the Republican committee, expressed his thanks for the uniform courtesy and kindness that had been shown to him, and added that the work had been pleasant and agreeable. The thanks of the caucus was extended to Mr. Rand for his efficient and valuable services during the past five years.

WARD SEVEN.

The Ward Seven caucus was held in one of the small rooms of Eliot Hall, and was called to order by Mr. L. A. Hall. Mr.
A. S. Weed was chosen chairman and Mr. Sydney Harwood secretary. The call for the caucus was read and the election of delegates to the city convention called for. Printed cards bearing the names of John B. Goodrich, Andrew S. Marsh, James Macomber, Otis N. Howland and Edward Thompson were distributed, with a headline stating that they were not pledged to any candidate for mayor, but were in favor of John C.
Kennedy for alderman. Mr. Goodrich stated that he had heard that Alderman French would not accept a renomination, and as Mr. French was present he was called on and stated that Mr. Goodrich's statement was true. The ticket was then chosen, with a long list of scattering votes.

Nominations for councilmen were called for and Councilman E. S. Hamblen was renominated by acclamation.

Mr. S. L. Powers nominated Mr. Louis
A. Hall as a young gentleman who has done intelligently and faithful work for the Republican party and would make an excellent member of the city government.
He was chosen by acclamation, after which a collection was taken to make good the deficit in the Ward Seven treasury.

At the beginning of the meeting Mr.
Geo. B. Jones asked if the call meant the whole Republican ticket at the last election. The matter was laid on the table until the close of the meeting, when it was defined to mean all who intended to support the ticket in the coming election.

ing the spacious parlors of Mrs. Frances Bowen at Newton Centre were well filled parts of Newton during the coming win-

THE CAUCUSES.

The work of Wednesday night's Republican caucuses is given in detail in another column, and was good and bad in streaks. The action taken by some of the wards has been severely criticized and gives good reason for the placing of an opposition ticket in the field. Whether the mistakes made will injure the prospects of the general ticket cannot be told until after the action of the convention to-morrow night. The opposition will be both ready and willing to take advantage of any mistakes, and it would have been possible to have done the work so fairly that there would have been no excuse for another ticket.

Ward One set an admirable example for the other wards to follow, by the fair and liberal manner of treating the nominations. Alderman Childs was endorsed for a renomination, as he should have been, having made an excellent official. Councilman Rice was renominated, and as Mr. Powell had stated that he did not wish to serve again, Mr. Reuben Forkall was chosen in his place. The delegates to the convention are representative men, and there seems no probability of trouble in Ward One.

In Ward Two Alderman Chadwick, Councilmen Fenno, and Wiswall were renominated, and will be elected without doubt, as they have made an excellent record. There was some contest over the renomination of Mr. Dickinson for the school board, but it was carried by a small majority. The danger signal about the school board nominees evidently floats over Ward Two this year, as many think a younger and more representative man ought to be chosen in Mr. Dickinson's place. The convention should treat the matter with great caution.

In Ward Three the excitement and bitter partisan feeling of the late election are evidently not yet dispelled, and the caucus decided that nothing but straight Republican candidates would satisfy them this year. Hence they refused to renominate two of the most intelligent and faithful councilmen the ward has ever had, Messrs. Bond and Hunt, and choose two new men, Messrs. A. F. Luke and O. D. Homer, whom they feel sure are able to vote any kind of Republican ticket without scratching. Carrying national politics into the choice of councilmen is something almost unprecedented in Newton, and Ward Three is the only ward in the city which has distinctly avowed such an intention. Such a foolish display of intense partisanship deserves to be rebuked at the polls, and it will be. No political matters come before our city council, all appointments and other measures have hitherto been treated on their merits, and this attempt to make the council a partisan body deserves to fail. Nothing can be said against Messrs. Luke and Homer, who are both excellent gentlemen, but the national victory of the Republican party ought to have left the Ward Three Republicans in a more liberal mood. If Alderman Nickerson declines to serve again, it is said to be the intention to nominate Mr. Adams K. Tolman, if he can be induced to serve, and he would make one of the best members of the board.

In Ward Four there was no trouble of any kind and Alderman Johnson, Councilmen Moody and Rallett were renominated and will be elected without opposition. In Ward Five, Alderman Pettie was enthusiastically endorsed as their candidate for Mayor, and Councilman Hale was renominated. Councilman Greenwood did not desire another term, and Mr. E. J. Hyde was chosen.

In Ward Six, Mr. W. F. Harbach was nominated for Alderman, and Mr. Burr was renominated by acclamation. Mr. Frank Edmonds was also chosen and Mr. D. K. Eagles appointed as a reserve candidate, in case Mr. Burr is chosen for Mayor.

In Ward Seven everything was found to be all cut and dried, ready for the voters to go through the formality of sanctioning it. To the general astonishment it was announced that Alderman French would not run again, and printed tickets were circulated containing delegates pledged to vote for Councilman Kennedy for Alderman. The attendance was small, and the opposition unable to do anything although they have since made up for it by talk upon the streets and in the cars. Councilman Hamblen was renominated by acclamation, and Mr. Louis A. Hall was chosen for the second member. It is certainly better policy for political managers not to show their hands too openly, as it prevents attendants at caucuses from entertaining the flattering idea that they have something to do with choosing the candidates. It is bungling politics to allow the machine to be operated so openly in the presence of the voters and the Ward Seven managers were inexcusably careless. They might have effected the same result by a little more skill and a semblance of respect for the opinion of the public. The nominations were not so bad in themselves as was the way they were sprung upon the caucus. Councilman Hamblen's renomination was expected, and is so acceptable that he will meet with no opposition.

TO-MORROW'S CONVENTION.

In his speech in Eliot Hall during the last campaign, Mr. John S. Farlow described how candidates were chosen in the old town meeting days, and his words are especially applicable to to-morrow's convention to nominate a candidate for mayor. He said that then it was asked of every candidate, "Is he honest? Has he ability? Has he energy? Is he straightforward?" Any candidate who is to be nominated ought to be able to pass the closest scrutiny, and to be such a man that an emphatic yes could be returned to each of these questions.

A city election is and ought to be different from a national election, when in the opinion of too many people a man's politics are held to be of much more importance than his character; the mayor of Newton ought to be a citizen of unimpeachable character and reputation.

The convention has a great opportunity before it, as it can nominate easily the winning man, and put up a ticket for which every citizen will be glad to vote. There is one way of success, and only one that is sure, and that is for the convention to make unanimous choice of a candidate, and then for the delegates to go to work enthusiastically to elect him. If there are as usual a half dozen candidates, one of whom finally succeeds in getting a bare majority, leaving the other candidates and their friends so dissatisfied that they will be lukewarm in the campaign, there will be very little hope of success.

The plan of holding straight Republican caucuses has been criticized by many good Republicans, who think that in a municipal campaign, party lines should not be drawn, but most men are willing to wait until after the convention and see what action may be taken. It may be so eminently wise and proper as to commend itself to voters of all parties, and the convention should certainly not be condemned in advance. The GRAPHIC is pledged to no candidate, but is in favor of the best man, and the one who can most satisfactorily answer the questions quoted by Mr. Farlow. And this is the general sentiment of the people of Newton. Mr. Heman M. Burr, for example, could pass such an examination with honor, and would do credit to the city in the mayor's chair. Let the convention nominate with any like unanimity and he would be sure of an election.

A LOW TAX RATE.

The appropriations for next year are now being considered and it is of the first importance that the tax rate should not be increased. Taxes in Newton are already as high as they should be, if they are not to have an injurious effect upon the growth of the city, and the common council manifested, on Monday night, a praiseworthy determination to limit the appropriations as far as possible. The same cannot be said of the board of aldermen, where the highway appropriations were increased $6,800 over the recommendations of the finance committee.

The highways are the most expensive department of the city, and also where the greatest care is needed in making appropriations, and in expending the money. Any amount of money could be expended, and strong arguments can be advanced for any street; as Alderman Ward said, if one street is to be reconstructed there are equally strong reasons for reconstructing a dozen others, and a half million dollars could be expended on Newton streets and then a great many people would be dissatisfied because their streets were not improved.

The high water service ought to come next year, and few will say that that is of less importance to the growth of Newton than the improvement of streets. Some system of sewerage is also demanded, and while these large expenses are to be met within a few years, there is the greatest need of wisdom and care in the making of appropriations and in the expenditure of money.

We have heard but little of the cry of reform that was raised a year ago, but there is just as urgent need of reform and economy as there was last year, and the city council will not be true to its manifest duty if it permits any great increase over last year's appropriations to be made.

Newton is a prosperous and rapidly growing city, but a high tax rate would affect its growth very unfavorably and keep away many new-comers who would like to settle in Newton, if the taxes here are not higher than in other suburban towns. The increase in the tax-rate of the past few years and the high valuation, have had an unfavorable influence, the real estate dealers say, and it would be much better to allow side streets to remain as they are for a year or two longer, rather than to check the growth of the city. Moderate taxes and a moderate valuation would do more to double the population and wealth of Newton than any amount of "sand-papered" streets, and this is something that the city government should always keep in mind.

THE CITIZEN'S MOVEMENT.

The old Citizen's party is to be revived and will hold a mass convention in Armory Hall, next Wednesday evening, to nominate a candidate for mayor and to propose candidates for other offices, wherever the mistakes of the Republican caucuses have left a good fighting chance.

If the Republican caucuses had been more wisely managed there would have been no places to fill, but there seems to be a demand for some kind of an opposition party and the Citizens hope to fill the bill.

In Ward Two they will probably nominate an opposition candidate to Mr. Dickinson. In Ward Three the mistake of the Republican caucus will be remedied by the renomination of Councilmen Bond and Hunt. In Ward Five there is some talk of running an opposition candidate to Mr. Elliott J. Hyde, as was done with success last year. In Ward Seven a candidate for alderman will be put up, should the Republican convention nominate Mr. Kennedy, and also a candidate for councilman against Mr. Louis A. Hall. Ex-Alderman Harwood is spoken of for the first position, and Mr. A. W. B. Huff for the second.

Should the rumor that the Boston Herald published prove true, that Mayor Kimball will refuse to run, it is not impossible that the Citizens would endorse Mr. Burr, if he is nominated by the Republicans and accepts.

There will certainly be opposition enough to make the election interesting, and to nourish a healthy spirit of independence in the city affairs. Scratching may be awfully wicked in national elections, but in municipal campaigns every citizen likes an opportunity to choose.

THE SCHOOL BOARD.

Ward One has made an admirable choice of school committeemen, in Mr. J. Edward Hollis, who has consented to serve, and it is needless to say that he will be a great addition to the board. The same fair and conservative spirit which Mr. Hollis displayed in the City Council, will enable him to discharge his duties in the school board to the satisfaction of all.

It is hoped that Mr. E. W. Converse will consent to serve again, and this will give Ward One a very satisfactory representation.

Notices were sent to all the wards by the Woman's Suffrage League, in favor of Mrs. Martin for one of the members from Ward Two, and she will be nominated without opposition. There is a movement against Mr. Dickinson, but it remains to be seen whether it will amount to anything or not.

Of the present city government three members are prominently mentioned in connection with the mayoralty. President Burr of the common council has been spoken of before, and would make an excellent Mayor. Although he is not exactly a Methuselah, he is as old as men who have filled many much more important offices, and he would do what he thought best for the interests of the city without regard for any loss of popularity that might follow. Courage and independence are excellent qualities to have in a Mayor. Alderman Johnson of Ward 4 has also been much spoken of, and would give the city a clean, straightforward and business-like administration. Mr. Johnson has been subjected to a good deal of pressure during the past few days, to induce him to consent to be a candidate, and he would be a very popular one. Alderman Pettie of Ward 5 has also many friends who would like to see him in the Mayor's chair, and his long service in the city government has given him valuable experience. Mr. Pettie is especially popular in his own ward, which he is reported to carry in his pocket.

COMMENTING on the statement that Editor Barrett of the Boston Advertiser is an aspirant for the speakership, the Somerville Journal says that his associates on the Boston press would all like to be allowed to vote. This is a rather unkind hit at Mr. Barrett's unpopularity with newspaper men.

EDITOR SPENCER of the Brookline Chronicle resumed his duties again last week, and the readers of that paper must have been pleased at the marked improvement in the tone of the editorials.

A LAMP OF HIGH DEGREE

The Hollings Patent Extension.

There is no sham about it; no fraud, and no deceit. It is just what it appears. When finished in BRASS it is formed throughout of that sterling metal, and is not a zinc or iron casting brass plated. Its WROUGHT-IRON is wrought, and not clumsily cast to deceive an inexperienced buyer. There is no masquerading about it. When finished in SILVER, the standard is formed of solid brass triple plated with the more precious metal; it is not made of iron or zinc tinned to resemble silver.

"An honest tale speeds best," and honest work wears longest. The brass on this lamp does not rub off after three month's use, nor does the silver corrode. Both are genuine, a fact which all intelligent buyers will be quick to appreciate. We keep a cheaper line of these goods in order to accommodate a certain class of trade, but we sell them for what they are, and do not represent them as sterling articles. We cannot be undersold by any dealer in goods of the same quality of material, workmanship and design. Inspection most cordially solicited.

—Mr. and Mrs. Charles N. Sladen, of Lowell street, gave a very successful musical, last Thursday evening, Nov. 15, under the auspices of "The Elmont Male Quartette." "The Elmont" was assisted by the following artists: Miss Katherine M. Lincoln, soprano; Miss Mattie M. Lincoln, alto; Miss Gertrude H. Kelly, violin; Mrs. R. D. Hall, pianist; Miss Gertrude L. Wade, pianist; Mr. Charles E. Chapin, tenor. The evening was very enjoyable to the many friends, that were present, and the program was successfully carried out. The quartet rendered some fine selections and the soloists were the recipients of merited applause. The music closed with a collection.

—The Goddard Literary Union presented an original composition of the comic nature in two acts, entitled "At the Shore," in the Universalist church parlors, Tuesday evening. The characters were very enjoyable, and some laughable scenes were depicted. The cast follows: David Golden, hotel proprietor; M. N. Boyden; Booter, colored porter; W. B. Coyell; Richard Keapp, of the Exchange; Miss Laura M. Moore; Prend, from Quindry; H. P. Dearborn; Mr. Clark; W. L. Chaloner; Mr. Martin; W. F. Kimball; Miss Inland; Mrs. G. W. Pope; Mrs. F. R. "rather highfalutin"; Mrs. H. P. Dearborn; Miss Laura M. Moore; Mrs. W. F. Kimball; Miss Kennett; Mrs. W. L. Chaloner. In the second act, an impromptu entertainment was given, introducing the Elmont male quartet, and the many friends, that were present, and the program was successfully carried out. It was a very enjoyable entertainment, reflecting credit upon its projectors and participants.

—A union temperance service was held in the Universalist church parlors, Tuesday evening, which tested the seating capacity of the house to the fullest extent. Rev. Pleasant Hunter read appropriate selections of scripture, Rev. Geo. Butler made an earnest prayer, and the Universalist choir rendered choice selections of music. The platform was occupied by Rev. R. A. White, Hon. W. S. Sloum and Judge Park of Newton, who were to speak on "Temperance from the standpoint of the lawyer." After a pleasant introduction by the pastor, Mr. Sloum addressed the audience upon the theme which vitally concerns the best interests of the community, and in an agreeable though strongly impressive manner, gave views and facts upon the subject which were novel and interesting. Mr. Sloum stood self-forgetful in his earnest appeal, a fine type of manhood at its best estate, and held the deep interest of his hearers until he gave place to the venerable Judge Park, whose "talk" was as he said, "largely anecdotal," and the point of his argument "self-control." Once able to regain control of one's self, any reform might be accomplished. He stated instances of cases where moral control sometimes touching a man's pride, sometimes his love of wife and children, had resulted so happily. He moved his listeners to tears or smiles as his words varied, and made one glad that the unfortunate brought before him in his official position had so tender yet just a censor.

Art Loan Exhibition.

The Art Loan Exhibition, under the auspices of the Woman's Guild, opened in the parlors of the Universalist church, Wednesday evening. An astonishing array of antiques, curiosities from our own and foreign lands, works of art by foreign and native masters, needle work ancient and modern, and so on. It is certainly the most complete exhibition ever given in Newton. The articles shown comprised Indian pottery, loaned by Mrs. Henry F. Ross; East Indian carvings, and curiosities from the collection of Capt. Doane, Mrs. Geo. Mead, Mr. Isaac Doane, Mrs. H. D. Wellington, Capt. John Barton, Capt. Elliot, Miss Cornelia, Capt. Martin; set of old Dutch spoons, Mrs. T. M. Clark; tureen and other articles used by Governor Hancock;

pewter platters and dishes 150 years old. Mrs. J. D. Billings; child's chair, 175 years old, Mrs. A. H. Sisson; pewter platter brought over in the Mayflower, by Pilgrim Mayhew; silver service used in the Hubbard family in 1738; some of Cotton Mather's sermons in manuscript. Mrs. Lowery; books printed in 1625; samplers and screens 100 years old; over 200 years old, and other articles rare and curious, loaned by Mrs. Wm. Claffin; a fine brocade worn by a Boston lady in 1780; and other articles too numerous to find mention, here but all well worth seeing. The display of paintings was very fine and many famous foreign and American artists were represented. Mrs. Chaloner and Miss Tewksbury loaned some beautiful paintings, and the water colors, engravings, and etchings were also very attractive. The loan collection was a great success. The contributors were mostly from Newtonville and visitors were delighted at the extent and variety of the artistic collection owned in Ward Two.

WEST NEWTON.

—Don't forget your contribution for the Cottage Hospital Sunday morning.

—Miss Dora Stuart of Newton Centre has been passing the last week with Miss Florence Homer of this place.

—Mr. and Mrs. N. T. Allen and the Misses Allen attended the dedication services of the Unitarian church at Wellesley Hills, Tuesday afternoon.

—Mr. G. A. Walton spoke at the Teachers' Institute at Arlington, on Wednesday, on "Language and Reading," and Mr. John W. Dickinson on "Teaching—Methods and Aims."

—The first meeting of the season of the Browning Club was held in the ladies' parlor last week. The list is not full, and additions may be made by applying to Mrs. Forman.

—Rev. Prof. Sheldon of the Boston University lectured in the Congregational church, Sunday evening. His subject was, "Indulgences," and that lesson they suggest regarding the Romish theocracy.

—The next meeting of the West Newton Women's Educational Club will be held this (Friday), afternoon, at 2:30 o'clock, in the parlors of the Unitarian church. "Outings" will be given by members of club.

—Among the artistic articles at the Art Loan Exhibition held under the auspices of the Woman's Guild at Newtonville, was a table-cloth and samplers 125 years old and a handsome Dresden plaque kindly contributed by Mrs. E. W. Wood of this village.

—There will be a sociable in the Unitarian church parlors this (Friday) evening. An entertainment on the stage will be followed by a social hour and dancing, with refreshments served in the dining room. A pleasant evening may be expected. All interested in the social prosperity of the church are cordially invited.

—Mr. E. P. Call has resigned as president of "The Players," and the former secretary, Mr. Pierpont Wise, is assuming the duties of the office, pro tem. There are 60 names now on the "waiting list" for association membership, and several will probably be admitted after the annual meeting in December.

—Mr. Geo. D. Clarke, former superintendent of the Unitarian church Sunday school, has been the recipient of a very handsome mantle clock in marble and bronze, which was a gift of the teachers, who have been long associated with him in his work as a token of their appreciation of his valuable and untiring labors in the school.

—There is a great deal of dissatisfied feeling over the action of the Republican caucus in refusing to renominate Councilmen Bond and Hunt. The general sentiment is that it was carrying partisanship to an undue excess, and if the Republicans had been defeated at the last election, such action might have seemed more reasonable. It is almost the first instance in Newton of a direct attempt to carry national politics into an election for members of the city council, and it is condemned by Republicans quite as heartily as it is by Mugwumps and Democrats.

—The news of the death of Mrs. Julia M. Pike, yesterday afternoon, at 4:15 o'clock, will be received with sincere sorrow in this community. She was the daughter of Mr. Joseph W. Stone and was aged 25 years, 10 months and 4 days. Her death was the result of an accident in being thrown from a carriage. Now, the severe shock and terrible blow proving fatal. The deceased was married to Mr. Herbert A. Pike about two years ago. She was a graduate of the Newton schools, a member of the First Congregational church, a young lady of estimable and loving characteristics. The funeral will take place Sunday from the late residence of the deceased, Winthrop street, at 2 p. m.

—In lieu of the regular program, "Summer Outings," for the opening meeting of the Women's Educational Club, Brookline, Washington, of Tuskegee, Ala., was presented, and gave an interesting account of the colored schools and their work in the United States, particularly on the one at Tuskegee, of which, he and his wife are efficient teachers. The cause of the Hampton school, which was so fully presented in the Unitarian church a few Sabbaths since, won from the sum of $170. Mrs. Dunbar and Mrs. J. C. Jaynes entertained the club before the opening exercises very pleasantly by a fine piano solo. The evening ended with a collection over the spirit of the hour occasioned by the sad accident which had occurred recently to Mrs. Pike, one of the members, which found expression in passing a resolution, the sympathy of the club, for the afflicted.

—At the conclusion of the morning service in the Second Congregational church of Newton, who were to speak on "Temperance from the standpoint of the lawyer." After a pleasant introduction by the pastor, Mr. Sloum addressed the audience upon the theme which vitally concerns the best interests of the community, and in an agreeable though strongly impressive manner, gave views and facts upon the subject which were novel and interesting. Mr. Sloum stood self-forgetful in his earnest appeal, a fine type of manhood at its best estate, and held the deep interest of his hearers until he gave place to the venerable Judge Park, whose "talk" was as he said, "largely anecdotal," and the point of his argument "self-control." Once able to regain control of one's self, any reform might be accomplished. He stated instances of cases where moral control sometimes touching a man's pride, sometimes his love of wife and children, had resulted so happily. He moved his listeners to tears or smiles as his words varied, and made one glad that the unfortunate brought before him in his official position had so tender yet just a censor.

Weston; Little Bo-Peep, Ruth Eagar; Goody Two-Shoes, Ethel Woodbury; Red Riding Hood, Florence Forsyth; Little Jack Horner, Ferdinand Blanchard; Humpty Dumpty, Dwight Woodbury; Little Blue Bird, Alfred Fuller; Jack and Jill, Fred and Mary Frost.

—The people of Newton demonstrated their indifference to good music, at the Listemann concert in City Hall Wednesday evening. To be sure, the price of the tickets was a little high, but lower than that of the Boston concerts of the same rank. As it was, barely a hundred people were present to welcome the artists. The interest of the evening centered on Mrs. Louise Baldwin Powers, the soprano. Her singing was thoroughly enjoyable, and was fully appreciated by the audience. Her voice is of pure soprano quality, of excellent and even compass, and her phrasing and expression are truly artistic. Mr. Listemann from Newtonville and visitors were delighted at the extent and variety of the artistic collection owned in Ward Two.

AUBURNDALE.

—Several clothes lines were robbed Monday evening at Lexington street, near Cherry street. It is the supposed work of strolling gypsies.

—Dr. Barrows gave an interesting lecture on his travels through the Rocky mountains, in the chapel of the Congregational church, Thursday evening.

—In the superior court this week, Patrick Coleman, Lexington street, was convicted of keeping a liquor nuisance, the finding of the local court being sustained.

—Mr. E. G. Tinkham is the champion runner of ward four. He left Capt. Baker badly in a race Thursday afternoon, between Ford's past and the race of Dr. Childs on Lexington street. Mr. Tinkham is receiving congratulations from the sporting men hereabout, who suggest a championship belt for the winner.

—The Woman's Board of Missions auxiliary, Lexington street, met at the home, Wednesday afternoon. Mrs. Green, returned missionary from Japan, gave an interesting talk relative to the foreign field in which she labored. The great desire among the ladies is to learn the English language, then to become Christians. A large number of churches have been established.

—Miss Ruth Courvoisier, vocalist, and Miss Jennie F. Meins, elocutionist, gave an entertainment at the Riverside school, Auburndale, Monday evening. The vocal selections were finely rendered and the pupils of the school and their friends greatly enjoyed Miss Courvoisier's fine voice and the elocutionary rendering of her selections. The readings were an added charm to the program, and both artists were the recipients of a flattering measure of applause.

—The temperance concert, given last Sunday at the Congregational Sunday school in Auburndale, was very enjoyable. Through the kindness of Miss Kate Plummer, excellent quartet music was furnished. The chorus singing by the younger children, under the charge of Miss Elizabeth Johnson, was a principal feature, while the success of the concert is due to one of the assistant superintendents of the Sunday school, Miss Elizabeth M. Strong, who arranged the entire exercise.

Lassell Notes.

—Dr. Kent enjoyed a visit from her mother and brother of Lynn during the week.

—Mrs. C. B. Oliver of East Saugus was the guest of her daughter Maude during the week.

—Miss Ransom has a very interesting juvenile class in gymnastics, consisting of twelve little girls and boys from West Newton.

—The subject for the demonstration lecture in cooking on Monday next, Nov. 26, will be "Veal Soup, Veal, Birds, and Omelet Souffle."

—Among the recent additions to the Lassell Art Gallery is "A Good Honey-moon" by J. Ward Dunsmore; "The Shepherdess," by A. Rosenboom of the Hague; "A Study of Dandelions," by L. W. Roberts of Dorchester; "The Snow Spring Flowers," by E. Lincoln of New York; and "Under the Birches," by Minnie G. Spear of Newton Centre.

CONGREGATIONAL CLUB.

INTERESTING DISCUSSION OF THE EVANGELIZATION OF NEWTON.

The second meeting of the winter series of the Newton Congregational Club was held at the church of the Second Congregational church, at West Newton, on Monday evening last, President G. B. Putnam in the chair. Notwithstanding the unpleasant weather a very full attendance of the members was noted and the social meeting and supper were much enjoyed. The subject selected for discussion was "The Evangelization of Newton," and Rev. H. J. Patrick and Mr. G. D. Gilman were announced as the leaders. Before entering on the subject, Mr. Gilman spoke in words of high praise of the good work that had been done by the pastor of the West Newton society on the previous day in his successful endeavor to raise funds to liquidate the debt of the society, and asked the assemblage to stand and sing "Praise God from whom all blessings flow" in honor of the event, which was done with a will. The reports of committees, election of members and other routine business having been disposed of, excellent music was furnished by a quartet of male voices and Mr. Gilman opened the subject which the committee had selected for the evening's discussion. He spoke of the evangelists from the beginning of Christianity down to our well known and much beloved Moody, and of the grand and glorious results they had achieved. They were all God-given men. When it comes to the evangelization of Newton, the addresser then comes to one's mind is, "Is there any necessity of such a thing?" The speaker then gave figures showing the seating capacity of all the churches, the average weekly attendance, the admissions and the facts showing that the evangelization of Newton was absolutely necessary. He proceeded by revealing Christ's command "Go teach." This referred to all. We cannot leave all the work to a few. All must try to follow in the tracks of our Master. Success requires the assistance of all consecrated men, and they must work together, not being afraid of touching elbows. Allow the pastor to lead but do not expect him to do all the good that is done. Mr. Gilman closed by reading a beautiful poem, "Who will go and work to day."

Rev. H. J. Patrick said at first thought he considered that it was presumptuous for the committee to select such a subject, but Webster's definition must be thrown aside and the idea of evangelization be considered as the gathering of all people into the church. Otherwise Newton could not need evangelizing. A friend who had recently returned to Newton from a Western city said he felt as though he had got back to heaven, while another friend who lived in Hyde Park had said that when the millennium struck the earth it would take Newton first. However, these things could be offset by some things not so pleasant, although we have lots of good people and opportunities. But there are families who enjoy the privileges of the schools and libraries, who go to no church and are in no way connected with any society. So it may seem that we do not need to go to Africa to find people who need the gospel. And it should be the plain, simple gospel of our ancestors, such as that as is preached by the Revs. John Hall and William Taylor. And every man should preach it in the same way that politicians work on their fellow citizens in such strifes as we have recently passed through.

Park Improvements?

When the residents about the new Lincoln Park were asked to subscribe towards its purchase, it was the generally expressed desire that it should be left in its natural state as long as possible, and the growth of red oaks and pines retained. Many of the trees were partly dead at the tops, but had plenty of life to last many years with proper care, and were quite satisfactory to those living about the park.

The south side of the lot could have been partially graded without disturbing the trees; but all the trees have been sacrificed through the ignorance and incompetency of our city officials, who appeared with the steam roller and had them torn up—many of them so sound that the roots had to be cut before the roller could pull them over. One of the highway committee told the writer that several of the trees would have to be taken out at any rate to make room for a sidewalk. Sidewalk indeed! What need of sidewalks about the park? If the city would employ their solicitude for providing sidewalks where they have been urged to provide them for years, we would not have the miserable apologies for them which are a disgrace to any city.

The trees in the grove had never had sufficient care, and were starving for nourishment. If fertilizers and cultivation could have been applied, they would have recovered their vigor. The experienced persons in charge of parks in other cities take advantage of every possible chance to retain their natural features, but the tyros in charge of this affair have deliberately sacrificed every chance of this, and their design is to plant a "row of maples" about the park. For what it will cost to take the trees off, the park could easily be kept in good condition for ten years, while one of the authors of this reckless mismanagement admits that it will cost "two thousand dollars" to do the "grading alone."

The trees with a little pruning would have been perfectly satisfactory to the majority of the residents most interested, and could not be replaced at any cost. Anybody can plant maple trees, but oak trees such as were sacrificed are not to be had every day. It is apparent that somebody wanted to spend some money.

At least it would have been common courtesy to have got an expression of opinion from the residents about the park before undertaking such an outrageous destruction of trees—entirely uncalled for.

Newtonville, November 16th.

THE many candidates for the position of Collector of the port of Boston should remember that Collector Saltonstall's term does not expire until May, 1890, unless he is removed for cause. As he has been one of the best collectors who ever held the office, and has conformed strictly to civil service reform rules, there will be some trouble in finding any just cause, in spite of the desires of Messrs. Beard, Burden, Noyes, Jesse Gove, and the other politicians who would like the salary attached to the office. Gen. Harrison has spoken very emphatically in favor of civil service reform, and it is hardly probable that he will surrender to the seekers after spoils at the beginning of his administration. It is not even claimed that any one of the gentlemen mentioned would make a better official than Collector Saltonstall, and such a scramble for spoils is very unseemly.

THE Young Men's Democratic club of Massachusetts have set an example that other political associations should be made to follow. They have printed a detailed report of all their receipts and expenses, and people who contributed, know just where their money went. If the Democratic and Republican National committees would follow the example thus set, they would give the people some very interesting reading. It is certainly time that a vigorous protest was made against the use of money in national elections and the only effectual remedy seems to be the passage of a law compelling the publication of true and accurate reports of all moneys received and expended, with proper penalties for every violation of the law. The Australian system of voting will do something and some law compelling publicity of all expenses would help to prevent the flood of corruption and venality that seems likely to overwhelm popular elections. Legitimate campaign expenses would never mount up to the millions, which each party is now accusing the other of spending in the recent campaign.

Mr. Dolliver—"So you want to marry my daughter? Have you any means of existence?" Mr. Ponsomby—"At present none, but I have very brilliant prospects." Mr. Dolliver—"I dare say; but suppose I don't die for a good many years, what's going to become of you then?"—[Drake's Magazine.]

One of our magazines, in an essay upon the French Canadians who migrate to this country, says that some of them foolishly Anglicize their names, changing, for example, Boisvert into Greenwood, Gagne into Winner, Le Blanc into White, and so on. It does not seem to us that such translations deserve to be called foolish. There are but few Americans who could pronounce the names properly in their French form.—[N. Y. Sun.]

MUSICAL MATTERS.

THE BACK BAY CONCERT.

Although announcement of the full program of the first concert of this course had been made, notice was given last Friday that the project had been abandoned, from lack of support, and that money would be refunded to purchasers of tickets. From a musical and educational point of view, it is perhaps not so much of a loss as from a standpoint of enjoyment, for where can the orchestra be found to successfully offer opposition to the Symphony orchestra, upon equal terms? Certainly not in this country. Then, again, this scheme failed to enlist the sympathies of the fashionable circles of Boston, and, alas! it cannot be denied that these are at present the main-stay (financially) of the Symphonies. "Indefinite postponement" sounds well, but we are afraid that it will be a long time before (on a question of musical success) any opposition to the concert of Mr. Geitzke's band can be maintained.

The Handel and Haydn society—the following announcement of the works to be presented during the season of 1888-9, is made by the Handel and Haydn society: Sunday, Dec. 23, Handel's "Messiah," with Miss Emma Juch, Miss Emily Winant, Mr. C. A. Knorr and Myron W. Whitney as soloists; Sunday, Feb. 24, Verdi's "Messa di Requiem" and Mendelssohn's "Hear My Prayer," Miss Elizabeth Hamilton, Miss Clara Poole, Mr. A. L. King and Mr. Giuseppe Campanari being the soloists; Sunday, April 21, Mendelssohn's St. Paul, with Mr. and Mrs. George Henschel, Miss Flora E. Finlayson, and Mr. Geo. J. Parker. Season tickets to last year's subscribers, (for renewal of seats) Monday, Nov. 26; to new subscribers, on and after Tuesday, Nov. 27.

THE SYMPHONY CONCERT.

The program for to-morrow evening's concert is as follows: Overture in E minor, F. Schubert (first time in Boston); Fantasia for violin, harp and orchestra, by Max Bruch (first time in Boston); Symphonic Poem, "Le Ruyet d'Omphale," by Cam. Saint-Saens; Symphony, No. 2, in D, Brahms. Mr. C. M. Loeffler will be the soloist.

NOTES.

The next Young People's Popular will occur next Wednesday afternoon, Nov. 28, at 2.30.

The operas to be given by the Kellogg company the remainder of this week are: Friday evening, "Bohemian Girl;" Saturday matinee, "Il Trovatore," and in the evening "Mignon."

Notice of this week's concert will be found in another column.

Mrs. T. P. Lovell, a pupil of Sig. Rotoli, of the New England Conservatory, gave a most successful debut at Association hall last week, before a large and musical audience.

THEATRES.

BOSTON AMUSEMENTS NEXT WEEK.

Globe Theatre.—Harry Lacy and the "Still Alarm" continue to draw immense crowds at this popular resort. It is understood that this play will remain at the Globe for several weeks to come. In the third act is given the interior view of an engine house, with a real steam fire engine, and at a given signal two beautiful Arabian horses appear and almost hitch themselves up for a run. The whole play is interesting and everybody seems to go away delighted.

Park Theatre.—As before announced, Lotta, in "Pawn Ticket No. 210," she is as charming as ever, and in this play has many opportunities of showing her great versatility.

Boston Museum.—Brenson Howard's new play, "Shenandoah," proves a great success, and so far the managers are highly pleased with the public's applause. The play is of a civil and military character combined, running smoothly throughout, and embodying many glowing and patriotic scenes and expressions.

Hollis Street Theatre.—Southern, as "Lord Chumley," is unquestionably a permanent success. On Monday, Nov. 26, Gillette's great spectacular, "She," will be presented, for one week only, for fashionable audiences. The Hollis, certainly, is now leading all the other houses. It is a perfect gem of a theatre, and the entire management are most courteous.

Grand Opera House.—Mr. J. B. Polk, with his opera company, will appear in "Mixed Pickles," till Saturday evening. On Monday Nov. 26, C. W. Coultick, the accomplished actor, will appear in the leading role of "Hazel Kirke," one of the most powerful as well as pathetic dramas ever written. Tickets can be reserved over the telephone without extra expense.

The Gaiety Music and Bijou Theatre are now playing the Opera "Chances of Normandy." They have also a general variety troupe. The performances are continuous. Many lady shoppers find this a pleasant retreat for an hour's rest after having made the rounds of business calls.

A Continental Educational Campaign.

Col. Shepard, in his speech at the Home Market Club banquet, suggested to those present that if they would take pains to promote the circulation of Republican literature in Republican daily journals, they would make it utterly impossible for any Democratic administration hereafter to range a single New England State in the Democratic column. At least, one prominent manufacturing establishment has been prompt to act upon the hint. The following notice was conspicuously posted at the mill of the Nonantum Worsted Company last week:

THE DECEMBER FORUM.

In the October number of the Forum Archdeacon Farrar made a narrative of Tolstoi's remarkable career, explained the religious meaning and the literary value of his great novels, and criticized his religious teachings. Both American and English readers expressed a desire for a more specific explanation by so high an authority of the difference between Tolstoi's rigid interpretation of the teachings of Jesus and the interpretation made by the mass of Protestant believers. This second article will appear in the Forum for December. In the same number, Dr. Austin Flint will discuss the evidence that all infectious diseases, including yellow fever, are caused by bacteria, and the possibility of eliminating all contagious disease from the world. The line of argument of his recent article on the Negro, will discuss the relations between the races at the South. Mr. Edward Atkinson's contribution will be on "The Price of Life," and Mr. Z. R. Lockwood, Superintendent of the Elmira (N.Y.) Reformatory, will write about prison-convict systems to show the necessity of giving convicts self-sustaining work. There will be six other timely articles.

LITTELL'S LIVING AGE FOR 1889.

During the forty-five years of its existence this sterling weekly magazine has steadily maintained its high standard. It is a thoroughly satisfactory compilation of the most valuable literature of the day, and as such is unrivalled. As periodicals of all sorts continue to multiply, this magazine continues to increase in value; and it has become quite indispensable to the American reader. By its aid alone he can, with an economy of time, labor, and money otherwise impracticable, keep well abreast with the literary and scientific progress of the age and with the work of the ablest living writers. It is the most comprehensive of magazines, and its prospectus for 1889 is well worth the attention of all who are selecting their reading-matter for the new year. Reduced club rates with other periodicals are given, and to new subscribers remitting now for the year 1889 the intervening numbers are sent gratis. Littell & Co., Boston, are the publishers.

THANKSGIVING.

GOV. AMES DESIGNATES THURSDAY, THE 29TH OF NOVEMBER.

COMMONWEALTH OF MASSACHUSETTS. By His Excellency, Oliver Ames, Governor:

A proclamation for a day of public thanksgiving and praise.

In the olden time our pious ancestors, surrounded by dangers that impelled their existence, annually devoted a day to the giving of public thanks to Almighty God that he had spared their lives and granted them so many mercies.

This custom has continued to the present time, binding the past to the present as with a golden thread. In conformity with this revered usage, and in recognition that the people of this commonwealth have enjoyed another year of peace, prosperity and happiness, I hereby appoint, with the advice and consent of the council, Thursday, the 29th day of November next, to be the annual Thanksgiving day.

When from East and from West, From North and from South come the pilgrim and guest, When the gray-haired New Englander sees round his board

The old broken link of affection restored, Putting aside on that day our usual cares and occupations, as we assemble in our customary places of public worship or in the privacy of our homes, let us be thankful to Almighty God for his many blessings.

And may our thankfulness be so devoid of selfishness that we remember the erring, the unfortunate and the suffering, and from our abundance contribute to their comfort and happiness.

Given at the council chamber, in Boston, this seventeenth day of October, in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and eighty-eight, and of the independence of the United States of America the one hundred and thirtieth.

OLIVER AMES.

By His Excellency the Governor, with the advice of the council.

HENRY B. PERCE, Secretary.

God save the commonwealth of Massachusetts.

Kind And Considerate.

(Cambridge Press.)

The gentlemen who do the voters the favor to think for them, have held their little parlor caucuses already, and will spring their candidates upon us when the public meetings are held. What a kind and considerate set of people they are! They save us lots of worry and bother, and yet in matters other than political we are very apt to say, "we don't want our thinking done for us by anybody."

The decline of Boston as a literary centre still continues. The fish trust of that city has collapsed, doubtless because the demand for brain food in that vicinity has greatly diminished.—[Chicago News.

On the right road: Dumley—"Well, Gibbs, what will you take?" Gibbs—"Make a sherry cobbler." Dumley—"A sherry cobbler? Why, I never knew you to take anything less than a good stiff whiskey toddy before." Gibbs—"I know that, Dumley; but I find that I've got to mend."

Jubilant Republicans.

The Republicans of Wellesley and Newton Lower Falls celebrated the election of Harrison and Morton by a parade and display of fireworks Saturday evening. The procession formed in Newton Lower Falls at about 8 o'clock, and proceeded up Washington street to Wellesley Hills, thence through Worcester and Washington streets to Wellesley. There were 300 torchbearers in line, and two wagons containing fireworks accompanied the procession, a display of fireworks being made all along the route. In the squares at Newton Lower Falls, Wellesley Hills and Wellesley, large crowds congregated, colored lights were burned and fireworks set off. The stores were brilliantly lighted, and in some instances special illuminations were made. Many of the citizens, along the route of procession illuminated their houses with candles and Japanese lanterns. At the conclusion of the parade a collation was served to the torchbearers.

EPOCH.

The transition from long, lingering and painful sickness to robust health marks an epoch in the life of the individual. Such a remarkable event is treasured in the memory and the agency whereby the good health has been attained is gratefully blessed. Hence it is that so much is heard in praise of Electric Bitters. So many feel they owe their restoration to health, to the use of the Great Alterative and Tonic. If you are troubled with any disease of Kidneys, Liver or Stomach, of long or short standing, you will surely find relief by use of Electric Bitters. Sold at 50c. and $1 per bottle at Arthur Hudson's drugstore.

B. A. ATKINSON & CO., LIBERAL HOUSE FURNISHERS.

827 Washington St., Boston, Mass.

Offer the following suggestions.

There are two ways to make money. One is to earn it; the other is to save it.

There are two ways of saving money. When you save a dollar by putting it in the bank you do well; but when you save a dollar by shrewd purchasing you do better. The first is saving; the second is in reality earning.

So there are two ways of earning money. By labor and by wise purchasing.

LET US SAY A WORD ABOUT PURCHASING. There are a few sound facts that the public are beginning to learn. What are they?

The First Thing to learn in order to become a successful purchaser is that price means nothing till you see the goods. The fact that Chamber Sets cost $25 in one store and $15 in another tells you nothing. The $25 set is perhaps worth $30 while the $15 set may not be worth carrying away.

Goods may be too cheap sometimes. Price doesn't tell the whole story. Either know the goods or know the dealer. If he is a liberal furnisher his reputation as such has gone abroad. People find it out. His trade increases, his store has to be enlarged, and when at last you learn it covers ten acres, why, it means something. It tells the whole story of his business methods. It shows that people have discovered his liberal ways and taken advantage of them. It points you the direction for your next purchase.

PEOPLE OFTEN ASK US IF IT PAYS TO ADVERTISE? It does if you have got genuine bargains. The man who advertises largely shows his own large confidence in his goods.

A Second Precept in successful purchasing is that the best is cheapest in the end. Many people who have never visited our warehouses have the idea that only cheap goods are sold by houses who sell on the credit system as well as for cash. That is a great mistake.

Remember there is a difference between Cheap Goods and Goods Cheap. Go elsewhere for cheap goods; but come here for goods cheap. The man who sells cheap goods sells his customers also. We are not in that line of business.

The public are beginning to understand the difference. Our establishment often agrees shows this. It speaks very plainly.

A PURCHASE BY PARTIAL PAYMENTS is a savings bank, a good resolution, and the means of keeping it—all in one. It is the beginning of a successful career for it is the formation of a wise habit of saving.

Visitors to Boston are interested in our White Teams which they meet on every side. They are a part of our White Business Methods. The goods are sold on white principles and they are white goods always.

—Rev. A. M. Higgins, of Somerville, will preach at the Baptist church next Sunday, at 10:45 A. M., and 6:30 P. M. Prayer meeting at the close of the evening preaching service.

—There will be union services Thanksgiving day, at the Methodist church. There will be a discourse by the pastor, Rev. Mr. Peterson, whose subject will be, "The American Republic, and the common schools."

—The lecture by Rev. Dr. Butler, at the Methodist church, postponed from last Monday evening on account of the storm, will be given next Monday evening at 7:30. Subject, "Mexico under Catholic and Protestant influence." Seats free. All are invited.

—Flyers were scattered about the village very plentifully, this week, announcing a stereopticon exhibition at the Baptist church for Tuesday evening, Nov. 27, by Prof. Turner of Boston. Mr. Turner has been with us before and if his previous efforts are an indication of this one, he should be greeted with a full house, as he well deserves to be. His entertainments are very interesting and instructive, and are enjoyed alike by young and old. His subject for the coming entertainment is to be "Ireland, England and Scotland."

NEWTON LOWER FALLS.

—The Dudley mills have started up again on full time, this week.

—Mr. Geo. Emery, postmaster at Woodville, N. H., is here on a visit.

—Steps are being taken for the formation of a singing school at Boyden Hall.

—A number of the carpenters employed by the Dudley mills had their tools stolen on Saturday evening.

—The subscription paper which is being circulated here to procure an artificial limb for Miss Hattie Paine is meeting with success.

—The attendance at the caucus, from this place on Wednesday evening, was very small, the majority not believing in strict party caucuses.

—A petition has been circulated and received many signatures, asking Mr. E. E. Moody to accept the nomination as councilman for another year.

—Everybody is pleased to see the pleasant countenance of the Rev. W. Wells on our streets again, he having recently returned from his trip to Washington much improved in health.

—It is an unfortunate fact for the contractors on our new bridge, that the water is very unusually high, and becomes constantly more so, and causes them to labor at a great disadvantage.

—The opening of a mission at St. John's church, next Sunday morning, will be rendered more than usually impressive by the presence of the archbishop, who will administer confirmation to a large number of children.

—Mr. Frank G. Eaton, formerly of this village, was married last week Wednesday, at St. Matthias church, Philadelphia, the bride being Miss Laura, daughter of Mrs. W. V. Alter. There were four bridesmaids, and full church service. A wedding reception was held at the residence of the bride's mother, 2006 Spring Garden street, Philadelphia, which was largely attended.

—Mr. and Mrs. Eaton have gone to Europe for a two months' tour, after which they will live in Philadelphia.

—The torchlight procession, of last Saturday evening, was the most exciting event of the season, in this place. Considerable interest was taken by the citizens in general. The principal illuminations were on the Wellesley side, as the celebration was mainly a Wellesley affair.

—The houses of Charles Sawyer and William Ware were brilliantly illuminated, as were also the stores and post office. The most strikingly brilliant red paint was to be seen on Columbia street and vicinity. The barouche was the most interesting feature of the procession.

—The temporary bridge was completed last Saturday, and is quite a substantial structure. It rests upon spiles driven into the soil under the river bed and extends from Pulsifer's blacksmith shop to the rear of Boyden Hall. The citizens are delighted, for through a series of unforeseen circumstances, the pedestrians and those more fortunate people who drive in their own carriage have been obliged to travel a considerable distance in order to reach the centre of the village or their respective residences. The contract for the new iron bridge was given out by the city council, but the work was delayed, owing to high water in the river, rendering it impossible to lay the foundation stones. The delay has been wearisome and the citizens began to demur, it being finally decided to erect a temporary structure. The foundation stones on the iron bridge are now being laid, a large gang of workmen having been busily employed on the Sabbath. The work is being pushed as rapidly as possible and as soon as the foundation layers of stone is completed, the construction of the stone supports will be soon completed. It seems unfortunate that the work on the new bridge has been so long delayed.

NONANTUM.

—Several weddings have taken place during this month, and several others are said to be approaching.

—Mrs. Edmund Neild of this village attended the burial of her brother, on Wednesday afternoon, at Providence, R. I.

—A new choir has been organized at the North Evangelical church, and the young people's chorus choir has been given up.

—A very successful entertainment was given at the North Evangelical church on Wednesday evening, consisting of vocal and instrumental music, reading and tableaux.

—Edgar Hanson has bought out Leslie Moriarty's fish and oyster market. He is now prepared to attend to all orders in his line, personally.

—Rev. Mr. G. S. Butters, of Newtonville, will give a Thespian story at the concert, next Sabbath evening at the North Evangelical church.

—Joseph Morehouse, an Englishman employed at the Atma mills, for a number of years past, died on Monday morning, at the Atma mills boarding house.

—The street lamps along California street are in a very bad condition. The boys seem to have great fun throwing stones at them, and breaking the glass. It is well for them the police had not laid hands on them, as they would have been more fun. Look out, young fellows, you are known and watched.

—The Nonantum Worsted Company have made a very liberal offer to their workmen. It is to give them one year's subscription to any daily protection paper. This offer means six dollars a year for each one who applies for a paper. Mr. Hall, the treasurer, wishes to have his help read both sides of the tariff question, and he is willing to supply one side, if they get the other themselves.

School Committee.

The regular meeting of the school committee, which was to be held on Nov. 28th, owing to Thanksgiving Day being appointed on Nov. 29th, was held Wednesday evening in the school committee room, high school building. Chairman Barton presiding. The following members were present: Messrs. Barnard, Barr, Hart, Converse, Parker, Philbrick, Putney, Hornbroke, Stone, Mayor Kimball and Mrs. Davis.

Miss George L. Norton was appointed as teacher of drawing in the Jackson evening school at a salary of $2 per week.

Miss Edie M. Herick asked for leave of absence to February 3rd, with balance of salary, which was granted.

THE SUPERINTENDENT'S REPORT.

The superintendent read his annual report and stated that the percentage of attendance was greater than for many years. He called especial attention to the cost of books, which only amounted to the small sum of 57 cents per pupil.

CONVEYANCE OF PUPILS.

The special committee appointed to consider the matter of conveyance of pupils reported that they were unable to recommend granting the petition referred to them relative to the subject and suggested the establishment of an English high school in some accessible location on the southern side of the city.

The board voted to suspend the schools Wednesday, at noon, Nov. 28.

An order was adopted appropriating $300 for the purchase of reference books.

The Newton High School Chorus and High School Lyceum are granted the free use of a room in the high school building.

A Respectful Request.

The various churches in Newton contribute in the course of the year to various charities, but inasmuch as the Hospital is doing such a noble work the offering of $1500 from 15 or 20 churches last year seems hardly creditable. Supposing that there were 5000 persons out last Hospital Sunday this would be an average of 30 cents each. Certainly nearly every family could give a dollar, and ought to give five, ten or a hundred. It would not require much effort for the Newton churches to give the Hospital $4000 next Sunday.

—The Toronto, Ont., World is responsible for this: A Bostonian man who was out in Dakota this fall, attended a country fair of the regular Dakota kind, at Plunkton. The exhibition consisted of a bull and a pumpkin. The bull got loose and ate up the pumpkin and the fair ended right there.

Important Notice to all

Owners of Carriages.

J. R. NASON,

The well-known carriage painter of West Newton, calls special attention of all owners of carriages to his great reduction in prices for painting and jobbing of carriages. His prices are now lower than any one in the State can justify claim to do good honest work. Owing to the general depression in business he has made such liberal reductions in prices that every owner of a carriage can afford to have it painted and repaired, while the low prices will no way detract from the superiority of stock and workmanship, as he warrants all work to customers' approval or no charge.

Carriages sent for and returned Free. Thanking his many friends and customers for their liberal patronage in the past, he here invites all to call or send for estimates, at his great reduction in prices, that defy competition.

vice was held as usual. The choir sang

BOTH BRANCHES OF THE CITY COUNCIL AGREE, AFTER A MIDNIGHT SESSION.

Both branches of the city government met Monday evening to finish up the appropriations, and after a session which lasted until 1.30 Tuesday morning, agreed in regard to all the items and the bill was passed.

In the board of aldermen all the members were present, and the first half hour was spent in reading the minutes of the past several meetings.

Street lamps were asked for on the corner of Arlington and Marlboro streets, five for Grant avenue, (Ward 5, two for Watertown street and Elm avenue, and one opposite the residence of Mrs. Seth Davis, Watertown street. Referred to lamp committee.

Residents of Sewall street, Ward 3, asked to have the street accepted as a public highway; referred to the highway committee.

James Linnehan gave notice of intention to build a house 30 by 26 on Sumner street, Ward 6.

Alfred Fitzpatrick asked for license to build a one story building 70 by 80, adjoining the old Laundry building on Crafts street, for planning mill, also a dry house 20 by 30, two stories, and a boiler and engine house of brick. 18 by 20, together with sheds, etc., the roof to be covered with tar and gravel; he also asked for license to put in a boiler and engine. A hearing was granted on the building petition for Tuesday evening, Dec. 4th, and one on the boiler for Dec. 10th.

The overseers of the poor handed in their quarterly report.

Andrew Peters of West Newton gave notice that he had taken an appeal to the superior court from the decision of the city council that he was entitled to no damages for the taking of his land for the improvements on Cheesecake brook, for his deprivation of the use of the brook and the injury of his estate. The case was now pending and his counsel, Hon. Chas. Robinson, and the city solicitor, had agreed that he might petition the city council to have the case reconsidered and an end put to litigation; referred to claims committee.

MR. ROSS'S PLANNING MILL.

The petition of Henry F. Ross for license to erect a carpenter shop and planning on Crafts street then came up, and Mr. Goodrich opened the hearing by protesting against such a dangerous building in that locality, so near the electric light station. He appeared in behalf of the prospective owners of that station, which was at present a fire trap, and the Gas company intended to put up a brick fire-proof station, and should not be surrounded by such fire traps as planning mills always are. The buildings would endanger each other, and the city council ought to have them conform to the ordinance and be made fire proof, at least. Another petition was also on the floor for the council for another lot of buildings in the same locality. In case of a fire all the buildings would be likely to go and the lighting of the city would be interrupted, making it rather serious for the city. The owners of the electric light station were rather sensitive on the subject of fire, and asked the city for protection. It would be much better for Mr. Ross, also, to have a fire-proof building, as then he would not be in danger from the station.

Mr. Ross said that the Gas company were very tender of his welfare, and that they owned that they had a fire trap there, but his building would be nearly 70 feet from them and he was willing to take the risk. Mr. Goodrich has the interests of the Gas company very much at heart and he was paid for it. Such a factory as he contemplated was needed here, as every building would stand alone and the one he owned in Worcester, and last year he asked permission to build one but was refused. He then bought land in a locality where there could be no objection and thought he ought to be granted a license.

After a good deal of discussion and cross questioning the Chief of Fire department was called on and testified that planning mills were extra hazardous, and that more hydrants and another signal box would have to be placed in that locality if the petition was granted.

Mr. Ross said it would cost 33 1-3 per cent more to make the buildings fire proof, and he could not afford to build them if that was insisted on.

The hearing was then closed and the petition was granted.

DAMAGES WANTED.

Thomas O'Sullivan asked for damages received by a fall on an icy sidewalk in front of J. F. C. Hyde's premises, Feb. 3, 1883, by which he received such severe injuries that he was unable to work for a long time. He desired payment for loss of wages, for the expense of his illness and for the pain he had suffered.

U. S. JURORS.

Jurors were drawn for the U. S. Circuit court to meet in Boston and for the grand jurors the names of Julius Blodgett and L. P. Everett were chosen, and for petit jurors W. C. Bates, O. B. Leavitt and Geo. Mann.

THE APPROPRIATIONS.

The appropriation bill was then taken up and discussed exhaustively and exhaustively.

The estimated receipts were formally adopted.

Alderman Nickerson moved that the appropriation for the board of health be $4,500, instead of $4,000, as recommended by the finance committee.

Alderman French said that the $4,000 was adopted on the recommendation of a number of the board of health, who was also a member of the lower branch. He had said that that sum was sufficient.

Agent French was called on and stated that the cost of collecting oil would be increased from $1,200 to $2,000 another year, the cost of fumigation if we had any contagious disease, such as small pox, at least $500, and incidentals and probable expenses would bring the amount up to over $4,000, and the board thought the amount should be $4,500.

The recommendations of the finance committee were finally adopted.

Five hundred dollars was adopted for clerical assistance in city auditors' office. The amount for fire alarm maintenance was made $1,200 instead of $1,000, as Alderman Childs stated that one item would amount to $900.

There was a long discussion over the appropriation for highway widening, reconstruction and improvement. Alderman Ward wanted $1,000 for Grafton street, and $600 for widening Waverly avenue, and finally the latter item was agreed to by both branches. Other items adopted were $2,400 for Church and Richardson streets, $2,500 for Washington street, Lower Falls, $3,000 for Boylston street, $4,000 for Washington street, $2,000 for California street, $500 for Durant street, and $500 for Brighton street, Franklin street and Parker street being struck out, making a total of $15,500, the committee having recommended $16,100, and $22,900 being asked for by the highway committee.

There was some discussion over the Cottage Hospital appropriation, whether it should be charged to the Overseers of the Poor, or directly to the hospital, but the latter course was taken, but the words, under the direction of the Overseers of the Poor, added, so that the money expended for four patients belonging in other towns may be collected of those towns.

The salary of the assessors caused a good deal of discussion. They are increased from $750 to $900, and Alderman Ward advocated increasing the salary to $1,000 each, and making the appropriation $3,000, instead of $2,700.

Alderman Childs moved to amend that the $2,700 stand, and that the $300 for clerical assistance read, for salary of clerk of board, who may be one of the assessors.

Alderman Ward thought it had better be $3,000, and let the assessors divide it as they see fit.

Alderman Childs said that Mr. Hagar wished to retire at the end of the year, and as the assessors could appoint one of their number, clerk, that would make his salary $1,200, and the increase was sufficient. The amendment of Alderman Childs finally passed.

A police signal appropriation of $6,500 passed, after being explained by Marshal Richardson.

The amount for general repairs on highways was made $60,000, instead of $62,000.

Alderman Ward moved that $3,000 be appropriated for the sewerage committee, and it passed the board, but was rejected by the Common Council, and the board receded. The Orange system described in the GRAPHIC two weeks ago, came up in the discussion, and was spoken of as the best one for Newton.

On motion of Alderman French, $1,500 was appropriated for the drainage of Sargent street and Waverly avenue, and the necessity of the work was spoken of. The appropriation passed both branches.

Alderman Nickerson thought it would be better to borrow $20,000 as the high water committed, recommended, and fix up all the drainage that was needed.

The motion of Alderman French was passed after some discussion.

Alderman French was asked what the rate would be for next year and said that if the finance committee's estimate was not increased, the rate of taxation would be the same as this year.

Alderman Petree moved that $2,200 be appropriated for the drainage of Lincoln, Bowdoin and Erie streets, which needed it as much as any place in Ward 7, but his motion failed to pass.

After the appropriation had been sent back and forth until 1.30 a. m., both branches agreed to the estimate and the total amount was reduced to $587,624, the finance committee having recommended $588,274.

GRADE CROSSINGS.

An order was passed authorizing the mayor, city solicitor, and city engineer to appear before the railroad commissioners, and represent the interests of the city, and also express the united opinion of the city council at no portion of the cost should be assessed upon the city.

The rate of interest upon unpaid taxes was fixed at 6 per cent per annum.

The Common Council

were unanimous against any increase in the appropriations and cut down the increase voted in the board of aldermen, each time that one was made. They succeeded in their last consideration of the appropriations in reducing them below the finance committee's estimate, and the aldermen thought it wise to come to an agreement before any further reductions were made.

The aldermen adjourned to next Tuesday evening, to receive the returns from the city election.

THE CHICAGO DELEGATES.

ENTERTAINED AT THE RESIDENCE OF MR. DAVID W. FARQUHAR.

One of the pleasantest reunions of the season was that which took place last Friday afternoon at the residence of Mr. David W. Farquhar, Pembroke street, when he and Mrs. Farquhar had as guests the Massachusetts Republican delegation to the recent national convention. Most of the delegates and alternates were accompanied by their ladies.

After introductions and reminiscences had been exchanged by the new friends and the old, the gentlemen were called together by Mr. Farquhar in his elegantly furnished library to listen to something he had to say in regard to the ever present spectre, "business." He was the secretary of the delegation, and he explained that it was in order to give an account of his stewardship that he called them together. He did so very briefly, and started all by showing that, after paying all the necessary expenses attending the trip from the funds, there still remained a surplus of $119.85.

Mr. Farquhar's account of his labors was received with favor, and a vote of thanks was again given to the genial secretary, as it had been before tendered upon the return trip from the convention.

After a delightful hot collation had been partaken of in the large dining hall, the gentlemen again adjourned to Mr. Farquhar's study, where short informal speeches and confidential chats were indulged in. Mr. Francis A. Hobart of Braintree expressed the pleasure which had been derived from the reunion and the many pleasant memories which the occasion had recalled. That the rest of the gentlemen agreed with this sentiment, there can be little doubt, for in response to the inquiry "What's the matter with Farquhar?" all present united in shouting "He's all right."

Mr. Winfield S. Slocum came in for a good compliment. He was introduced as a candidate for speaker of the house of representatives, and gentlemen all seemed to agree that he would make a good one and was deserving of this additional honor.

At the close of the exercises, entirely of an informal character, a group of the delegates and alternates was formed in the picturesque lawn fronting the house, and all were instantaneously photographed by J. W. Porter.

An interesting list of the gentlemen was a carefully kept list of how each delegate voted on the several ballots at Chicago. This list proves that there is no party in Massachusetts who voted for Benjamin Harrison first, last and all the time, and his name is J. Henry Gould.

Mr. Farquhar has also a book containing newspaper clippings concerning the proceedings of the Chicago convention and the photographs and autograph letters of many of the delegates and alternates. The Harrison banner of the Massachusetts delegation was placed in the drawing room and was an object of great interest to those present.

Letters of regret were received from the following gentlemen who were unable to be present: Messrs. C. A. Campbell, T. C. Bennett, William Cogswell, J. B. MacCabe, J. G. Mackintosh, George F. Hoar, James Morgan, L. D. Apsley, John W. Wheeler, W. A. Tower, Frank H. Wright and others. Hon. W. W. Crapo, who was among the visitors at the Chicago convention and who watched with interest the movement of the Massachusetts delegation, sent the following letter:

NEW BEDFORD, Nov. 20, 1883.

My Dear Mr. Farquhar: I very much regret that I shall be compelled to leave here on Thursday evening for an engagement in Detroit on Saturday. This renders it impossible for me to join in the reunion on Friday to which you have so kindly invited me.

The glorious success which has crowned the work which you and your co-delegates inaugurated at Chicago will make you gathering a happy one. My position at the convention, as an interested observer, with knowledge of the preferences and purposes of the delegates, enables me to say that there were no men in the convention more zealous for Republican welfare or more solicitous for a national party representing the party and commanding the approval of the men from Massachusetts.

The work at Chicago was well done. With many thanks to Mrs. Farquhar and yourself for your kind remembrance, I am truly yours,

D. W. FARQUHAR, WILLIAM W. CRAPO.

This Season's Garments.

We have heard of so many ladies who, after travelling all over Boston in search of a wrap, have come to the decision that Messrs. Springer Bros. can suit them better than anybody else, that we have concluded that this firm's assortment of fashionable cloaks must be decidedly superior in every way. And this is really the case; for, both in their own manufactures and in foreign makes, they have all the latest designs, styles and varieties, and in sizes to fit everybody. Their materials are varied, either in elegant or simple goods, and trimmings of every sort, braid, jet, fur, etc., are seen.

While their garments are among the handsomest and most stylish in the market, their prices are reasonable, and almost every visitor is sure to find a garment to suit her taste and her purse. Ladies will find an elegant display of seal skins and plushes, for which the winter weather will doubtless increase the demand. Messrs. Springer Bros. is just the place to visit to see all of the season's styles; and you'll find something you'll want, too. Call at their new store, 500 Washington street, corner Bedford, or at their headquarters, corner Essex, Chauncy and Harrison avenue.

Miss Parla's New Cook Book published by Estes & Lauriat comes in a cheap but attractive style. Its large pages give room for many rules spread before the reader at once and its recommendations of manufactured articles are of great help to many who are glad to profit by others' experiences. Many additions are made to the list of cold puddings and desserts, and much time is given to the different ways of cooking on serving garnishes, etc., are of great help to the young housekeeper. By studying it carefully one can gain much that will be useful in preparing "appetizing and healthful food at a reasonable outlay of money and skill."

A PLEA FOR FREE TRADE.

THE TARIFF QUESTION IS NOT YET SETTLED.

To the Editor of the GRAPHIC:

Now that the heat and excitement of the presidential election is over, and the question of who is to be our next president is probably settled, may I be allowed to say, as one who believes in Free Trade, rather than Tariff Reform, that that question is not settled, will not be settled till it is settled right, by the breaking down of that gigantic system of monopoly that, under guise of protection, adds to the burden of all, especially to the poor laboring man, while enriching the manufacturer.

Like Banquo's ghost, it will not down at bidding of any party, or any party leader. Bunker's Hill, the 15th Bull Run were disasters to our arms, but who despaired at their defeat?

To the result of this election, though, a disappointment to those of like faith with me, only compel them to a deeper devotion, to a sterner loyalty to the great cause of Free Trade or Tariff reform.

THIS IS AN INTRODUCTION.

Now, with your permission, I should like to consider some of the articles that have appeared in your paper during the past few weeks on this subject, especially those by Mr. Leeson.

In his first one, he tries to show that the Democratic party unjustly claim to be the party of tariff reform, that they have not done as much as the Republican party has the past twenty-two years in that direction. Undoubtedly that is true, but how could they, having only the House of Representatives, the Senate and President both being opposed to them.

I am no apologist for the Democratic party's blunders during the long time it has lived, but they, as a whole, have always been consistent in their opposition to the Protective System, so called, and the Republican party or succession of the old Whig party have been in favor of that system. This cannot be denied.

It can only be that Mr. Leeson by the misfortune of his being born in England was thus ignorant of this historical fact.

As to the fact that the Democrats have been in the nominal majority in the House of Representatives eleven years out of twenty-two has no bearing upon the question for party lines during the past twenty-two years have not been drawn upon this issue, and whatever changes have been made in our tariff laws have been made on recommendation of the president then in office, and every president has recommended just such a measure as the Mills Bill, and generally the changes made have been made, not in accordance with a settled policy, but rather in the spirit of demagoguery; "a free breakfast table" cry being the reason for giving up the tax on tea and coffee. This tax, too, was one that should not have been given up till the very last, for every cent that was received from it went into the Treasury of the United States, not the pockets of monopolists.

Then the Democratic party had, and still has, a large number of persons who, on the Tariff Question, have been opposed to the trade ideas of the party, who under the head of Samuel Randall, of Pennsylvania, are only true to one party. The party, if monopolists, who control that state, and compel the whole country to pay them tribute. They join hands with the Republicans in resisting every attempt to break the chains of the iron and coal masters of that Commonwealth, whose natural riches are a positive injury to our country. The bounty of Providence is denied us, to make these monopolists richer.

But what a beggarly contrast Mr. Leeson's figures show, a reduction in the Tariff tax of 75,000,000 against the Internal Revenue tax of 284,000,000—I do not give the odd figures.

Let us consider, in passing, what the reduction in the Internal tax meant to the poor man, to the man with small salary, to the professional man, each of them with a small family growing up. It meant giving up tax on incomes! It meant giving up tax on silver plate! It meant giving up tax on legacies! It meant giving up tax on bank checks! It meant giving up tax on horses and carriages! It meant giving up tax on receipts! Of course there were other items, but these were the most important, and how hardly they ground down the great bulk of the community! What a hardship to the day laborer or mechanic, the tax on incomes over a thousand dollars, or on silver plate, or bank checks, or horses! The tea and coffee for his breakfast were free too, but his sugar and salt were not.

The lumber for his house, iron and coal were still taxed, his blankets and clothing were still taxed as of old, but he had no bank check tax, no income tax.

So much for this reduction for which our friend, Mr. Leeson, claims credit for the Republican party.

Passing next to the Mills Bill and the Senate Bill, he shows how much better the Senate Bill is, and quotes the N. Y. Sun in its favor. But does not the large addition to the free list of the Mills Bill simplify matters very much, wipe out very many matters that, to-day, are subjects of fraud upon the custom revenue? And possibly, it might have been good statesmanship to have considered and improved the Mills Bill, rather than not consider it at all.

As to what the N. Y. Sun thought of an administration measure is away from the question. It has never been an organ of the Democratic party, and has hardly spoken a word in approval of President Cleveland since he came to the White House, and opposed him in 1884. Certainly, it has never spoken in approval of the wisest, the best measures of his administration, and no president ever did a braver thing, certainly not since Lincoln, than the sending to Congress of his message of last December.

As to the distinction between an ad valorem, or specific tax, it is a matter of slight importance to any one but the importer, the consumer fixes the same under both taxes, and I doubt whether the high protectionist cares which method is adopted.

Mr. Leeson tries to make the ad valorem tax more obvious by quoting Mr. Hayne, of South Carolina, in its favor in 1832, and then, unfairly, says that under the law of 1846, the tariff tax I mean, in which this system was adopted, in eleven years the national debt increased nearly one hundred per cent.

I have said unfairly, because Mr. Leeson makes no allusion to the causes of such an increase. He implies that the low tariff was responsible for this, when the fact is, that the expenses of the government were increased enormously. The debt was caused by the Mexican war. Here, again, the English birth of Mr. Leeson possibly made him ignorant of our history. It was that, rather than an unfair statement, intentionally made.

As to the effect of the Mills Bill, if passed, we can only conjecture, and the guess of one man is as good as another. What reason is there for supposing that the opinion of President Adams, in 1828, or Jackson, in 1829, are of any special value on this subject to-day, in 1888. More than that, what did General Jackson know about the tariff, or of finance? Did his early training give him such exceptional advantages, that we, to-day, must govern ourselves by his messages, issued sixty years ago.

It can be said of his views, as of those of Adams, Clay, Webster, Madison, all of the earlier statesmen, in fact, "New occasions teach new duties."

They would be the last ones to urge us to continue to follow in their footsteps, and the infant industries which they wished to foster, they would now hardly recognize, in the gigantic tyran, who, with 300 millions of money in his private coffers, and a surplus revenue of 100 millions more, clamoring for protection!

Protection! protection! not as an infant now, but for the American home, so that it may not be reduced to the condition of the pauper laborer, of the old world. God save the mark!

He next gives us the preamble to the first tariff bill of 1789, and shows its applicability to-day. Why applicable to-day, any more than the clauses of the constitution applicable to slavery acts of Congress, in regard to the national road or other questions of historical interest. The condition of England, too, shows that tariff reform would be bad for the United States.

No one will dispute that under the protective tariff of 1789, 1816, '24, '28, '32, '42, '46, '61, the country has prospered, that it has shown a continuous gain.

I should like to ask Mr. Leeson how it could help growing and prospering, and under tariff laws too, for we have had no other laws. The world has but just begun to realize that we are all dependent one upon another, and not as was the feeling among the Romans, that all outside of their narrow limits were barbarians.

The fact that we have grown rich, that we have multiplied our comforts, that we have multiplied our conveniences, that our domain is no proof that the protective system is the cause of this increase, it is a post hoc propter hoc argument, that is no argument at all. My denial is of as much weight as his or any assertion. He leaves out of the question our wonderful extent of territory, our diversity of soil and climate, and greater and better than all our "Free Trade" from the Atlantic to the Pacific, from the lakes to the gulf.

I say that our growth would have been better, healthier, more desirable, freer from care, freer from class feeling, envy and heart burn the past twenty years if we had no tariff, than it has been.

How could such a country help growing? growing too in spite of man's stupid blunders, and ignorance.

Mr. Leeson then draws his arguments against the value of the Protective System from statistics of the English commerce, Mulhall, which show of course everything in our favor, both in manufactures, agricultural products, industries, wealth, national debt, ratio of debt to each inhabitant, taxation failures, dividends in bankruptcy, and lastly ratio of pauperism to population. How could it be otherwise? How could we help leading in so many ways our mother country, with the abuses of centuries to be righted, with an overgrown population with her limited area, and her imprudent skims.

We are all thankful for our old home; some of us are proud to have the same language that Shakespeare wrote, that the common law of England is our common law, and would be glad if our tariff policy could be framed in accordance with the laws, even so far as to say that the fetters which she threw away when she repealed the corn laws freed her commerce and trade; America, the United States, had better throw away too, and not ally herself with the protective systems of Spain, Russia and Turkey.

Mr. Leeson's figures point to a reduction in the Tariff tax of 75,000,000 against the Internal Revenue tax of 284,000,000—I do not give the odd figures.

Let us consider, in passing, what the reduction in the Internal tax meant to the poor man, to the man with small salary, to the professional man, each of them with a small family growing up. It meant giving up tax on incomes! It meant giving up tax on silver plate! It meant giving up tax on legacies! It meant giving up tax on bank checks! It meant giving up tax on horses and carriages! MR. BURR NOMINATED.

A Harmonious and Unanimous Republican Convention.

The Wishes of the Various Conferences Carried Out.

The Republican city convention met at City Hall, Saturday evening. Chairman Coffin of the ward and city committee called the convention to order. Hon. Levi C. Wade was chosen chairman and Mr. C. B. Coffin secretary.

Dr. Dean and Messrs. Rand and Sheldon were appointed a committee on credentials. They reported 33 delegates present; Frank Edmunds of Ward Six was absent and Mr. S. A. Pierce was appointed to fill the vacancy. From Ward Seven Messrs. Thompson and Howland were absent and their places were filled by Messrs. S. L. Powers, and Harvey Wood of West Newton.

BALLOT FOR MAYOR.

Dr. Dean moved that an informal ballot be taken for mayor, and Messrs. Ross, Mason and Powers were appointed tellers. The vote stood as follows: Necessary for choice, 18; Heman M. Burr, 24; George Pettee, 11.

Mr. Sheldon moved to declare the vote a formal one and to make it unanimous.

Mr. Henry F. Ross moved that a recess be taken for ten minutes. The motion failed to pass, Mr. Ross alone voting for it.

The vote was then declared a formal one and Mr. Burr's nomination was made unanimous.

NOMINEES FOR ALDERMEN.

Nominations for aldermen from the several wards were then called for, and Mr. Rand moved that the wards be called in order, and the chairmen from the different wards report the recommendations of their caucus.

From Ward One Mr. L. E. Coffin presented the name of Edwin O. Childs, the present alderman, and he was nominated, with two dissenting votes from the Ward Three delegates.

From Ward Two, Mr. W. F. Slocum presented the name of N. F. Chadwick, the present incumbent, and his re-nomination was made unanimous.

From Ward Three Mr. Sheldon presented the name of Mr. Adams K. Tolman, and he was chosen with a hearty cry from all the delegates.

Mr. C. C. Burr renominated Frederic Johnson from Ward Four, and he was unanimously chosen.

From Ward Five Dr. Dean renominated Mr. George Pettee, and he was chosen with no dissenting votes.

From Ward Six Mr. A. L. Rand presented the name of Mr. W. F. Harbison, the present incumbent, and he was nominated, and his nomination was made unanimous.

From Ward Seven, Mr. J. B. Goodrich presented the name of J. C. Kennedy, stating that he was chosen by the caucus by a vote of 17 to 2, and he was chosen with a few dissenting votes.

SCHOOL COMMITTEE.

Nominations for members of the school board were called for and Dr. Scates presented the names of J. Edward Hollis and Dr. Bradford K. Pierce, stating that both Mr. Converse and Mr. Stone had declined to serve again.

They were nominated with one dissenting vote. Mr. Moses G. Crane stated that he did not want to vote against only one of them, and moved that the vote be reconsidered, but the motion failed to receive more than one or two votes.

From Ward Two, Mr. Slocum presented the recommendation of the Woman Suffrage League in favor of Mrs. Mary R. Martin, and she was nominated unanimously.

Mr. Slocum then presented the name of Mr. John W. Dickinson, the present incumbent, and he was chosen, but not unanimously.

The convention then adjourned after one of the most harmonious sessions ever held by a Republican city convention in Newton.

Fasching in Venice.

The Fasching in Venice and the Jahrmarkt which are to be given in Mechanic's Hall, Dec. 6, 7 and 8, for the benefit of the Women's Educational and Industrial Union, promise to be the most novel and interesting events. Over 300 young people will take part in the fasching.

The opening scene, preparing for the festival, is in pantomime. A Venetian lady and her friend are listeners to a masked band of seranaders who have come to the door of the mansion. Next comes the festival scene, as shown by a Venetian exterior with gondolas and throngs of merry masqueraders and chorusing singing by 200 mixed voices. At a signal from the Court Jester the people unmask and a number join in the Pierot fasching dance, which is especially interesting in character; the dainty shepherdess coterie dance, with costumes of the time of Frederick the Great; the Grecian dance, with costumes especially brilliant; the Venetian gondolier dance, merry with the mandolins of the gay gondoliers and the canoes of their partners, in the fair gondoliers, the Boston lawn tennis dance, in which Miss Edith Seavill will appear; closing with the fire fantasia, a wondrous beautiful representation of fire and smoke as expressed in dress. The Saturday matinee will introduce the celebrated flower and bee dance, which is performed by young girls; the baby dance, which will be given by small boys in long clothes. The Jahrmarkt transforms the spacious entrance hall into a lively representation of the German annual fair.

At the booths and tables will be found enough to gratify the most luxurious or the simplest taste, from the costly fabrics of the East to the tiniest rag baby which helps to swell the population of the rag baby table, for there will be the Scandinavian, French, German, Spanish, Icelandic, American, Oriental, Swiss and Japanese booths, together with many others. The decorations will be very elaborate and there will be excellent music. Tickets will be on sale to-morrow.

MR. BURR FOR MAYOR.

Newton is to join the large procession of cities which have young men for mayors. It is the popular thing now to find a young man of ability and character, with some experience in city matters, and nominate him for mayor. Cambridge set the example with Mr. Russell, a classmate of Mr. Burr's at Harvard, and the general testimony is that he made the best mayor Cambridge ever had. Quincy, Woburn, Chelsea, Newton and other cities are this year following the example of Cambridge, and their next mayors will be young men.

In Newton Mr. Burr has proven such an acceptable candidate that the only thing found to urge against him is his youth. It is conceded that in character, in ability, in his knowledge of Newton, he is in every way qualified, while as a presiding officer of the common council, as a member of the finance committee, of the school board or of the board of health, he has shown marked ability and fitness, which promise well for the performance of the higher duties to which he will be called.

As far as his youth is concerned, we do not think a man in his 33rd year is altogether too young for the serious duties of life. Mayor Pulsifer was only a very few years older, and every one concedes the excellence of his administration of Newton's affairs. We might go farther away, if necessary, and point out that Thomas Jefferson was barely 33 when he wrote the declaration of independence; Daniel Webster was 30 when first elected to Congress; Henry Clay was first elected to the National Senate when only 29; John Jay was a member of the Continental Congress at 20, and president of that body at 32; Alexander Hamilton was a member of Congress at 25, and secretary of the treasury at 30; while in more recent times the younger members of Congress and of the Senate, or of our state legislature, have been the ablest and most progressive and influential members.

Indeed, if a man is not fitted for the serious duties of life at 30 years it is doubtful if he ever will be. It is said that young men are not conservative, that they are inclined to extravagant expenditures and hasty action, but those who have followed the course of the city council this year have found that the lower branch, composed almost exclusively of young men, has been much more conservative, and economical, and it is due to them that the appropriations for next year have been kept within the limits set by the finance committee, while the older men in the board of aldermen worked hard to exceed them. This is a practical example of the advantage of having such young men as Mr. Burr in the city government.

If Newton is to have the advantage of young men of promise in the city government, it must take them before they become so engaged in their private business that they have no time for outside duties. Ten years from now the city could no more secure the services of such men as Messrs. Burr, Bond, Hale, Hunt, Hamblen, or the other young men now in the city government, than it now could induce Mr. John S. Farlow, Mr. J. C. Potter, or Mr. Isaac T. Burr, to accept a nomination for mayor. Young men have their reputation to make, and they are willing to work much harder than older men, because they have more time, more enthusiasm, and more faith in the good results of their labors. Newton is certainly fortunate in the class of young men it is gathering into its city government, and as Aldermen Pettie and Johnson and Chadwick are to remain, there will be no lack of valuable and experienced advisers to give wise counsel to the young members.

LAST YEAR'S VOTE.

Last year's vote for mayor will furnish an interesting subject for study, and it is given below:

Wards	1	2	3	4	5	6	7	Total
Wood	153	84	206	165	124	197	147	1076
Kimball	135	394	217	151	208	113	139	1067

From this it will be seen that Mayor Kimball's majority over Mr. Wood was 293, and that a change in 147 votes would have carried the city for Mr. Wood. The action of the famous non-partisan convention in regard to the High School lost Mr. Wood more than that number of votes, and his chances were further weakened by his not having been the first choice of the convention. Had it not been for these two things Mr. Wood would in all probability have been elected Mayor.

This year there are no such drawbacks against Mr. Burr. The convention that nominated him was harmonious, he receiving the votes of all the delegates except eleven on the informal ballot. His nomination was made unanimous, Mr. Pettie's friends showed no disposition to bolt, or to do anything else than to support the nominee heartily.

In regard to the school board candidates, the convention accepted those endorsed by the ward caucuses as there was no chance offered them to go behind the returns, and they did the same with the candidates presented for aldermen. People who are dissatisfied with any of these have only themselves to blame, for not going to the caucuses and trying to bring about a different result.

Taken as a whole the ticket nominated by the convention is an excellent one, and will poll a large vote. The new men placed in nomination are of such a character as any city might be proud to have represent it. Where, for instance, could be found a better candidate for alderman than Mr. Adams K. Tolman of Ward Three, or Mr. W. F. Harbach of Ward Six. They are the equals of any men who have sat upon the board. For the school board also, Mr. J. E. Hollis and Dr. B. K. Pierce are admirably fitted for the discharge of their duties. They are liberal minded, honest and independent men, who are accustomed to think for themselves on all questions. Mrs. Martin of Ward Two is also an excellent choice, and those who know her are confident that she will prove such a useful member as to show the wisdom of having women upon the school board.

THE CITIZEN'S CONVENTION.

Citizens who objected because the work at some of the Republican ward caucuses seemed all out and dried, were much impressed at the smoothness with which the Citizen's convention transacted business. Evidently the managers do not believe in trusting anything to chance, and like good generals they had laid out their work in advance.

The quarrel that had existed between certain members of the party during the past year, in regard to the alderman from Ward One, and which has produced more or less interesting letters in the papers, had evidently been healed, and a fraternal feeling once more existed. Life is not long enough for quarrels between friends, and it is much wiser to do away with all unkindly feelings, especially just before election. The citizens showed their appreciation of the good work done at the Ward One caucuses by endorsing all their candidates but Mr. Forknall, for whom Mr. Briston was substituted.

In Ward Two all the Republican candidates were endorsed but Mr. Dickinson, for whom Rev. R. A. White was substituted. The city is very fortunate this year in the new candidates for members of the school board.

In Ward Three, Councilman Hunt was nominated for Alderman, and the Republican candidates for the council, Messrs. Bond and Luke, were endorsed.

In Ward Four all the Republican candidates were endorsed save Councilman Moody. Mr. R. L. Bridgman being substituted. This would deprive Lower Falls of any representative in the city council, and as it is clearly entitled to one at least, Mr. Moody ought to be re-elected. It is hardly fair to attempt to deprive that village of any representation. Mr. Bridgman afterwards declined to serve, and Mr. Moody was nominated in his place, and will be chosen without opposition.

In Ward Five all the Republican candidates were endorsed, and in Ward Six the Republican candidate for alderman was nominated, but a new ticket for councilmen, Messrs. George F. Richardson and A. H. Roffe, were selected.

In Ward Seven all the candidates save Mr. Hall for councilman were endorsed, and an excellent selection made in Mr. U. C. Crosby, who is an old resident, a tax-payer, and a representative of the best citizens of the ward. He would have influence in the city council, if elected, as he probably will be.

It is the citizen's convention this year which nominates a candidate for Mayor who will not accept. They endorsed so much of the Republican ticket that they might as well have made it unanimous, and endorsed Mr. Burr, who is certain of an election.

THE SCHOOL BOARD.

The new members of the school board to be elected next Tuesday will have an important influence upon the schools of the city.

There is great unanimity in regard to three of the candidates, Dr. B. K. Pierce, Mr. J. Edward Hollis, and Mrs. Mary R. Martin. The only contest will be between Mr. John W. Dickinson and Rev. R. A. White. There is a strong opposition to Mr. Dickinson from many people, and in a communication in another column the position is taken that it is inconsistent for a member of the State board of education to be at the same time a member of a local school board. As secretary of the state board of education for instance, Mr. Dickinson might find himself in conflict with the Newton member of the school board referred to by Miss Hapgood, and in his position as a State official he would have to censure his own act as a local school official. In fact how can he take an impartial view of any act, of the Newton school board, when he himself is one of the board and more or less responsible for its acts? It is clear that one person ought not to hold two positions that might create such Mikado-like embarrassment.

Apart from any other reason, this would furnish a good excuse for voting to relieve Mr. Dickinson from an embarrassing position, and leaving him free to give advice or criticism without prejudice from his own acts in another capacity. It is fortunate that a candidate who is admirably qualified every way has been found to serve in his stead, and it would be for the advantage of the board to have a change. New blood makes a body more healthy, and new blood in a school committee is an excellent thing to have. The unlimited and despotic power possessed by a school board, and the long terms of its members, is a strong argument against the continued reelection of its members, unless no suitable successors can be found. In this case such is not the case, and Rev. Mr. White ought to receive a majority of the votes cast.

THE HOSPITAL AND THE WEATHER.

THE HOSPITAL AND THE WEATHER.

Last Sunday's storm played havoc with the collection for the Cottage Hospital. In some of the churches the contribution was not taken, and in others it was probably smaller than it would have been if the weather had been fair. If all who were not at church but are interested in the Hospital will see that their contribution is made in some way, the collection of this year may be the largest ever taken.

The Boston correspondent of the Hingham Journal has some interesting gossip about the speakership. Mr. W. S. Slooom of this city is spoken of as an able statesman, but his defeat is predicted because he is opposed by the Boston & Albany railroad corporation, which is a powerful factor in the speakership contest. The correspondent does not say how many representatives this railroad sends to the legislature, nor why it should have a voice in the election of a speaker. It would seem that if their opposition is known, that fact ought to help Mr. Slooom, unless the Boston & Albany railroad has a controlling influence. He is the ablest candidate yet mentioned and made many warm friends last year. The correspondent thinks Mr. Barrett of the Advertiser is an unfit man to sit in the Speaker's chair, and that he is also personally unpopular. Otis Wardwell of Haverhill is the candidate whom the correspondent favors, chiefly, it appears, because he has been a newspaper man.

Mr. O. D. Homer has refused to run as councilman for Ward Three, and the emphatic expression over the action of the Republican caucus resulted in the placing of Councilman Bond on the ticket. This has settled all the trouble that existed and the ward will have excellent representatives in Messrs. Bond and Luke. Ward Three is fortunate in securing such men and it will have a strong influence in next year's council. For aldermen the Republican candidate is Mr. Adams K. Tolman, one of the best men that could be nominated for such a position, and the Citizens have nominated Councilman Hunt, who has made an excellent record in the lower branch, and the contest will be a close and interesting one.

The Citizen's Committee meet this (Friday) evening, to discuss a nominee for Mayor, Mayor Kimball's absolute declination leaves them at sea, and there is some talk of endorsing the nomination of Mr. Burr, which is favored by many of the committee. Others are strenuous in urging a candidate of some kind, and the whole matter is rather complicated. There is of course no hope now of electing their candidate.

ALDERMAN PETTIE was asked to accept the Citizen's nomination for mayor, but refused, as he had already accepted the Republican nomination for alderman, and had been a candidate for mayor before the Republican convention. Alderman Pettie evidently has a high sense of honesty and does not share the opinion of many politicians that all things are fair in politics.

The estimates for the school expenses of the city of Springfield are $104,025, while for the schools of Newton the estimates are $117,215. Springfield has double the population of Newton and the schools of Springfield have a very high reputation. It might be well to send an investigating committee to find out how they manage to keep down their expenses.

The statutes of Missouri contain a provision which might well be copied elsewhere, under which a man is disqualified from holding an office which involves the levying of taxes on other people's property unless he pays taxes on property himself.

MR. BURR'S letter accepting the nomination for mayor of Newton is plain, straightforward and business like, and that is just what his administration of city affairs will be.

Death of Mr. George Daniels.

Mr. George Daniels died at his residence, Washington street, Tuesday morning. Death resulted from a cancer, and the deceased had been a great sufferer. Mr. Daniels was born in Keene, N. H., in 1802, and had resided in Newton since 1838. When he first came to the section of Newton where he lived for so many years, only 150 houses had been built, and the development of the town and city from that time was always a favorite topic with the deceased, who had seen many changes during the past 50 years. In the early days of the town government, he took an active interest in the questions which came up before the town meetings for consideration, and advocated, with the late Seth Davis, the separation of the township. He was a successful farmer and accumulated considerable property, although he met with some reverses in his later years. Personally he was a man of strong convictions, and did not hesitate to express his views upon all subjects in which he was interested. He possessed a kindly heart, and was conscientious and honest in all his business dealings. He was a member of the town fire department, and filled the position of captain of the Nonantum Hand Engine company, afterward serving upon the board of engineers. He was formerly a lieutenant in the Boston Lancers, and a member of the Veteran Lancers' Association. A widow survives him. The funeral took place from the late residence of the deceased at noon today.

Rev. F. B. Hornbroke officiated and numerous relatives and friends were present, including members of the Veteran Lancers' Association, and former members of the Newton fire department. The remains were interred in the family burial place at Arlington.

The Hollings Patent Extension.

There is no sham about it; no fraud, and no deceit. It is just what it appears. When finished in BRASS it is formed throughout of that sterling metal, and is not a zinc or iron casting brass plated. Its WROUGHT-IRON is wrought, and not clumsily cast to deceive an inexperienced buyer. There is no masquerading about it. When finished in SILVER, the standard is formed of solid brass triple plated with the more precious metal; it is not made of iron or zinc tinned to resemble silver.

"An honest tale speeds best," and honest work wears longest. The brass on this lamp does not rub off after three month's use, nor does the silver corrode. Both are genuine, a fact which all intelligent buyers will be quick to appreciate. We keep a cheaper line of these goods in order to accommodate a certain class of trade, but we sell them for what they are, and do not represent them as sterling articles. We cannot be undersold by any dealer in goods of the same quality of material, workmanship and design. Inspection most cordially solicited.

NEWTONVILLE.

—Miss Mary Byers went to New York on Monday, for a visit.

—Mr. W. H. Mendell left Thursday evening for a trip to Montreal and Quebec.

—Rev. R. A. White will receive a handsome vote in ward 2. He would be a valuable member of the school board.

—The Newton Outing Club met in its rooms, Central block, Monday evening and the usual routine business was transacted.

—There was a large gathering of the members of the Newton Outing Club at the rooms in Central block, Thursday evening.

—Mr. W. H. Mendell arrived home Wednesday from Quebec. He says that the wind and storm, Monday, was the most severe in many years.

—Dr. Jennie S. Clapp lectured in the Universalist church parlors last Saturday afternoon. Subject: "Development—Evolution." The next lecture will be given Saturday, Dec. 1.

—A Union Thanksgiving service was held in the Methodist church and was quite largely attended. The sermon was preached by Rev. Fayette Nichols, pastor of the M. E. church, Newton.

—Mr. H. F. Ross will commence work upon his new planing mill at once, the right to erect the necessary buildings having been granted by the board of aldermen.

—The Fair in the Methodist vestry will open Tuesday evening, when there will be in great abundance, fancy and useful articles, home-made candies, jellies, preserves, etc. Come and find something suitable for Christmas presents.

—All of the Newtonville members of the city council are re-nominated by both parties, so that in the coming election the only excitement here will be over the male member of the school board from this ward.

—Mr. George Augustus Berry, formerly of this ward, and Miss Edie May Whitman of St. Louis, are to be married at the residence of the bride's parents, Wednesday, Dec. 5. Mr. Berry is now engaged in business in Kansas City.

—The illustrated lecture at the Universalist church, postponed on account of the storm, will be given next Sunday evening at 6.30 o'clock; subject, "Scenes from the Life of Christ." All interested are invited to be present.

—Mayor Kimball went to Westboro on Thursday to spend Thanksgiving with his parents and also to visit the school of the members of the Citizens' party, who are urging him to run.

—Among the choice paintings in the art loan was a beautiful one on porcelain, painted by Mrs. George W. Morse in Dresden, and presented to Mrs. J. Wesley Kimball while there. Mrs. Kimball also loaned some of her own dainty needlework.

—A reunion of the Page family was held at the residence of Capt. C. E. Davis, Washington street, Thanksgiving day, 20 being present. The father, mother and daughter, Mrs. C. E. Davis, 4 sons and the children, all participated in the pleasure of the occasion.

—Hon. W. S. Slocum was announced to speak on "The Adoption of the Constitution" at the regular meeting of the Guild, at Mrs. Charles F. West's, Newtonville avenue, last Thursday afternoon, but owing to the severity of the storm, a large number of the members were denied the pleasure of hearing him.

—The residents of Otis street are annoyed somewhat as a result of the heavy rains. The street has been pretty well flooded, the pipes leading from the catch basins having probably become clogged. The same trouble has been experienced before and the water in some localities sometimes rises almost up to the hubs of the wagons and carriages that are driven through the street.

—Mrs. W. F. Davenport gave her friends great pleasure by appearing among them last week, and met with most cordial reception. It is learned, with regret, that she is soon to leave her residence in California, where her parents live, and where much improvement in her daughter's health is hoped for. Newtonville loses an active helper in all good work, and society a charming woman.

—A very pleasant occasion Tuesday was the birthday party of Miss Curtis, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. F. E. Curtis, at the residence of her parents, Newtonville avenue, corner of Harvard street. There was quite a large attendance of young friends and the usual social features were enjoyed. Refreshments were served and Miss Curtis received congratulations from the numerous company present.

—Six young misses, the Sunday school class of Mrs. A. B. Tainter, held a sale of useful and fancy articles, candy, flowers, ice cream, etc., on Saturday last, at the residence of Mrs. Tainter. The net amount realized $38.41, which has been given to the Newton Cottage Hospital.

Thanks are also due Masters Williams and Bartlett, and the members of the Newton City Church, who so kindly contributed in various ways.

—A man named John Mead insisted upon being arrested and locked up last Saturday evening, claiming that he had trouble with his folks and that he desired lodgings and comfort at police headquarters. Officer Clay tried to persuade him to go home, but he refused to do so. He had been drinking, but was not apparently intoxicated. As he would not go home, he was locked up at station 3, and on Monday morning appeared in court and pleaded guilty to the charge of drunkenness. Not having the money to pay his fine, he was sent to the house of correction and appeared to be much pleased at the prospect of a short sojourn at East Cambridge.

—The Every Saturday Club will meet Saturday evening with Mr. and Mrs. E. W. Greene. John Westester (by request); February 16, The Congress of 1822; March 2, The Congress of 1861; March 16, Jefferson Davis and his Cabinet; March 30, The Abolitionists; April 13, Women of the White House; April 27, American Millionaires.

—Owing to press of news last week, Mr. Lemon's careful report of the Art Loan exhibition was condensed to notice of antiquities and curios chiefly, while the needlework, the daintily decorated china, and the paintings by famous artists, were necessarily passed with a word.

—Mr. A. H. Soden and Mr. Fayette Shaw were among the most generous contributors of paintings by foreign and American masters. Mr. McDonald's collection of Roman water colors was especially choice and our local artist, Mrs. Andrew Wellington sent a varied collection from her studio, while Miss Tewksbury's work was charming.

—Mr. W. F. Kimball loaned some interesting examples of his uncle's work, Mr. Story of New York. Mrs. G. Tilton loaned a fine picture of the "Marriage of Margaret of Valois and Henry IV of France." There were some choice specimens of Webster's work loaned by Mrs. H. F. Ross, Mrs. George T. Hill, Mrs. H. D. Wellington, and others.

—Mr. and Mrs. Seaverns spent Thanksgiving with their daughter, Mrs. Nathaniel T. Lane.

—Mr. and Mrs. Walter Whittlesey and family spent Thanksgiving with their parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Whittlesey.

—Miss Florence Merriam, in company with her grandmother, will leave December 6, with a Raymond party, for about a month's trip through Southern California.

—Mr. F. H. Hobart's saxophone solos at the concert given in the city hall, Tuesday evening, were greatly enjoyed by the audience, and Mr. Frye, the humorist, came in for a generous share of applause.

—Mr. A. K. Tolman has been induced to accept the Republican nomination for alderman from this ward. He is a gentlemanly, eminently qualified for official duties, and would undoubtedly be an able member of the board.

—The social in the Unitarian church parlors last Friday evening was well attended and much enjoyed. A stage entertainment was followed by dancing. Refreshments were served in the dining-room.

—Mr. Fred H. Hobart, instrumental soloist, gave a concert in City Hall, Tuesday evening. He was assisted by the Ladies' Schubert Quartet, the Spanish Students' quartet, Edward H. Frye, humorist, and Fred E. Hansell, whistler. There was a large attendance and the program was well received. The audience testified the appreciation of the audience.

—The Loyalty lodge of Good Templars, having furnished their new hall, will hold their first meeting there, Wednesday evening, Dec. 6. The members hereby extend their hearty thanks to the citizens of West Newton and elsewhere who have so liberally and cheerfully contributed to aid in furnishing their new hall. W. H. Rand, A. R. Coe, C. M. Kimball, committee.

—The remains of the late George Tuck, whose body was found in the Charles River at Newton Upper Falls a few weeks ago, were removed from the Newton cemetery and interred in the family burial place at Beverly, on Tuesday. The deceased, it appears, belonged to an excellent family and his brother in Chicago, learning of his sad death by a notice which appeared in the Boston Herald, was located in West Newton and made arrangements with Undertaker Cate for the interment of his brother's remains in the Beverly cemetery. The funeral of the deceased formerly resided in West Newton.

—The sixth annual ball of St. Bernard's Court, No. 44, M. C. O. F., was given in the City Hall, Wednesday evening. (Thanksgiving eve) and was largely attended, 100 couples participating in the grand march. Music was rendered by Boardman Band and the order included 25 numbers. The executive committee consisted of Michael Taffe, M. J. Duane and W. H. Maguire. The directors, J. H. Gawn, was assisted by the following aids: D. J. O'Donnell, M. F. Hargaden, F. C. Sheridan, D. C. Barry, J. W. Gawn, D. Neagle, J. F. McEneaney, J. C. Doherty, M. C. McCarthy, F. B. Bryson. The reception committee included F. T. Cox, J. R. Gallagher, D. Doyle, J. F. Dolan, J. Gahan, M. Neagle.

—The funeral of Mrs. Julia M. Pike took place from the late residence of the deceased, Winthrop street, Sunday afternoon. Rev. H. J. Patrick officiated, and made a loving reference to her beautiful character and Christian qualities, speaking of the sad termination of her bright, useful life, and appealing to the Divine Power for consolation in the sad hours of bereavement. The casket was placed in the bow window, in the midst of palms and other potted plants. Also the floral tributes was a beautiful wreath and a basket of Mernet roses, floral offerings from Mr. and Mrs. George Whitmore, Mrs. J. B. Whitmore, Miss Fannie Clifton and other friends. The remains were interred in the Newton cemetery.

—Mr. Nahum B. Outhank died very suddenly in Boston last Saturday. The deceased was sixty-five years of age and was a former resident of this city, at one time having lived at West Newton where he was much respected and esteemed. He removed from West Newton to Newton

Center and subsequently took up his residence in Boston. Mr. Outhank was an artist by profession and was a successful portrait painter, his pictures of prominent public men and society people having been remarkable for correctness of likeness and natural expression. He painted a portrait of the late Seth Davis in his 85th year, and also a portrait of the same gentleman when he had attained the rounded period of a century of life. Personally, the late Mr. Outhank was a man of genial manners and amiable characteristics. Mrs. Outhank had followed his profession for 50 years, and was widely known as a successful artist. He was born in Holliston. He leaves a widow and two daughters.

—The meeting of the Women's Educational Club held Friday last, was very fully attended and the history of the summer outings of its members pleasant and interesting. Before these papers were read, the president, Mrs. Philip of Newton Highlands, in our public schools was discussed and the matter referred to a committee to look up the statistics of the State to ascertain if they would permit it. Mrs. Gilman commenced with her outing in Vermont. Mrs. Moses D. Clark followed with her trip "Up the Saguenay." Miss Gilman gave the summer outing of the trip to the Saguenay. Mrs. Field her trip to Gettysburg and Miss Sarah Allen a most interesting description of the "Yellowstone National Park" which she visited last summer on a Raymond excursion. Mrs. Phillips of Newton Highlands preferred giving an "outing," which was a most amusing account of a day's entertainment of two children at her house, and their mutual enjoyment in entertaining one another. The meeting closed with a pleasing letter from the daughter of Mrs. M. M. Wadsworth, formerly of this place, containing a description of a trip in England.

—W. D. Harvey and family have gone to Saratoga.

—Miss Emily Hazen of Smith's College is at home.

—Miss Florence D. Hoffman is the guest of C. L. Stewart.

—George S. Stewart and Arthur Cooley are at home from Amherst.

—Miss Edith Farley and Mrs. Farley are spending some time in New York.

—Mr. Herbert E. Johnson has returned to his home in Walla Walla, Washington Territory.

—Rev. Mr. Strong spoke upon the home and woman subject at a meeting at the Congregational church, Thanksgiving day.

—A number of the young girls of this village have undertaken to perform a broom drill which thus far proves to be successful. They expect to drill in public at the Laseil Seminary Gymnasium, the 19th and 20th of December.

—On account of last Sunday's storm, there will be another offering for the Newton Cottage Hospital at the church of the Messiah, next Sunday. The members of the parish are invited to a church service this evening, at 7.30, to the first anniversary of the consecration of Grace church.

—Last week, for the first time in its history, the Congregational church held a "roll call." It was the annual meeting, and all members, male and female, were invited to be present. In addition to the usual business, and the choice of officers for the coming year, there were reports from the various organizations connected with the church. The Sunday school, which is a little older than the church, was reported by its superintendent. Though older, its membership does not equal that of the church, and it is felt that it ought to be larger. The church was organized in 1830, but had no settled pastor till 1836, nor a church building till the next year. The present pastor is Rev. Mr. Strong.

—The membership is about 300 but many are non-residents. The Ladies' Benevolent Society, organized in 1831, is the oldest ladies society, and was unable to report meetings regularly held up to the present time, and work and gifts to the value of $4,945.17. The Mothers' Association was formed in the spring of 1870, and it has met each month since then. Many whose names, as little children, were placed upon its lists for prayer, are parents now, and feel the helpful influence. In 1871 the Women's Association was organized, and by its interesting meetings, held monthly at the Missionary Home, quickens the zeal of all who attend for the work in foreign lands. The ladies are present to speak of their own experiences in telling the gospel story to those in the darkness of heathenism.

—A Children's Mission Circle was started, in 1872, which, under the name of Willing Hands, now works for children in heathen lands, basing patchwork for them to sew, making scrapbooks with attractive pictures to instruct the orphans, and also to sell, thus raising money to send them to school. One union society was reported—the Women's Christian Temperance Union Auxiliary, which, formed in 1878, has endeavored in various ways to work "for God, and Home, and native land." Last, but not least, was the Young People's Society of Christian Endeavor, which, organized in 1878, has raised the standard of the church to active membership, and draws large numbers from outside to its earnest meetings.

—The fellowship meeting followed the reports being to the lateness of the hour it was a short one. Before the meeting was closed, the roll was called. Many were absent, some on heathen ground, others in England, but faithfully working, but a large number responded "Here."

—The next meeting of the society will be on Wednesday evening next, Dec. 5, in Room 4, Elliot Block, up one flight. New members will be voted in, and others proposed. Any one can become a member by applying to any one already a member, and by paying the trifling annual fee of one dollar to the treasurer, Mr. H. J. Woods.

—A slight foretaste of the pleasure and instruction to be afforded by the next meeting was had in the exhibition of specimens at the November meeting by C. J. Maynard of Newtonville, who will tell of "Eight Months in the West Indies," recently spent by him. Mr. Maynard's enthusiastic love of nature and of birds especially, rank him with others of a class of observers and authors, such as John Burroughs, Torrey and others, whose minute observations of the ways and doings of birds make them a peculiarly charming class of writers. Mr. Maynard's paper will be abundantly and beautifully illustrated with specimens, and it is greatly to be hoped, and is expected, that the partial vacation of Thanksgiving week will enable many of our teachers, public and private, to rest and clear up their work, so that they, with many older pupils as well as members of the society and their friends will, altogether, make a full audience at the third meeting of this attractive and progressive winter of the society.

—An invitation has been received from the Boston School Regiment to select three squads to compete in the Mid Winter Drill to be held in Curtis Hall, Jamaica Plain, Jan. 25, 1889. 1st squad composed of Juniors; 2nd squad open to all 3rd squad for those who never took prizes. There have been 26 entries to date.

—A sword squad has been formed, composed of commissioned officers, and it drills immediately after the battalion. The foot ball team of '92 defeated the Allen school team last week Wednesday by a score of 12 to 0.

—The N. H. S. Chorus under the able baton of J. P. Cobb is rapidly improving. The quarterly reports are being issued.

NEWTON LOWER FALLS.

—Mr. A. D. Shields formerly a Baptist minister in this state, is acting as lay reader and assistant to the rector of St. Mary's. Mr. Shields is preparing for the ministry at the Episcopal Theological school in Cambridge.

—St. Mary's Guild will hold their annual Christmas sale at Boyden Hall, Wednesday, December 12. A variety of useful and fancy articles, suitable for gifts and the holidays will be offered. Refreshments will be served through the evening.

—Councillman E. E. Moody has been re-nominated by both parties. The Citizens' convention put up Mr. R. L. Bridgman of Auburndale, which looked like an effort to deprive Lower Falls of all representation. Mr. Bridgman declined to serve, and Mr. Moody was then nominated by the Citizens' committee, as he should have been in the first place.

—The proceeds from the entertainment given by the young people of the North Church last week, amounted to about $60.

—Next Sabbath evening at 7 o'clock, the pastor will deliver a lecture on "Jerusalem." The Amphion Quartette of Newton, will render a few selections. All are cordially invited.

—The collection which was to have been taken at the North Evangelical church last Sabbath for the benefit of the Newton Cottage Hospital, was postponed until next Sabbath.

—The Common Council have passed an order for the appropriation of $2000 for the improvement of California street. The residents of Newtonville will be very thankful indeed for this appropriation, small as it is.

—On Thanksgiving day a service was held in the No. Church vestry at 10 o'clock for the male members of the society. After the service the pastor invited those present to partake of coffee, which was served in the kitchen.

MR. DICKINSON AND REV. R. A. WHITE CONTRASTED.

Now that the city election is again upon us, the attention of all thinking people is particularly called to our public schools. No one questions the fact that they cost enough, while very many do question whether we get our money's worth. Many are asking themselves and those who are supposed to understand such matters, whether we have the best possible administration of affairs. It seems to me that there is too much sacrificed to system, and that some of our school committee think too much of their own pet ideas to see what other cities and towns are doing. We have been satisfied that Newton stood at the head without looking into the matter further, and meanwhile in solid practical education other places are taking the front rank.

It seems particularly important when new members of the committee are to be chosen, that our people should vote for those who stand for progress. In Ward Two we are especially fortunate in Rev. R. A. White as a candidate, and all are called upon to vote for a young, active, broad-minded, progressive man, bound by no traditions, hampered by no everlasting system, but quick to see, ready to grasp, and willing to adopt anything which will increase the utility of our schools, no matter whether it originates with himself or not. This is a matter that interests young and old, rich and poor. Let us do our duty.

GEORGE LINDER.

Fitness for the School Board.

To the Editor of the GRAPHIC.

I was the one who proposed in the Republican caucus of last week, Rev. R. A. White and Mrs. Mary A. Martin as nominees for school committee for Ward Two. That there may be no misapprehension in regard to my motive in that act, I will state that it was done wholly with reference to fitness for the office. I regard Rev. Mr. White as a gentleman of fine scholarship and great executive ability, and Mrs. Martin as a lady of culture, wide intelligence and independent character. I entertain no antipathy towards the present occupants of the office, neither had I any reference to the differences that have divided the school committee the last two years.

Very truly yours,

OTIS E. HUNT.

MUSICAL MATTERS.

THE SYMPHONY CONCERT.

The program for to-morrow evening is as follows: Suite in D minor, Lachner; Serenade in F major, for strings, Volkmann; Symphony in E flat, No. 3, Brahms; Beethoven. There will be no soloist.

THE CECILIA.

Four concerts are announced by this ever popular society, to be given on Thursday evenings, Dec. 3, 1888, Jan. 31, March 28, and May 10, 1889.

At the first concert Brahms' Deutsches Requiem will have its first hearing here, with Miss Elizabeth Hamlin and Mr. Elliot Hubbard as soloists. At the same concert Dvorak's Patriotic Hymn, which was presented so successfully last season, will also be given, both works receiving the assistance of an orchestra.

At the third concert John K. Paine's new cantata, "A Song of Promise," written for the Cincinnati festival last spring, will occupy the program, this also being given with orchestra. The soloists contemplated are the Bach Magnificat, Mendelssohn's Psalm for double chorus, "When Israel out of Egypt Came," and a chorus from one of Wagner's earliest operas, "Die Feen."

If there are at present any vacancies upon the associate membership list, they surely will not remain long with such a prospectus as this.

NOTES.

Mr. Arthur Foote's second concert will occur next Thursday afternoon at Chickering Hall.

Many compliments have been heard upon Mr. A. B. Allison's playing at the Baptist church concert last week. Although the Moscheles concert is a very difficult one, it was rendered in a most brilliant and finished manner.

The musician's calendar for 1889 is published. This is a very neat work, compiled by Mr. Frank E. Morse of Auburn. The dates of the birth and death of famous musicians are noted under their proper places, also the holy days of the church. Underneath all, on each page, (a page for each week), are quotations referring to music, from standard authors, together with much excellent advice from the great composers and musicians. Altogether, it is a most valuable and useful work.

The latest thing in mechanical instruments is the Aeolian Organ, which is advertised to play, with proper expression, anything from Bach's G minor Fugue down to quadrilles and waltzes, a most wonderful instrument certainly.

Six concerts in two weeks, what is Newton coming to?

The first concert of the Apollo Club occur Dec. 4 and 10, with E. A. MacDowell and Sig. G. Campanari as soloists.

The following we clip from the pen of Mr. G. H. Wilson, in the Boston Traveler:

"In want of just the right thing for a Christmas Sunday school concert, the enterprising school connected with Mr. De Normandie's parish at Roxbury, asked Arthur W. Thayer to write the music for one. Mr. Thayer has written especially for this service four lovely carols, a response, and closing song, and arranged for single voice solo of the more beautiful themes from the 'Messiah.' We have seen nothing of the kind, that has anything like the freshness, the lovely and fit sentiment of this effort by Mr. Thayer. The Sunday school has had more wretched music vended upon it than any other existing institution; Mr. Thayer has given the keynote to its uplifting which must have its effect. The writing is all well considered for children's voices, and is not too difficult for the bright minds for whom it is intended. The sweeter rather than the roisterous side of the loveliest holiday of a Christian people is emphasized in the music. The service has been made complete under the watchful eye and hand of Henry G. Spaulding.

NEW MUSIC.

The following has been received from Arthur P. Schmidt & Co., 13 and 15 West street, Boston: For pianoforte, "Indulo," Hungarian March, M. R. MacFarlane; "Rococo," old-fashioned dance, John Orth; "Autumn Leaf," and "The Hunter's Call," Geo. Phillips; "Spring Song," and "Elsie's Delight," C. P. Ritter; "The Approach of Spring," and "In the Swing," F. Lynes; Vocal, "Fair Rosalind," for bass voice, F. Lynes; "Du bist Wie Eine Blume," (Thou art so like a flower), Clayton Johns; "Oh, Dare Not Ask," for a deep voice, Clara K. Rogers; Sacred—"Our King," Augusto Botelli; "O, Come, My Wandering Soul," trio; and "O Day of Rest," trio, Geo. W. Chadwick; "In Heavenly Love Abiding," for male voices, J. Eliot Trowbridge.

HARPER'S.

Harper's for December also comes to the front with an unusual display of illustrations. Perhaps the most noteworthy single contribution is Mr. Walter Besant's delightful old-time story, "The Last Mass," the scene of which is laid in Armada times. The account of the artist Church is well done, and the reproductions from his paintings are admirable in texture and finish. Mr. Theodore Child's description of "A Christmas Mystery," amply illustrated, is a very fair popular account of the mystery play on French soil. The poetry of the number is "admirable," and it does honor to the name of Mr. T. B. Aldrich. Mr. E. C. S. Adams, it is hardly necessary to say that Mr. Aldrich's verse carries with it an atmosphere of dainty sentiment. Mr. Howells contributes another farce, "A Likely Story," which is vivacious in his peculiar fashion without ever reaching absolute brilliancy. One charming engraving accompanies it, and, indeed, it may be said here that the number is rich in engravings, most of them notable alike for strength and for delicacy. Like Scribner's, the magazine is in effect a holiday volume. The stories by Miss Woolson, Miss Grace King and others are well told. The departments are well sustained.

The Postmaster.

Winchester, Mass., says: I am personally acquainted with Mr. S. M. Carlton, and was astonished at the remarkable effects of your Sulphur Bitters in curing the person, and its large sale is undoubtedly due to the fact that it is an honest medicine. I know of many others who have been cured by its use, and I do not think too much can be said in its praise. Yours truly, Geo. P. Howes, F. M.

A Great Surprise.

Is in store for all who use Kemp's Balsam for the Throat and Lungs, the great guaranteed remedy. Would you believe that it is sold in its merits and that any druggist is authorized by the proprietor of this wonderful remedy to give you a sample bottle free? It never fails to cure acute or chronic coughs. All druggists sell Kemp's Balsam. Price 50 cents and $1.

For Over Three Months.

My son suffered night and day with rheumatism; so much so that he was unable to feed himself. Your Sulphur Bitters cured him, and I am truly thankful to say they are an honest medicine. —Mrs. W. H. Carleton, wife of Deacon Carleton, First Baptist Church, Winchester, Mass.

BOOKS AND MAGAZINES.

THE ATLANTIC.

The Atlantic Monthly has not in many a long year published a better number than that for December. Its contents are eminently readable. Arthur Sherburne Hardy's delicious "Passe Rose" is continued and is as good as ever. In fiction there is further a strong story by Louise Stockton called "A Devil's Passage," and the conclusion of "The Despot of Broomfield Cove." Susan Coolidge writes very pleasantly of "A Convent School of the Last Century," while there are two papers, neither of very great value, written by two women each. W. H. Downes concludes his series of papers on "Boston Painters," with some account of important pictures owned in private collections here; and W. R. Thayer writes admirably of "The Close of Garibaldi's Career." The paper which will attract the most attention is "William Warren," by Henry A. Clapp, a paper which is thoughtful and discriminating, and written with the deepest sympathy with the subject. The number also contains a suggestive paper by W. D. Hyde, President of Bowdoin, upon "The Future of the Country College," with a number of reviews and the usual Contributor's Club.

SCRIBNER'S MAGAZINE.

The December number of Scribner's magazine is especially rich in its illustrations, and its fiction, it contains among its numerous pleasant verses, at least one and unusual poem, "Sir Hugo's Choice," by James Jeffrey Roche. Its opening paper is "Winter in the Adirondacks," by Hamilton Wright Mabie, illustrated from drawings by W. Hamilton Gibson, Bruce Crane, J. D. Woodward, J. Francis Murphy, W. L. Palmer, J. H. Twachman, and from photographs. Another richly illustrated paper is "Old Glass in New Windows," by Will H. Low, an account of the progress made in this country of late years in this art of using stained glass. Lester Wallace's "Memories of the Last Fifty Years" are concluded in this number; and George Hitchcock, the artist, writes briefly and earnestly of "Sandro Botticelli" as the man who above all others gave an impulse in the right direction to the new art of the Christian world. The fiction includes a stirring installment of R. L. Stevenson's new novel, "The Master of Ballantrae," a dark and pathetic short story by H. C. Bunner, called "Squire Five Fathoms," a strong Christmas story by Rebecca Harding Davis, of which the scene is laid in the North Carolina mountains, called "At the Station," a clever tale of ingenious mystery by W. M. Taber, "The Bad Men," and "The Roses of the Senor," by John J. A. Bechet, a tale of sweet and sad sentiment. "The Lion of the Nile" is chiefly remarkable for the fine illustrations of Elhu Vedder which accompany it. Two other illustrated poems are "Through a Glass Darkly," and "Winter Evening," E. S. Martin, Ellen Burroughs, and C. H. Luders also contribute verse; and there is the usual essay by Stevenson; this time it being entitled "A Christmas Sermon."

THEATRES.

BOSTON AMUSEMENTS FOR NEXT WEEK.

Globe Theatre.—The "Still Alarm," which has been played to large audiences for several weeks, will be withdrawn after tomorrow (Saturday) evening. On Monday, Dec. 3, Joseph Jefferson and his Comedy Company will appear in a double bill, "The Cricket on the Hearth," and "Lead Me Five Shillings," for three days. On the 6th, 7th and 8th, Mr. Jefferson will present his famous old piece, "Rip Van Winkle."

Park Theatre.—The charming Lotta concludes her present engagement here this week. On Monday, Dec. 3 will be given Gillette's new comedy "A Legal Wreck," which is said to be one of the strongest American plays ever written. Great care has been taken in making up the bill, and it is believed that the patrons of the Park Theatre will be well pleased.

Boston Museum.—"Shenandoah," the great military comedy by Bronson Howard, (written expressly for the Boston Museum) is now doing its third week, and is an assured success. The management here are quite noted for getting up strictly first class entertainments, such as please the majority of the audience.

Hollis Street Theatre.—Haggard's Romance, "She," dramatized by Gillette, is a great spectacular play. Tonight and tomorrow (matinee and evening) will conclude the present engagement. On Monday, Dec. 3, Julia Marlowe will appear for one week in a repertoire of classic plays, supported by Charles Barron. Lovers of drama are anticipating a rare treat on Miss Marlowe's arrival. They present "Ingomar," "The Hunchback," "Lady of Lyons," etc.

Grand Opera House.—"Hazel Kirke" is drawing largely. Mr. C. W. Coudlock (the father) is without question the greatest actor in his role, (age not considered) in this country. Next week Miss Helen Barry, the reigning society star actress of London, will appear.

The Gaiety Music and Bijou Theatre (next to Boston Theatre) have a continuous performance during each day and evening. The comic opera "Olivette" this week, besides a general variety troupe. Admission 10 cents; nice comfortable seat, 10 to 15 cents extra.

Miscellaneous.

The young men and maidens of New York who have heretofore diverted themselves on Thanksgiving day by seeing the representatives of Harvard and Yale kicking each other, and incidentally by a ball, around a five-acre lot, must this year reconcile themselves to the privation of that gentle and joyous spectacle. —[New York Times.]

New Hampshire papers the other day contained a thrilling story of the killing of a wildcat, "a real Florida wildcat," one account said. The slayers were heroes unto a mournful epistle appeared in a Manchester paper stating that the "wildcat" in question was a large and highly prized house cat, eleven years old, belonging to the subscriber, who mourned the loss of a much-prized pet."

A Fitting Memorial.

Dr. Alvah Hovey completes, this year, forty years of continuous service as a teacher in Newton Theological Institution. The occasion has seemed, to some of the Alumni and friends of the institution, worthy of a memorial that shall express their honor and affectionate esteem, speaking of him to their successors in years to come. A meeting was held in the Vestry of Tremont Temple, Boston, on Monday, Rev. F. T. Whitman, chairman, and Prof. Charles R. Fessenden, secretary, which decided to commend the raising of $10,000 to endow a lectureship in the institution, and the procuring of a marble bust of Dr. Hovey for the library of the institution. A committee was appointed with power to carry the resolutions into effect, as follows: Massachusetts, W. S. McKenzie, D. D.; A. J. Gordon, D. D.; Rev. D. B. Ford, William A. Bowdler, R. O. Fuller, C. W. Kingsley, J. H. Walker, Maine: President Pepper, Judge Bonney, New Hampshire: Rev. J. K. Ewer, N. T. Greenwood, Vermont; Rev. C. A. Reese, Col. S. K. Fuller, Rhode Island; George Bullen, D. D., O. Bowdler, secretary. We believe the committee will find such a ready feeling of sympathy and co-operation that the work of raising the needed funds will not be arduous.

—The New York and New England R. R. met with quite an accident on Tuesday morning. The six o'clock train left Needham on time for Cook's River. On arriving there it struck a freight car on a side track and not quite clear of the main track. The engineer was somewhat injured and the fireman quite severely so. Trains on that road were delayed for some time before the track could be cleared.

A Good Complexion.

Every lady is anxious to have a good complexion, but there are a few who realize the danger of using impure soap. Many ordinary soaps are made from common grease, fats, potash, etc., and in many cases ruin the complexion. Hop Toilett Soap is strictly pure, made from pure glycerine, vegetable oils, and contains no alkali, and it is feared that it is a clear, white and healthy appearance. Sold by all dealers.

THE SCHOOL BOARD.

MR. DICKINSON'S MERITS AND DEMERITS DISCUSSED.

To the Editor of the GRAPHIC:

On Tuesday next the citizens of Newton will elect, at the polls, members of the city government for the ensuing year. Among those to be elected are four members of the school board, two each in wards one and two. In ward one there are no nominees but Dr. Pierce and Mr. Hollis. In ward two Mrs. Martin has been nominated by both conventions and Mr. Dickinson has received the nomination of the Republican convention and Rev. Mr. White that of the Citizens convention. As the school committee is voted for by the city at large, all the citizens will be called upon to vote either for Mr. White or for Mr. Dickinson. Our schools and all that pertain to them are of great interest to the people of Newton and the decision between these two gentlemen assumes considerable importance, and is well worthy the thought of every voter, man or woman.

Mr. Dickinson has been a member of the board for a number of years. At first glance this would seem to be a point in his favor, but it is believed, by many, that Mr. Dickinson has done his best work for the Newton schools, that he lacks the new ideas and the progressive spirit which is essential to a member of the school committee. Mr. Dickinson has got into beaten tracks and does not keep up with the times. In the solution of new problems which are coming up constantly he fails to bring a spirit of adaptability to changed conditions, and therefore is not a vigorous, valuable adviser. This is shown in his opposition to manual training, and his opposition to the re-election of Mr. White. In a word, Mr. Dickinson is behind the times, and the schools will be better served if another member, progressive and vigorous, could be chosen.

One of the arguments advanced in favor of Mr. Dickinson's re-election is his position as secretary of the state board of education. In reality, this dual position is a detriment to the Newton schools, as Mr. Dickinson is influenced by the action and wishes of the state board. The latter occupies the position of advisory committee for all the schools of the commonwealth. The Newton schools should have no connection other than official with it. The state board should be free to criticize the Newton board without any personal considerations. We need its criticism. On the other hand, it should not be in its power to unduly influence one committee through one of its members. Mr. Dickinson's position in the state board prevents him from giving the time and attention necessary to the discharge of his Newton work. This he has admitted himself at various times, and it is certainly a very serious objection to his election. Incidents are not wanting also to show that Mr. Dickinson's connection with the state board has biased his decision on Newton matters to the detriment of the latter. We want a man who has in mind the good of the schools alone, who will give his best thought, his whole time, and his disinterested efforts to the schools of this city.

The reasons in favor of the election of the successful members of the committee last year and in opposition to that of the old members who stood for re-election are of the same force this year as applied to Mr. Dickinson's candidacy. He occupied the same position on the questions then at issue and stood with the defeated gentlemen.

In August last, the school board declined to re-elect Miss Haggood to her former position as a teacher in the Adams School. As a member, and in fact, unless the superintendent of schools be contented with her, the only member of the district committee for some time, for Miss Snead was away so much. Mr. Dickinson must be given a large share of the credit or discredit of that action. Briefly the facts are these: A year ago last June, Miss Haggood was given a leave of absence for one year on account of ill health. "It was understood at the time," said Miss Haggood in a letter to the committee, "in fact I have received the positive assurance of the superintendent and the only member of the district committee with whom I had an interview, that my position as first assistant of the Adams school should be open to me at the beginning of the coming fall term, provided that I was in a condition to resume work."

Miss Haggood, writing to me, she was expected at her old post in the fall. In reply she sent a positive affirmative. Nothing more happened until June 1, when Mr. Emerson sent her word that at a meeting of the district committee of ward 2 it was voted, in consideration of her continued ill health during the past two years, it was not advisable that she be re-appointed, and that she had better resign. Miss Haggood sought an interview with a member of the committee and then learned that complaints had been made against her strict discipline, but he added that the dissatisfaction was not general and that no fault was found with the results of her teaching. This feeling had existed, it was said, for two years. Here there was a reason different from the one given, and if of weight, why did the committee promise her the place when she resigned? What had she done, in the meantime, to change the case? Miss Haggood sent the certificate of her physician to the effect that she was well enough to teach. This, then, was the reason Miss Haggood wrote a long letter to the board, which was a very severe commentary on his action. Mr. Dickinson, knowing the character of the letter, moved to place it on file, and endeavored to prevent the true character of the letter from being known. Nothing more would have been heard of the matter had not the NEWTON GRAPHIC of Aug. 28, published the letter. The publication aroused much feeling in Newtonville, and the people will not, we are sure, put the stamp of their approval upon this action. The pledge to Miss Haggood was broken, and she was not re-appointed, and is teaching in another city. Is this the open, frank way to conduct school business? Have the teachers no rights? Is faith to be broken thus ruthlessly?

REV. R. A. WHITE,

the other candidate, is pastor of one of the Newtonville churches, and a very bright, intelligent man. He is a scholar and greatly interested in the schools and all that pertain to the good of the city. His interests are centered in Newton, and there will be nothing to distract his attention from his duties and nobody to please but his constituents. He is a comparatively young man, progressive and full of energy. A fine education, careful training and a genial disposition fit him to fill with exceptional success the honorable and responsible position to which his fellow-citizens are asked to call him by many friends of the public schools in this city.

The Late Mr. Wood.

Bartholomew Wood, an old resident of Newton Centre, died Tuesday forenoon very suddenly of heart disease. He was born at Newburyport, May 31, 1813. He entered Phillips Academy, Andover, July, 1834, with a view of fitting for college there, but after the visit of George Thompson, the celebrated English abolitionist, to the place, giving several lectures upon the subject of slavery, some of the students of the academy manifested a good deal of interest in the subject and took some measures to form an anti-slavery society. But the principal of the academy and the professor of the Theological Seminary frowned upon the attempt and the students were forbidden to engage in any active participation in the anti-slavery cause.

In consequence of this, many of the students left and sought other institutions, where a more liberal policy prevailed. Mr. Wood went to Leicester and finished his preparatory course there, and entered Dartmouth College in 1837, graduating in 1841. After graduating, he taught for a number of years, first at Lynn as principal of a grammar school, then in Boston as an assistant in the Adams School, at Newton Centre as principal of a boarding school, and afterwards in the Adams School. He was a very successful teacher and a good disciplinarian. After the abolition of the Adams School he went into business, but afterwards turned his attention to journalism, becoming editor of the Milford Journal in 1857, for which position he had great qualifications. While connected with the Milford Journal he was the first to suggest the name of Charles Francis Adams for member of congress, and did much to bring his election about.

He left the Milford Journal in 1861, receiving an appointment as inspector in the Boston Custom House shortly after the inauguration of Abraham Lincoln. He remained in this position some six or seven years.

He voted for James J. Birney for President, and was a sturdy Republican from the time of the organization of that party. He removed from Milford in 1865 back to Newton Centre, where he has since resided. He was twice married; his widow, one son and three daughters survive him. His only sister and brother are still living, residents of Newburyport. He was buried from his late home at Newton Centre at half-past 1 o'clock today (Friday).

The new time table of the Boston & Albany R. R., which went into effect last Sunday, gives two extra morning trains from Eliot, which will prove to be a great convenience to many.

A Scrap of Paper Saves her Life.
It was just an ordinary scrap of wrapping paper, but it saved her life. She was in the last stages of consumption, told by physicians that she was incurable and could live only a short time, she weighed less than seventy pounds. On a piece of wrapping paper she read of Dr. King's New Discovery, and got a sample bottle; it helped her more, bought another and grew better fast, continued its use and is now strong, healthy, rosy, plump, weighing 140 pounds. For fuller particulars send stamp to W. H. Cole, Druggist, Fort Smith. Trial bottles of this wonderful discovery free at Arthur Hudson's drugstore.

THE SECRET OF A CLEAR, WHITE COMPLEXION.

And soft, velvety face, hands, and skin, is not in trying to beautify it with Powders, Cosmetics, Creams, and strong Alkaline Soaps. It is of the kind that do more harm than good, and in time completely ruin the natural life and activity of the skin.

PAY PARTICULAR ATTENTION to, and first investigate the purity of the soap you are daily using. It is of the utmost importance.

IN MANY CASES where you see a sallow, thick, pasty skin, it is the result of the use of impure soap (or no soap at all), which has not kept the face real clean nor the pores open, so as to allow the secretions to escape.

HOP TOILET SOAP is praised and recommended by all.

WE ASK NO ONE to purchase a second cake of HOP SOAP if the effects of the first are not entirely satisfactory. It will give the skin a fresh, healthy glow, and the complexion a natural color that will last.

TEST ITS PURITY, and see how clear the face will become and how clean it will feel after its use.
